Motors in Country, Complaining of 'Lack of Privacy.'

By William V. Nessly.

President Roosevelt will have no comment to make on articles to the effect that Justice Hugo L. Black is a life member of the Ku Klux Klan until the Justice returns from Europe.

He may not even have any comment then, he indicated yesterday at a press conference, during which he said that Justice Black undoubtedly had had no opportunity to see the full text of the articles.

The President added that he had no information as to Justice Black's reported membership in the hooded order when he appointed the Alabama Senator to the Supreme Court on August 12.

The Chief Executive made these statements while two Senators were calling for Black to resign from the court or repudiate the principles of the Klan, and Black himself was seeking seclusion from reporters in the English countryside.

Roosevelt Prepared.

Some hours after he returned to the Capital from his Hyde Park home, in the midst of the furore over the Ku Klux charges, the President told reporters he had anticipated their questions and had prepared a statement which they might quote. He read:

"I know only what I have read in the newspapers. I note that the stories are appearing serially and their publication is not complete.

"Mr. Justice Black is in Europe, where undoubtedly he cannot get the full text of these articles.

"Until such time as he returns, there is no further comment to be made."

Responding to questions, he said

Philadelphia Record Calls on Black to Quit

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13 (U.P.). The Philadelphia Record, which supported the President in the 1932 and 1936 elections, will say tomorrow that Mr. Roosevelt made a "grievous mistake" in nominating Black, and "if he will not resign voluntarily, then the President should insist that he step down."

"It can no longer be doubted that Justice Black was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, one of the most vicious, anti-social and un-American organizations ever to exist in this country," the newspaper will say in a front page editorial.

"The President and his liberal supporters can only be relieved of their grave embarrassment by the resignation of Mr. Black . . . As a United States Senator, Mr. Black has a magnificent record of progressivism . . . Yet, such a fine legislative record cannot overcome the blot of Klan membership." (Text, Page 14.)

This seemingly innocent splattering across the show window of a downtown shoe store is deadly hydrofluoric acid, spurted upon the plate glass of 18 stores here early yesterday. The glass must be replaced in all instances and no store in Washington carries insurance covering the loss. Police are seeking racketeers or fanatics for the sabotage.

Acid Throwers Destroy Capital Show Windows

Racketeers Suspected After Glass in 18 Buildings Is Clouded.

The nocturnal vandals whose syringes or spray guns, loaded with deadly acid, caused at least $25,000 damage to downtown department store windows early yesterday must be either racketeers of fanatics, police believe.

The hydrofluoric acid used is the only known chemical which will eat glass. Police were seeking a person or persons with some knowledge of chemistry who would be familiar with this fact.

The substance is sold in large quantities—about two pounds of the acid in powder form was used by the vandals, it is believed—only to firms which contract for cleaning buildings or to chemists.

The sole precedent for the peculiar attack occurred five years ago in New York, when gangsters believed to be in the employ of racketeering labor organizations disfigured stores employing nonunion help.

Hecht Co. Is Worst Sufferer.

Damages have been estimated tentatively at between $25,000 and $30,000. The heaviest loss was suffered by the Hecht Co., where six windows valued at $500 each were damaged beyond repair. The acid eats into glass sufficiently to cloud it and render it useless for show window purposes.

The other principal victim was Julius Garfinckel & Co. Six of its windows were sprayed. Window cleaners discovered the vandalism.

The other 16 stores lie along a zigzag track running down F street from the Fourteenth street intersection to Seventh street.

Those which have reported damages to police are the National Furniture Shop, the Adeline Shop, the Herzog Clothing Store, the Shoe Mart, the Bernie Credit Co., Kresge's, George's Radio Shop, George G. Cornwall Bakery, Vim Sporting Goods, J. E. Fischel, Morris Hardware Co., Davis Clothing Store, Capital Clothing Co., Hearn Clothing Co., Lane Clothing Co. and Joe Little's Haberdashery.

On all windows the acid was sprayed at about shoulder height. Police consider this a clew. An Ostensibly casual passerby could stroll past a show window, spraying

Georgetown U. Soon to Open World's Finest Brain Institute

Scientists to Conduct Extensive Research Into Behavior of Animals and Mechanics of Central Nervous System.

By Gerald G. Gross

A brain research institute which will be the most complete institution of its kind in the world is about to begin functioning here.

Without fanfare or advance notice, work on the project has been under way for several months, heralding an enterprise which its sponsors hope will make Washington the world capital for study of the brain in man and animals.

To be conducted as a unit of Georgetown University, it will be known as the Brain Research Institute of the Georgetown Medical School and its director will be Dr. Othmar Solnitzky. Actual operations will be launched in three or four weeks, upon completion of building alterations at the school and installation of equipment.

Describing the institute's objectives yesterday, Dr. Solnitzky said its extensive facilities will be placed at the disposal of scholars, experimenters and practitioners from all lands, the project's central purpose being to add to man's knowledge, now meager, of the normal and abnormal brain.

The most up-to-date equipment, some $25,000 worth, is being installed. Expert personnel has been engaged. Laboratory accommodations are being provided for "guest" scientists, as well as for advanced medical students and private prac-

Foodless Noons Faced by 8,000 In D. C. Schools

WPA Unable to Provide Funds for Meals for Needy.

Unless WPA officials are able to obtain financial help from some source in the District, more than 8,000 school children may have to go without lunches this year, it was learned by The Post yesterday.

According to Mary Steele, District director of women's and professional WPA projects, last year's service, which furnished approximately free 1,413,201 lunches, will not be supplied unless money for food can be raised from a source other than the Federal Government.

In many cases, Miss Steele said, the hot lunches are the only substantial food the children have for the day.

Pointing out that the Federal Government requires communities seeking such projects to bear a part of the expense, Miss Steele said appeals had been made to the Board of Public Welfare and private agencies.

Cost of the lunches last year were estimated at 17 cents each, 7 cents of which represented cost of food. Because of the increase in food prices this year, Miss Steele has set the amount required to feed the children this year at $103,725.

Scully, Waddell Lead Primary In Pittsburgh

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh (Wednesday), Sept. 15. Opponents of Democratic Mayor Cornelius D. Scully and Republican Robert N. Waddell conceded the victory today of the two organization-backed candidates, who had piled up huge leads in incomplete returns from yesterday's primary.

The count from 217 of the city's 411 districts gave Scully 35,068; former Mayor William N. McNair, 9,259, and Council President P. J. McArdle, 11,711.

In 254 Districts.

McArdle, who had waged a bitter fight against Scully, breaking with State Chairman David L. Lawrence, did not congratulate the victor in conceding defeat.

Instead, McArdle, a former Republican, said:

"The membership of the Democratic Party has spoken. Their verdict is decisive and final. . .. I feel no regret for any of my acts or for those of my associates."

Connery Gains Nomination.

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 14 (AP).—Drawing the lines for a Democratic-Republican election clash two weeks hence, Lawrence Connery, Democrat, and State Representative Edward D. Sirois, Republican, tonight won primary contests for the seat of the late United States Representative William P. Connery, Democrat.

Connery, a resident of Lynn and brother of the late Representative, polled 19,658 votes to 1,965 for State Senator Joseph A. Langone, who ran from outside the district on both the Democratic and Republican tickets.

Sirois, a war veteran who lives in Lawrence, barely defeated C. F. Nelson Pratt, of Saugus, polling 7,136 votes to 5,594 for his opponent. Other rivals for the Republican nomination were Leonard C. Atkinson, of Winthrop, who received 1,542 votes, and Langone, who trailed with 1,236.

Mrs. Parsons, Kidnap Victim, Died of Pneumonia, Notes Say

By the United Press.

New York, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons, missing since June 9, died in her kidnapers' hands of pneumonia a month later, according to information in the hands of Federal agents, Benjamin Shiverts, an attorney, said today.

Shiverts, counsel for Mrs. Anna Kupryanova, Russian-born housekeeper at the Parsons farm, said the information was contained in letters the Department of Justice received from the supposed abductors of the society woman.

The letters, he said, said Mrs. Parsons' body was disposed of. Proof that the letters were genuine, he said, was a brooch she wore when she disappeared and which has been sent to the agents by the abductors.

One letter, he said, told of Mrs. Parsons' death of pneumonia on July 9, a month after a man and woman induced her to enter an automobile at Stony Brook, N. Y., where her husband had a squab farm. The letter said she had been kept prisoner on Long Island.

All the letters, according to Shiverts, were postmarked Elizabeth, N. J., and Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Parsons, whose name is in the social register, was missed at 8:30 p. m. on the day of her disappearance, but it was not until 1:30 a. m. next day that police found a ransom note in her automobile, parked near the house.

Civic Center, New Schools In Sight Here

Donovan Forecasts Gain of $2,000,000 in General Fund.

Increase to Permit Start on Modern Police Headquarters.

By James D. Secrest.

A start on the long delayed Municipal Center and a few new schools may be included in the District's 1939 budget as a result of Auditor Daniel J. Donovan's estimate yesterday that the city may expect gross revenue of $50,000,000.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen hopes to use part of the $2,000,000 increase in the general fund above this year's receipts to build the first wing of the Municipal Center for replacement of the obsolete police headquarters building.

Most of the remainder, it is believed, will go to school construction, but new projects probably will be limited because of obligations to complete or continue construction of such large buildings as the Northern High School at Fifth and Sheridan streets.

Half Already Allotted.

Although the auditor estimates the District revenue for 1939 will exceed 1938 returns by $4,000,000, half of this amount is restricted to the highway and water funds and cannot be used to bolster other departmental budgets.

The $50,000,000 budget consequently will not represent such a large advance over the current $46,000,000 appropriation as appears from the comparative figures.

Even to keep municipal estimates at $50,000,000—which would set a new high if appropriated—the Commissioners will have to slash about $17,000,000 from departmental requests.

Significant in the auditor's preliminary statement was the listing of $6,000,000 in anticipated revenue from "replacement" of the business privilege tax and the 25-cent increase in the realty and personal property tax.

Expire With Fiscal Year.

These taxes are to expire with the fiscal year and, while the Commissioners have not yet decided what tax recommendations to make to the next Congress, indications are they will reject both of the levies which comprise the basis of the $9,000,000 tax program adopted at the last session.

So far the only alternatives seriously considered are an income tax or a sales tax. The realty tax probably will not go back to $1.50, but at least one of the Commissioners wants it lowered to $1.60.

The Commissioners are preparing to recommend an increase in the Federal contribution of $2,500,000, bringing it to $7,500,000, Maj. Donovan disclosed in his revenue statement, but the District officials frankly are not optimistic over the prospect of getting it.

The auditor arrived at his estimate of general fund revenue by using the $150 realty tax rate and a $5,000,000 United States payment. Six million dollars would come from replacements of the business privilege levy and the realty tax hike.

Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, issued a statement yesterday he will oppose any increase in the District's 1939 budget above the 1938 appropriations.

U. S. Ships Forbidden To Carry War Cargoes; Japan Storms 5 Fronts

Shanghai Shelling Continues Heavy

Bulletin.

Tokyo (Wednesday), Sept. 15 (U.P.).—The Domei News Agency reported from Peiping today that the largest battle of the war began at 6:30 a. m., along a 50-mile front about 20 miles southwest of Peiping.

The engagement, the dispatch said, was along the Peigping-Hankow Railway and the Liuli River near Liangsiang, where fighting on a small scale occurred last Sunday.

Japanese forces were said to be opposed by 300,000 Chinese.

Shanghai (Wednesday), Sept. 15.—Japan's powerful army, navy and air forces struck on five fronts along an irregular line of more than 2,000 miles today and appeared to be certain of at least a partial victory unless some third power intervenes.

Chinese, as they have for more than a month, continued to resist vigorously, particularly around Shanghai. But the great Japanese superiority on land, sea and air was everywhere apparent.

Fighting has been on a smaller scale in the Shanghai area for the last 24 hours, although there still was a continuous roar of artillery fire. It was indicated the Japanese will not attack the new Chinese defense line, to which Gen. Chang Chih-chung has been withdrawing for three days, until they receive considerable reinforcements.

Artillery Active.

[Japanese artillery and tanks harassed Chinese troops retreating through flooded rice fields to their strong second line, according to the Associated Press.

[Last reports indicated the Chinese had lost 35,000 and the Japanese 10,000 killed or wounded in the four-week battle for Shanghai.—Editor's note.]

More than 5,000 Americans here, including United States naval forces, still were imperiled, but the tide of the month-old battle was moving slowly from the city. The Chinese line touched Shanghai proper at only one point, in Chapei, adjacent to the International Settlement, and foreign military attaches believed that position could not be held for long.

There was bitter fighting in Chapei early today. Japanese were trying to fight their way to the strategic North Railway Station, terminus of the line from Nanking, and were attacking with hand grenades and bayonet.

Advance on Rail Lines.

Britain, France Send 120 Ships To Fight Piracy

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

London, Sept. 14.—Great Britain and France tonight ordered nearly 120 warships to the Mediterranean to war on "pirate" submarines, although Italy refused to join the crusade because the nine-power Nyon agreement denied her "absolute parity" with the French and British.

The Italian refusal was not delivered until after hurried consultations with Germany.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in a world-wide radio broadcast from Geneva, a few minutes after announcement of Italy's note, that attacks on Mediterranean shipping were "a kind of gangster terrorism" and would be brought to a swift end.

Italy was offered only the little Tyrrhenian Sea to patrol, while the British and French navies will sweep across the entire 5,000 miles of Mediterranean trade routes.

Italy originally refused to attend the Nyon conference because of Russia's formal notes accusing Italian submarines of being responsible for the "piracy." Germany also boycotted the Nyon meeting.

Britain and France will use airplanes to hunt out "pirate" submarines. Their aviation experts are studying plans for dealing with "piracy" from the air and will lay them before a new session of the Nyon powers soon.

The Nyon agreement became effective shortly before 2 p. m. when Bojidar Pouritch stepped up and added the name of Yugoslavia to the signatures of the eight other powers.

Russia signed the accord in Nyon without reservations, but the official government newspaper in Moscow, Izvestia, said "the agreement does not deprive the Soviet Union of the ability, in case of need, to carry out direct action in the Mediterranean for the protection of our trade and navigation."

Private Craft Warned They Supply Orient at Own Risk.

Roosevelt Evades Neutrality Ruling

By Sidney Olson.

President Roosevelt last night struck swiftly to avert American entanglement in the Sino-Japanese war by forbidding all Government-owned ships to transport munitions to either China or Japan.

He warned all other merchant vessels "flying the American flag" which attempt to transport munitions to either country that they will "do so at their own risk."

He added: "The question of applying the neutrality act remains in status quo, the Government policy remaining on a 24-hour basis."

Dodges Ruling on War.

By this device the President was enabled to avoid applying the much-criticized neutrality act in the present delicate situation, while effectively discouraging the shipment of munitions to the war area. To prohibit the general shipment of munitions by Americans to either China or Japan under the neutrality act, the President must first make a direct finding that a state of war exists between foreign states.

Such a finding, when no declared war exists, very possibly would be regarded by Japan as an unfriendly act, it was observed here.

The President's order appeared to be aimed directly at the 395-ton freighter Wichita, bound out of Baltimore for China with a load of 19 Bellanca airplanes. The Wichita was due last night at San Pedro, Calif., for re-fueling before heading across the Pacific.

Roosevelt's action yesterday postponed possible involvement of the United States in the Far Eastern conflict through either the halting and search, or possibly the bombing, of the Wichita by Japanese blockaders now guarding the Chinese coast against the entrance of aid for the Chinese.

Move Outside of Act.

He reached the decision after long conferences with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Maritime Commission Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy and the Cabinet yesterday.

On October 5, 1935, the President declared an embargo on the export of arms to either Italy or Ethiopia. On May 1, 1937, the President proclaimed that a state of civil war existed in Spain, and banned the export of arms to either faction there—five months after a swiftly enacted Congressional resolution had halted such shipments in fact.

Both of those declarations were made under the terms of the neutrality act. The present move is outside of that act and merely involves an exercise of the President's power to control Government-subsidized shipping. The warning to nonsubsidized shipping to stay out of the the war zone is expected to prove quite effective, particularly since seamen on such ships are demanding war bonuses and in some cases, life insurance payable to their widows in the event of death in the venture.

Landis Assails Those Who Live by Promoting Stock Market Speculation as He Leaves SEC

'Cushion' for Wall Street Provided by 'Small Men,' He Says.

A gaunt-faced, soft-voiced young man named James M. Landis, his mouth down-drawn in his habitual thoughtful scowl, snatched his crushed felt hat from his desk at the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday at 4 o'clock and walked out of the New Deal.

His last act as chairman of the SEC was to hold a press conference at which he denounced unsparingly "those people who have to live by inducing other people to gamble on the stock market."

But after he had shaken hands with the newsmen he was through with four years of brilliant and widely applauded service under this Administration—a service that began when he arrived here as one of "Felix Frankfurter's hot dogs" in 1933 and ended only at his personal desire to retire to academic cloisters as dean of the Harvard Law School.

When he came here they said:

A week from Saturday Landis will be 38 years old. He was 34 when Frankfurter, his law professor at Harvard, recommended him to the President as a man who could make security market regulatory legislation bombproof as to constitutio[illegible]. Anti-New Dealers Seize Upon Klan Issue in New York Mayoralty Campaign

Smith to Make Welkin Ring on Religious Phase

By Franklyn Waltman.
Staff Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 14.—Suddenly—if not wholly unexpectedly—Hugo L. Black's alleged Ku Klux Klan affiliations have become a major issue in the New York mayoralty primary campaign.

Since Black is from Alabama, recently has been named a member of the Supreme Court by President Roosevelt, has never lived in New York and has nothing to do with this city except insofar as every Senator and Supreme Court Justice has something to do with it—that may seem strange.

But it is typical of this election. Seldom has a mayoralty campaign been fought on issues so extraneous to the welfare of a municipality as this one. Every day and night someone says something about good municipal government, or high taxes, or economy—or lack of it—or splendid playgrounds, or racketeering or police and crime.

An example of the curiosities this campaign has developed, occurred last night when headquarters of Senator Royal S. Copeland announced receipt of the following telegram from Senator Frederick Steiwer, of Oregon, keynoter at the Republican National Convention last year:

"I am most hopeful Republican voters in New York primary election will grasp their opportunity to register a forthright expression on national issues. You are recognized everywhere as an independent Democrat. In this contest you are opposed by confessed dependents of Roosevelt's New Deal. Your victory on September 16 will encourage all other patriotic citizens in and out of Congress in their struggle to preserve the American system of government. Best wishes for success."

But the issues which attract attention, and which the politicians presume will sway the voters, are based on religious and racial prejudices, on nationalities, and on issues which are national rather than local. Black's Ku Klux Klan affiliations constitute a perfect illustration.

Smith to Speak.

Copeland, Tammany Hall's candidate in Thursday's primary election, has injected Black and the Klan into the campaign as an issue. Al Smith—perhaps still the Nation's foremost Catholic layman and backer of Copeland—proposes to make a speech about it tomorrow night. Without doubt he will make the welkin ring in that speech, as he did in his anti-Klan speeches in 1928 and 1932.

Neither of Copeland's opponents is a Klansman, nor has either ever shown any sympathy for the Klan. Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, the Copeland opponent in the Republican primary, is partly of Italian origin. One of his ancestors was a Jew. He has specialized in politics in appealing to the Catholic, Jew and Negro vote.

Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney, the Copeland opponent in the Democratic primary, is—you have guessed it—an Irish Catholic. He has nothing but disdain and denunciation for the Klan. Who in New York politics would not have when the majority of voters are Catholics, Jews, Negroes, foreign-born or the children of immigrants?

Hammer New Deal.

But that is not the point. Al Smith and Copeland are seeking to pin the Ku Klux Klan label on President Roosevelt and his New Deal. Both LaGuardia and Mahoney are New Deal adherents. Smith and Copeland are anti-New Deal Democrats. If they can demonstrate that Mr. Roosevelt named a Klansman to the Supreme Court to pass on the religious freedom and civil rights of Catholics, Jews, Negroes and the foreign-born, they have struck a real blow at him—and, so they think, they have damaged anyone supporting Roosevelt.

Copeland says that Mahoney, who boasts he is 100 per cent New Deal, has thus "tarred himself with the K. K. K." Mahoney replies by denouncing the Klan and asserting he always has been tolerant and against "bigoted organizations." Copeland intends his remarks about being "tarred with the K. K. K." to apply equally to LaGuardia, the New Dealer. The Mayor publicly says nothing. Privately he says "bosh, is that all poor old Doc can pull out of the hat?"

The whole thing becomes more ludicrous when Imperial Wizard of the Klan, Hiram Evans, tells reporters in Birmingham that Copeland is his very good friend and that the Klan helped to elect Copeland in 1928. Copeland denies this—at least says he had no knowledge of it and that "I despise the Klan—I was against its father the A. P. A., and in my entire adult life I have fought intolerance."

Tongue In Cheek?

There is a widespread suspicion here that Wizard Evans had his tongue in his cheek when he termed Copeland one of the favorites of the Klan—but this boomerang has proved amusing to New York. Also, there is a suspicion that the facts about the Black affiliations with the Klan did not "just happen this week" but were carefully sprung at this time to aid the Copeland candidacy.

Be that as it may, it remains to be seen whether Copeland can win on this issue. Observers hold that undoubtedly he will gain some votes on the strength of the revelations about Black which he would not otherwise have obtained—since he first raised the Klan issue against Black in the Senate. But the most competent observers contend that in the Democratic primary, at least, his prospects are so hopeless nothing can save him. There is doubt whether he even can win the Republican nomination, but his chances are better there.

Not Only One.

It is not intended here to give the impression that Copeland has been the only candidate in this campaign to raise issues based on prejudices and on national interests. LaGuardia, though silent now, took the lead in that respect many months ago. If Copeland has made the Klan and Justice Black his kicking boy, LaGuardia as far back as last winter used Adolph Hitler for that purpose when he contended that the Fuhrer should be placed in a "chamber of horrors." Then LaGuardia was making an affirmative gesture for the vote of New York's hundreds of thousands of Jews and Catholics.

If the New Deal has no place in this campaign, it was put there by LaGuardia, who a year ago boarded the New Deal wagon and proclaimed himself the foremost friend in this city of President Roosevelt. Having established himself months ago as a New Dealer and as a bitter critic of Hitler, he has no need now to emphasize those things. So he remains silent, lest he scare off some of his anti-New Deal Republican support.

LaGuardia's campaign, commenced months ago, is based on adroit strategy. He has established himself with the New Deal, with the C. I. O. followers and the left-wing element. He remains silent as the conservative Republicans contend the only issue in the campaign is to keep "Tammany Hall out of City Hall."

Much can be said for the merits of the administration which LaGuardia has given this city. It has been progressive. It has been fairly efficient. There have been no scandals. But it has not been cheap. He, or his followers for him, claim credit for things done with Federal money.

But alongside of the Jimmy Walker and John O'Brien administrations, it stands out. On that record LaGuardia stands now—and along with his previous appeals to racial and religious prejudices—he looks like the ultimate winner. But more about that tomorrow

New Device to Control Dose for Patient May Be Adjusted Like Radio Dial, Congress of Radiology Is Informed at Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

A new automatic robot pilot designed to remove all the guesswork from X-ray treatment was announced today by Dr. Gustav Bucky, of New York, before the fifth International Congress of Radiology.

Dr. Bucky, who previously invented a diaphragm for use in X-ray tubes which is now a universal appliance, explained his new device is similar to the automatic gyroscopic pilots which control airplanes in flight in that it eliminates the human factor. The "universal dosimeter" works on a different principle from the automatic pilot, however

It is called an "ultra-sensitive electrometer," and is a tube which measures the quality and quantity, including the intensity, of X-rays emanating from the X-ray tube. The electrometer tube is hooked back to the source of electricity feeding the X-ray tube and controls exactly the dose of X-rays set by the physician with a single dial. In this it is similar to automatic tuning devices of radio sets. If the X-ray machine varies, even in the slightest degree, the electrometer shuts it off immediately.

The congress today voted to hold its next meeting in 1940 in Berlin, Germany, in response to the desires of the German delegation of 70 members, the largest foreign representation in attendance. Dr. Hermann Holthusen, of Hamburg, Germany, was selected as next president, to succeed Dr. Arthur C. Christie, of Washington, D. C.

Of course, the same raw material may come from several parts of the country. List the main places and bring this list to the lessons Wednesday morning."

315,000 Pupils Out.

Thus began the Chicago Board of Education's novel newspaper-radio instruction for the benefit of 315,000 elementary school pupils for whom regular class work has been postponed until the current outbreak of infantile paralysis wanes.

Five newspapers and six broadcasting stations co-operated in the project.

This is their plan of operation:

A dozen educators prepare instructions for pupils of the various grades. They deal with social studies and science on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and with English and mathematics on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. A selected staff reads the lessons into the microphones during nine 15-minute periods each day.

Examinations Ahead.

The newspapers publish lists of homework assignments and the times and stations of the programs arranged for the following day.

Twenty-five teachers are assigned to a battery of telephones to answer questions of puzzled pupils. Examinations on the subjects will be held when schools open.

Picketing Pressed At Brooklyn Paper

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Two hundred men today picketed the plant of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, where a strike of editorial and commercial employes was voted yesterday by the Newspaper Guild unit.

Picketing was orderly, police said, except for some booing of printers who passed through the lines into the building on instructions of their officers. Last night ten pickets were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

The Eagle published regular editions today.

Block Acquires Paper.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Associated Press learned today that Paul Block, president, publisher and part owner of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, has acquired all of the outstanding stock and is now sole owner of the paper. The Post-Gazette is the only morning paper in Pittsburgh.

Tests Disclose Motherhood in Earliest Stage

The pregnandial method of determining pregnancy, by which chemistry shows in a few hours what ordinarily takes days, was described yesterday to alumni of Georgetown University School of Medicine.

Dr. F. P. Veitch, of the bio-chemistry department, who has been conducting experiments with the newly developed process, said he has found it successful in about 100 cases. His experiments have extended over a six-month period.

Although none of his patients had been pregnant less than a month when subjected to the test, Dr. Veitch expressed his belief that the new chemical method is capable of determining the condition virtually as soon as it is established.

The test is inexpensive and eventually he hopes it will be given in the physician's office, since it is comparatively simple. It does away with the physical examination.

It should be helpful in surgical cases where it is desirable not to operate if the patient is pregnant, he asserted. It is also possible to determine by the test whether a supposed tumor is actually a tumor or whether it might be a condition of pregnancy.

Clinics in surgery, bronchoscopy, otolaryngology, neurology, urology, ophthalmology and orthopedics were held yesterday at Gallinger, Gergetown, Episcopal and Children's hospitals.

This morning, the third day of the five-day course, clinics and lectures are scheduled at Georgetown, Providence and Gallinger hospitals. The afternoon session will be held at the medical school, consisting of addresses on protamine zinc insulin, pneumococcus typing, heart disease and pains in the chest.

New Financing.

New York, Sept. 14.—New financing scheduled for this week by 1 Territory, 1 State and 50 municipalities totals $25,260,000, compared with the revised total of $12,850,027 for the past week, according to The Daily Bond Buyer of New York.

17 Laid-Up Ships Sold, 15 for Scrap, 2 For Conversion

By the Associated Press.

The Maritime Commission sold 17 ships in its laid-up fleet tonight—15 for scrap and two for conversion into colliers to be operated in domestic waters. It realized $688,365 on the vessels for scrap, and $130,019 on the others.

The 15 ships to be scrapped aggregate 125,754 tons and have been declared obsolete. The other two were among nine on which the commission opened bids yesterday.

Ten of the 15 ships for scrap were awarded to Simpson, Spence & Young, of New York, whose bid, in behalf of British buyers, totaled $454,868. The firm also offered a bonus of $29,820 if it received the awards on eight ships.

Three of the remaining vessels for scrap went to Phillip Brothers, Inc., of New York, for an aggregate bid of $143,102, and the award of the other two was made to the Union Shipbuilding Co., of Baltimore for an aggregate of $50,575.

John C. Rogers, president of the American Range Lines, Inc., of Philadelphia, bidding as an individual, and the Mystic Steamship Co., of Boston, were awarded the two ships sold for conversion.

School Officials To Take Holiday

Students planning to attend Washington's public junior and senior high schools for the first time this year must remember Friday is Constitution Day, and a holiday.

School does not start until next Monday, but the board of admissions, which enrolls new students, is going to take the afternoon off.

Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou announced yesterday that a member of the board of admissions will receive students beginning today at Thomson School, Twelfth and L streets northwest. The office will remain open tomorrow and up to noon on Friday.

Thieves Get Little At Roosevelt Home

James Roosevelt, whose home at 3331 O street northwest was robbed last week, yesterday reported to police that a gold watch, a family heirloom, and a set of shirt studs were the only valuables taken.

Police have questioned several persons suspected of the housebreaking, but all have been released.

Indian Life Is Subject Of Talk by Economist

Dr. S. H. DeVault, professor of economics at the University of Maryland, will speak at the National Church of Positive Christianity, 1726 Eighth street northwest, tomorrow night on the subject, "The Life and Artifacts of the American Indian." In connection with this lecture, he will exhibit a number of Indian relics, which he has collected as a hobby.

30 D. C. Officials Sit in First Monthly Session to Unify Traffic Safety Program

Police, Judges Convene With Commissioners

Unprecedented Meeting to Be First Step in Drive to Cut Auto Deaths.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Striking anew at Washington's traffic problem, 30 city officials—representing enforcement, prosecution and the courts—met in an unprecedented session with the District Commissioners yesterday to adopt plans for a co-ordinated highway safety program.

Described by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen as the first of regular monthly safety conferences, the meeting brought together all local agencies charged directly with traffic control.

For the first time, three Police Court judges sat down with prosecutors and traffic authorities for an interchange of ideas and a discussion of problems and possible remedies.

Asks "Yardstick."

Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan called for a "yardstick" with which to measure police efficiency and accident reporting. A chart compiled by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, showing the accident trend precinct by precinct, does not fairly depict conditions, Sultan said.

He sought to determine the kind and type of accidents which should be reported. Under the present system, even crashes where fenders are dented or scratched are carried on police reports.

It was suggested that certain accidents could be ignored, except where persons are injured or damage is heavy. A system whereby mishaps can be analyzed for type and cause was recommended.

The accident chart, exhibited by Duzer, showed a monthly recording of all crashes, compared to the same month for last year. It was revealed that accidents have increased 28 per cent thus far this year, as against the same period for 1936.

Decrease Reported.

Six individual police precincts, however, reported a decrease in accidents last month, Van Duzer said. The Seventh Precinct led, with a reduction of 17 per cent.

Those precincts showing an accident decrease, it was pointed out, carry approximately 60 per cent of all Washington traffic. Downtown sections showed a decrease, while the trend was upward in outlying precincts, it was reported.

Co-operation, both public and official, was the keynote. District motorists were urged to support current safety efforts by adhering strictly to all regulations and rules of caution.

There must be, however, close co-ordination of the city's three traffic agencies—police, prosecutors and judges—he said. Any suggestion to improve methods of prosecution, Seal added, will be welcomed by his office.

Brown Makes Plea.

Without understanding and co-operation from the public, said Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, all attemts to control traffic will be wasted.

"The traffic problem," said Maj. Brown, "is one of the most important issues before us. We have conditions unlike any other city in the country. The large number of visitors, representatives of foreign lands and Government officials add to our problem."

"Capt. Milton D. Smith, traffic division commander, suggested a system of requiring special examinations for "repeaters."

"If a driver constantly violates the law and his record shows repeated offenses," he said, "that driver should be examined for his mental and physical fitness behind the wheel."

Speaking for the Police Court judges, Judge John P. McMahon agreed to co-operate in accident reduction efforts.

"If we can accomplish our purpose," he said, "these meetings will be time well spent."

D.C. Father, Wed 'at Gun Point,' Fights Peru Paternity Claim

A Washington businessman, who has considered himself happily married for several years and has a daughter old enough to attend school, yesterday had to ask the United States District Court to set aside a marriage he contracted 12 years ago with Senorita Mercedes de la Quintana Viuda de Ludewig, a Peruvian beauty.

Lewis M. Clarkson, 4800 Fourth street northwest, declared in charges filed by his attorney, James R. Murphy, that he was forced to marry the senorita "of questionable reputation" at the point of several Peruvian guns and that in 1928 his friends in Lima told him the woman was dead.

While the papers are being filed in court, Clarkson and his family are "on business" in New York. The attorney is certain that the present Mrs. Clarkson knows nothing of the South American entanglements.

Two weeks ago the years from 1922 to 1926 rose up to haunt the former commercial representative of an American corporation in Peru, now a Washington accountant. The senorita—now in her middle forties—served notice that the American must provide support for their two children, who she claims are American citizens.

Clarkson rushed to Murphy with a story so shot through with revolutions and intrigue that movie audiences would classify it as a thriller which never could have happened.

He did marry the senorita, he said, and he did register the children with the American consul as his own; but this is how it happened:

In 1924, two years after he went to the country, he was a visitor in the home of the well-known senorita—whom he declares was intimate with Augusto B. Leguia, Peruvian dictator, and possibly other Peruvian officials. He visited her home two or three times but was on purely formal terms with her, he claims.

Ordered to Wed Her.

Early in 1925 a representative of Leguia came pleading with him to marry the woman, who was with child. Clarkson refused. A week later a military escort arrived to tell him that his wedding was waiting at the church and that unless he came along he would meet an "accidental" death during the night. He attended the wedding, the dictator standing close by throughout the ceremony.

He went to live at the home of Mrs. Clarkson and about two months later a child was born. He lingered for a while and left to seek other quarters. About a year later another child was born.

Clarkson believed he would never be able to escape from the country, but in 1927 his chance came. Leguia was having trouble with Bolivia. The American made Leguia believe he would be able to secure United States support in behalf of Peru and was permitted to leave—after he had registered the children.

Third Child Born.

Murphy said yesterday that his client does not know the exact ages of the children, their names, nor their sex. Another child was born to the former beauty later, but even she will not claim it belongs to Clarkson, he said.

"We have reasoned that she is now fortyish, possibly not so attractive as formerly, and cut off from other sources of revenue. It looks like attempted blackmail," Murphy declared.

The Leguia government was overthrown in 1930 and the dictator's escape from the country blocked. He was sent into exile and is now dead.

Neighbors who share the apartment house with the Clarksons described them as apparently quite happy and the parents of a little girl who last year attended the District schools.

"Mrs. Clarkson said yesterday that they were going to New York for three or four days while her husband attended to some business matters."

Murphy pointed out that if the South American marriage is annulled the status of the children in Perus will be unaffected.

"This case has nothing to do with them. According to the law, I believe, they must live here before they are 18 years of age and then apply for citizenship," he declared.

American in China Contracts Cholera

Shanghai, Sept. 14 (AP).—The dread epidemic of cholera sweeping war-shocked Shanghai today struck down its first American victim. He is H. A. Ferguson, 34, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Ferguson, whose wife is a Russian, came to Shanghai several years ago and has been working on English language newspapers as a proof-reader. Doctors at the Russian isolation hospital in the French Concession said his condition was serious.

Tax Limit Campaigns Held Threat to Credit

Boston, Sept. 14 (AP).—Organized campaigns by real estate interests for fixed tax limits, Charle J. Fox, city auditor of Boston, constitute the "most serious menace to the stability of municipal government and finances in this country."

Fox made his assertion at the thirty-second annual conference of Municipal Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada.

Rural Schools Face U. S. Rule, Governors Fear

Executives Concerned Over the Influence of Federal Aid.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 14.—Governors of 20 States met in a penthouse overlooking the Atlantic Ocean today and spoke their minds about the possibility of Uncle Sam's long arm reaching into the little red schoolhouse.

Most of the Governors expressed fear that very thing would happen when the States began accepting from the Federal Government financial aid for their schools.

Already before Congress is a bill to appropriate $100,000,000 for the aid of community schools. Gov. Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina said the grant would call for some Federal regulation. He predicted that within ten years the amount would be raised to $5,500,000,000 and asked, "Then what?"

Johnston Opposed.

Said the Governor of South Carolina, Olin D. Johnston:

"We should be as jealous of individual liberty in education as we are of individual liberty in religion. Mass production of citizens will end all that citizenship implies."

Any Federal rules would necessarily be of "rigid uniformity," he said, and "South Carolina will always demand its rights to segregate the whites and the blacks. We would not condone anything which approaches racial equality."

The Governor of North Carolina said that for 30 years the Federal Government had gradually encroached upon the State governments. First it was highways, he said, and then relief; then agriculture and utilities—now possibly education.

Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana said as soon as a young man in his States gets a good education at public expense he heads straight for big business and industrial centers.

Townsend For It.

"Why shouldn't the Federal Government tax those wealthy centers for money to help rural schools? I'm not afraid of the Federal Government meddling too much in education," Townsend added. "The Federal Government certainly never did the State of Indiana any harm when it meddled with roads. Of course, it wanted to know how its money was being spent, but there is nothing unreasonable about that. The local school boards will still control the curricula."

Gov. Lewis O. Barrows of Maine wasn't convinced:

"I most certainly fear control of education by the Federal Government. Our Maine schools have their own problems and are not at all comparable, for instance, to those of the Southern States.

League to Rush Its Approval of Palestine Split

Arabs Reported Ready to Fight to Keep Their Land Intact.

By the United Press.

Geneva, Sept. 14.—The League of Nations Council arranged tonight to approve quickly the partition of Palestine into sovereign Jewish and Arab states so that a new British royal commission may be sent to the Holy Land to draft a detailed plan.

The council directed a special subcommittee, including delegates of Latvia, Rumania and Sweden, to submit a resolution on the partition plan at the council's next session, probably tomorrow or Thursday. The resolution is expected to authorize Great Britain to work out a detailed plan for putting the controversial partition into effect.

The British foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, appeared before the council to ask approval of the proposal to give Jewish colonists approximately one-third of the Holy Land and the Arabs two-thirds. The British would retain a mandate over the holy places of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth.

Arabs Ready to Fight

Damascus, Syria, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The Arab world is ready to fight to retain Palestine as an Arab country, representatives to the Pan-Arab Congress at Bloudan warned at the conclusion of their meeting tonight.

"The Arab world and Britain are at the parting of the ways," they said as the congress rejected in strong terms the proposed plan of the British royal commission to partition Palestine into Arab and Jewish states.

Ethiopia Fights, Selassie Says.

Geneva, Sept. 14 (AP).—Exiled Emperor Haile Selassie today told the League of Nations his East African domain still is bitterly resisting Italy's army of occupation.

From his refuge in England the Negus sent a letter to the League asserting that Il Duce's legions occupy merely "strategic points" in Ethiopia. Italy claims complete dominion.

Italian exploratory columns sent into the interior have been withdrawn, said Selassie, because of hostility of the natives who severed communications and prevented arrival of supplies.

Chaco Crisis Averted.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 14 (AP).—Seizure of two neutral military observers of the Chaco Peace Commission by Paraguayan troops was settled today. It was understood that Paraguay replied, in answer to a conference protest, that the detention was an error.

3 Slovak Society Heads Must Repay $212,135

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14 (AP).—Three officers of the National Slovak Society of the United States were held responsible today for $212,135 in misappropriated funds and interest of the society.

Common Pleas Court Judge Thomas H. Marshall ordered George Tomascik, president; John A. Callo, secretary, and the estate of Anton S. Rodak, former treasurer, to pay that amount and the costs of the suit brought by the society.

Hunt for Dancer Given Up.

Paris, Sept. 14 (AP).—Miss Ida Sackheim and Henry De Koven, aunt and brother of Jean De Koven, young Brooklyn dancer who has been mysteriously missing since late in July, decided today to abandon the search for her. They booked passage for New York.

W. Va. Motorcade to Visit In Eastern Panhandle

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 14.—The Rev. John Ward Brown, this city, president of the Eastern Panhandle Association, today announced a motorcade from the Upper Monongahela Valley of West Virginia, including 10 counties, but chiefly from Preston County, will make a two-day visit to this Eastern Panhandle on September 30 and October 1.

The EPA extended an invitation to the Prestonians and their friends to make a return visit when the EPA stopped at Kingwood in June during a three-day motor tour into northern West Virginia.

"Thomas Re-grew My Hair"

Says Mr. Donald McClelland

• • • These photographs show three views of Mr. McClelland before he started Thomas treatment, and three views taken 5½ months later. Note that all of the bald spots have been completely filled in with new, vigorous, growing hair. Mr. McClelland's baldness was of the type known as "alopecia areata".

All of the 14 local causes of baldness (responsible for almost 90% of all baldness) respond to the Thomas method of treatment. Dandruff disappears; abnormal hair-fall stops; and hair growth is promoted on the thin and bald spots. Guess work is banished when you place your scalp problem in the hands of a Thomas expert. He first determines the exact cause of your hair loss, and then adapts the reliable, proved Thomas treatment to overcome that cause. Your scalp is soon restored to a normal healthy condition, conducive to the natural growth of hair.

More than 1600 other persons are benefiting each day from Thomas treatment. You, too, can have a good head of hair. No charge is ever made for consultation or a complete scalp examination (always in private). Call today and learn the truth about your hair and scalp.

Murray Denies 'Alien Trend' in Plea for C. I. O.

Printers' Union Hears Steel Organizer Reply to Talk by William Green.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14.—The "other side" of America's trade union controversy—that of the Committee for Industrial Organization—was related today to delegates attending the eighty-first convention of the International Typographical Union by Phillip Murray, silver-haired lieutenant of John L. Lewis' organization.

Murray's address followed by a day the speech of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Interposing arguments of points stressed by Green into his story of accomplishments of the C. I. O., its purposes and the "why and wherefore" of its being, Murray, chairman of the C. I. O.'s powerful steel workers organizing committee, asked:

"Is there anything alien in legitimate constructive American labor unions?"

Shouted Response.

There were cries of "No."

Murray went on:

"If there is, then Lewis is an alien—so am I—and so are you."

Murray a moment before asserted Green had charged the C. I. O. with "alien trends."

Criticizing the A. F. L. for its refusal to organize workers along industrial lines, Murray said in 15 months the S. W. O. C. had secured "economic freedom" for steel workers and had abolished company unions, destroyed employes' plan of representation" and that "control of mill towns had been wrested from steel corporations.

By the Associated Press.

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 14 (AP).—A National Labor Relations Board hearing on charges of unfair labor practices against the Bethlehem Steel Co. was told by a witness today that workmen passed through a strike picket line in automobiles bearing Red Cross flags.

Describing the steel strike of last summer, at the company's Cambria works, Edgar Rupert, a steel worker, said two cars, each carrying one or two workers, entered the downtown Gautier gate of the mill.

The Steel Workers Organizing Committee called the strike last June 11 in an attempt to win union recognition.

On cross examination, asked what he understood to be the reason for the Red Cross flags, the witness answered quietly:

"I guess they were afraid somebody might hurt those fellows."

John Ignatz, a picket captain during the strike, previously testified that Mayor Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, who headed a "back-to-work" movement, had given him "a poke in the ribs" and dispersed his pickets.

The mayor said earlier today that he had "purposely ignored" a labor board subpena to testify yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

An American Federation of Labor leader said yesterday the recent election victory of an A. F. of L. affiliate in the National Electric Products Co.'s plant at Ambridge, Pa., was a "rebuke to the administrative conduct of the National Labor Relations Board."

D. W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the workers' margin of 105 votes over a C. I. O. affiliate in collective bargaining balloting would have been greater "if a sane environment had existed for the election."

Closed Shop at Stake.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP).—Two sharply divergent views by New Jersey vice chancellors on legality of the "closed shop," important goal of labor unions, were in court records today.

Taking a stand varying from a previous ruling by Vice Chancellor Maja Leon Berry that a strike for a closed shop was "unlawful," Vice Chancellor John O. Bigelow declared today such a strike legal if it were a union "protective measure."

Bigelow distinguished the issue between a closed shop sought by a union as a protective measure and one aimed to create a "monopoly of labor."

Stating Berry's decision would mean "the absolute death of unionism," 50 A. F. of L. and C. I. O. unions joined hands last July in forming labor's Anti-injunction League to appeal the ruling.

Peace Plan Indorsed.

San Francisco, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union today indorsed a peace plan whereby President Roosevelt would appoint a commission to mediate the C. I. O. organization's dispute with the teamsters' union over control of the docks here.

The suggestion, made at the California State Federation convention at Long Beach by George Kidwell, San Francisco trade union leader, came as the C. I. O. and American Federation of Labor forces battled for control on four industrial fronts on the West Coast.

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 14 (AP).—A truce brought quiet today in the violence-punctuated dispute between Spicer Manufacturing Co. employes affiliated with the C. I. O., and those belonging to the Mechanics Educational Society of America.

Seven persons were arrested in clashes late last night and today as C. I. O. broke through M. E. S. A.'s pickets; then 4,000 Willys-Overland and 3,000 Electri Auto Light C. I. O. unionists marched to the automobile parts plant at noon in a protest demonstration.

Evidently warned that C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers' "army" was coming, some 50 M. E. S. A. pickets dispersed from around the plant and soon a conference of all sides was called. Police Lieut. Charles Roth said the meeting brought agreement that neither side will picket the plant, nor any other plant in sympathy with the Spicer strike.

Steubenville, Ohio, Sept. 14 (AP).—The National Labor Relations Board turned its inquiry today to the testimony of a Weirton Steel Co. employe representative that a former Labor Board regional director was seen with two C. I. O. organizers in Weirton last fall.

Norman E. Moore, secretary of the employe representation plan at Weirton Steel, which is charged by the Labor Board with intimidating its workers against joining the C. I. O., told the N. L. R. B. hearing that he saw Ernest C. Dunbar at a mill gate with Kenneth Koch and Steve Barron, who were distributing union literature.

Dunbar at the time was Pittsburgh regional Labor Board director and Koch and Barron are organizers with the Committee for Industrial Organization. Dunbar has since resigned.

May Get Jobs Back.

Boston, Sept. 14 (AP).—The statement that 22 former workers of the Ford Co.'s Somerville plant would be ordered reinstated with back pay, if it was proved they were discharged because of Committee for Industrial Organization activities, came late today from Federal Examiner James C. Batten.

He made that assertion at a hearing on charges by the National Labor Relations Board that the firm violated the Wagner labor act granting collective bargaining rights to workers.

Phillips Asks "Purge."

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 14 (AP).—Representative Alfred N. Phillips, jr. (Democrat), a supporter of much New Deal legislation, wrote to President Roosevelt today asking him to "purge the National Labor Relations Board of further relationship with Communists."

The Congressman charged that 'Communists" and "carpetbaggers" made a "farce and a disgrace" of recent hearings conducted by the NLRB on union employe complaints against the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co., of Stamford.

Farmers Block Power.

Bellevue, Ohio, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Lake Erie Power & Light Co., faced tonight a court test with a group of farmers who felled 27 poles in an effort to avert construction of a new power line. The farmers are seeking to obtain service, instead, from the Government's rural electrification administration.

17 States to Sign Pact on Paroles

By the Associated Press.

Seventeen States will join a compact this month providing reciprocal supervision for paroled prisoners, Justice Department officials said yesterday.

The pact will be signed at Kansas City September 24-25 at a two-day meeting of the Interstate Commission on Crime.

It will bind the 17 States to supervise native citizen paroled from prisons in other States. The commission sponsored the pact, contending it would eliminate "sundown" paroles in which out-of-State prisoners are paroled with the understanding they will cross the State line by sunset.

States expected to sign the compact include Arizona, California, Delaware, Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

King Expects Cut In Tax Exemption

By the Associated Press.

Senator King (Democrat), Utah, expressed the opinion yesterday that Congress will find it necessary to lower income tax exemptions so as to reach more taxpayers.

Tax revision is one of the Administration's proposals for the next Congress session.

King said he would propose legislation to "codify and simplify" the tax laws, repeal of the capital gains tax and to make material changes in the undistributed profits tax.

He asserted the capital gains levy had not produced substantial revenue and had retarded business activity, while the undistributed profits tax should be changed to permit corporations to make deductions in case where they are prevented by special circumstances from declaring dividends.

King, ranking majority member of the Senate Finance Committee, returned from Utah to begin a two weeks' study of the tax laws. He said he planned to confer with Treasury experts who are preparing recommendations for the Administration's bill.

First Lady Studies Duties of Jurors

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP). Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says she "doesn't know a thing" about the duties of woman jurors, but she is learning.

The First Lady of the Land, one of 200 interested "students" at a school for women jurors conducted here yesterday by Dutchess County Judge J. Gordon Flannery, declined an offer to address the forum.

"Oh, no, thank you," she replied, "I don't know a thing about this."

The school was arranged to acquaint women with court procedure in preparation for jury service under a new State law effective September 1.

Texan Says Cotton Is Selling at a Loss

Austin, Tex., Sept. 14 (AP).—The Federal method of making loans on cotton received sharp criticism from J. E. McDonald, Texas State commissioner of agriculture, today.

McDonald said the Government had so surrounded the loans with red tape that few farmers were taking advantage of them despite the fact their cotton was selling below the cost of production.

"If the agreemnt made in Washington when the Southern commissioners of agriculture were up there had been carried out by the Department of Agriculture and the Commodity Credit Corporation," he said, "farmers would be assured of 12 cents for their cotton.

"As it is, the terms of the 1937 Commodity Credit cotton loan are such that although middling cotton is selling considerably below 9 cents, no cotton at all, so far as I can find out, has been borrowed upon. Instead, farmers are selling their cotton at much below the price at which the loan was set and are taking tragic and unnecessary losses."

Body of Air Victim Ignited in Wreckage

Grapeland, Tex., Sept. 14 (AP).—The body of Cadet Flier Guy Edgerton, apparently saturated with gasoline from his wrecked plane, caught fire in the wreckage today and was partly burned.

The plane, missing two weeks, was found late yesterday in a thickly wooded section 12 miles southwest of Grapeland.

D. C. Firm Is Low Bidder.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—The State highway department announced today the Roberts Paving Co., of Washington, was low bidder for construction of 5.9 miles of reinforced concrete and gravel roadway on Route 299 leading to the free bridge being built in Norfolk County. The Washington firm bid $144,887.72.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

(The idea of a National Holdup Week, suggested by a correspondent in yesterday's column, is continued today.)

Many players have learned from experience that it is not always wise to take the ace of a suit on the first round at notrump. Few of them, however, realize that it is often unwise to take the first trick in a suit, even when that suit contains two sure stoppers. Perhaps their reason is that they may later hold up after winning the first trick; perhaps the idea of holding up with a double stopper has simply never occurred to them. That such a holdup is nevertheless often necessary is perhaps best established by a sample hand:

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 7 5 4 ♡ K J 8 ◇ Q 10 9 6 ♣ Q 10 5
♠ J 10 9 3 2 ♡ 6 5 4 2 ◇ 8 3 ♣ A 9	North West East South	♠ K 6 ♡ 9 7 3 ◇ A 5 4 2 ♣ 7 6 3 2
	♠ A Q 8 ♡ A Q 10 ◇ K J 7 ♣ K J 8 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N T	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding is typical of modern notrump tactics. South's opening bid shows a hand containing from 4 to 5 honor-tricks, with at least three cards in each suit. North's raise shows approximately a trick and a half and invites South to bid game with any values above a minimum. Since South has 4½ honor-tricks and all suits stopped, he properly goes to game.

A count of the tricks available should inform South that the contract cannot be made unless both of the minor suits are developed. If East has both minor suit Aces, the contract probably cannot be lost; if West has both minor suit Aces, the contract cannot be made unless the spades split 4-3. If the Aces are split, as is more probable, only care is needed to insure the making of the contract.

By refusing to win the first spade, East can win the second spade trick and attack either minor suit in perfect safety. If he happens to knock out East's Ace first, East will have no spade at that point and cannot remove South's last spade stopper. If South happens to knock out West's Ace first, West will remove South's last spade stopper but will then be entryless, and his established spades will never make tricks.

If South wins the first spade, he can make his contract only by guessing which Ace West has. If he happens to start the clubs before the diamonds, West can win and knock out the spade stopper, but can never thereafter regain the lead. But if South should happen to attack diamonds first, East will win and return his last spade. The suit will then be established for West, and he cannot be prevented from gaining the lead with his Ace of clubs to run his spades, and defeat the contract.

'Wild' Night Life At Hot Springs Is Senate Fight Issue

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 14 (AP).—Night life at Hot Springs, Arkansas' famous health resort, promised today to provide a prime issue in the current campaign for the United States Senate.

Politicians for years have battled over the resort's policy, described as "wide open" and by defenders as simply "liberal."

As factions organized for the three-man all-Democratic race for the Senate seat of the late Joseph T. Robinson, the Arkansas Democrat charged "wide open gambling" had been resumed in Hot Springs.

Actively opposing the Senate bid of Gov. Carl E. Bailey, the paper linked its published reports with announcement by Hot Springs political interests they were backing the Bailey campaign.

Neither the Governor nor his rivals, Congressman John E. Miller and Thornesberry A. Gray, have said anything on the issue.

Only One Justice Ever Impeached

By the Associated Press.

History records only one official attempt to remove a Supreme Court justice from office.

In 1804 Samuel Chase, associate justice of the high tribunal was impeached for misconduct at trials of persons charged with violation of the sedition law. Tried by the Senate, he was acquitted twice on different counts.

The Constitution makes no specific references to impeachment of Supreme Court members. It merely provides that the justices "hlod their offices during good behavior" and, in another section, states that "the House of Representatives has the sole right to impeach officers of the Government, and the Senate to try them."

Baron Hunts Heiress To Sue for $100,000

Los Angeles, Sept. 14 (AP).—Baron Arturo Berlingieri, of Italy, led private detectives and a sheriff's officers today in a hunt for his estranged bride, Merry Fahrney Berlingieri, heiress to a patent medicine fortune, hoping to serve her with papers in his suit for annulment and $100,000 damages.

The quest was unsuccessful. The baron stated in his complaint that Merry was angling for a title when she married him at Merriman, N. Y., July 31, 1937. She filed suit against him in Chicago last week asking a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Chicago Bishop Fights Lifting Remarriage Ban

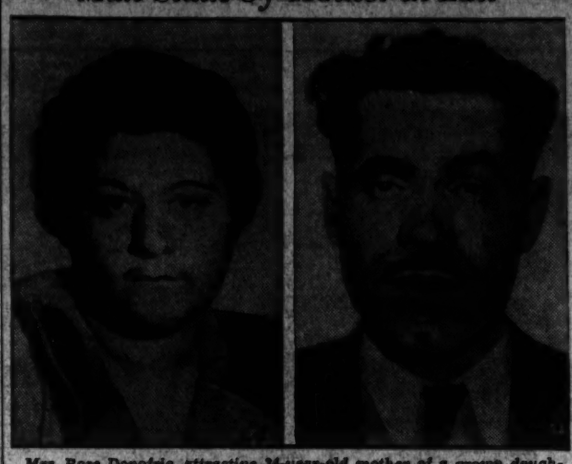
Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Bishop George Craig Stewart made it known tonight he would oppose the proposed lifting of the Episcopal Church ban on remarriage after divorce when the matter comes before the church's triennial convention in Cincinnati next month.

He asserted the proposals of the commission on marriage and divorce "would open the gate to a great many unfortunate situations." The commission is headed by Bishop Herman Page, of Detroit.

Hurricane in Atlantic 1,425 Miles From Miami

Miami, Fla., Sept. 14 (U.P.).—A tropical disturbance, attended by winds "probably of hurricane force," tohight was approximately 1,425 miles southeast of Miami, moving west or west-northwestward, the Federal hurricane warning system reportde.

Man Slain by Mother-in-Law



Mrs. Rose Donofrio, attractive 34-year-old mother of a grown daughter, killed her son-in-law, James Aiello (right), 37, at New Castle, Pa., because "he ruined my daughter's life." She was referring to her 18-year-old daughter, Teresa (left), who married Aiello in Cumberland, Md., last June. Mrs. Donofrio, wife of a well-to-do dairy owner, pleaded innocent to the slaying charge and her attorney said that he would invoke the "unwritten law" in her defense.

2 More Children May Share 'Lung'

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 14 (AP).—Two children, victims of infantile paralysis, faced the possibility tonight of having to share an "iron lung" at the University of Michigan Hospital.

The girl's condition was described as "very serious." At present she is occupying the apparatus alone. She is able to remain outside of it only for short times. Hospital attaches said that if the boy's condition becomes worse he will need the aid of the "iron lung," and that he and Nancy Jane may have to alternate in using it.

Chaplin Abandons Hobo for Serious Talking Portrayal

Hollywood, Sept. 14 (AP).—Charlie Chaplin announced today he was casting aside the buffoon in last year's derby hat and would appear in a serious, all-talking film.

A new Chaplin will make his screen debut in a year; a Chaplin without the oversized shoes and oversized coat; a Chaplin who will talk as the tramp never did.

Charlie has been toying with the idea for years. It is said he even has taken tests of himself as he appears on the street and with other get-ups.

Rush-Hour Throng Sees Firemen Fight G St. Garage Blaze

Between 10,000 and 15,000 persons witnessed a fire yesterday that caused an undertermined amount of damage to the Atlas Garage on G street, in rear of the City Post-office Building.

The alarm, turned in from the lobby of the Printing Office, came at the height of the rush hour and shortly after Government employes had been released for the day. Two alarms brought all fire apparatus from the center of town.

Believed to have started on the second floor of the building, which was used by Charles Tompkins as a temporary office, the fire was quickly extinguished and the 25 cars stored on the ground floor of the building removed by employes without damage. Charles Conner, owner of the building, said he did not know how the fire started.

July Silver Output 6,805,000 Ounces

New York, Sept. 14.—July silver production in the United States totaled 6,805,000 fine ounces, against 5,487,000 ounces in June, bringing seven months' production to 38,865,000 ounces, compared with 34,468,000 ounces in the like period of 1936, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today.

Stocks at refineries, including both domestic and foreign, at the end of July amounted to 1,127,000 ounces, against 862,000 ounces in the previous month.

Anarchists Seize Control of Loyalist Army Defending Gijon, Rebels Report

High Command Ordered Slain In Coup d'Etat

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border, Sept. 13.—Insurgents reported today Anarchists in Gijon had seized control of the Spanish government army there and ordered the execution of high government officers who "lost Bilbao and Santander."

The sudden Anarchist coup d'etat resulted in severance of relations with the central government, establishment of Belarmino Tomas as Austurian dictator, and imprisonment of the general staff of the government's Gijon army, insurgents declared. They said foreign military experts also were jailed.

The bold stroke came as an inland column of insurgent Gen. Francisco Franco's army continued its slow but successful advance south of the Europa Mountains in Leon province.

[Asturian Marxists were reported to have set fire to miles of forests in the 5,000-foot high mountains south of Oviedo, according to the United Press—Editor's note.]

Last Coastal Stronghold.

The insurgent column and others along the coast are seeking to join on a general assault on Gijon, last important government stronghold on the Biscayan coast.

One of the first acts of the Anarchists was to load two boats with prisoners with the warning they would be sunk if insurgents bombed Gijon again, the report asserted.

At Madrid insurgents ended a two weeks' calm by battling the west side of the city with heavy bombs and large mines.

Madrid defenders replied with machine guns and anti-tank shells. The government said positions around the town are unchanged.

Members of the government general staff in Madrid expressed the opinion that a new major offensive against Madrid will start before snow falls.

The same sources predicted that the insurgents will seek to cut Catalonia from other government held territory soon. This would isolate Barcelona and her important industries.

The Franco-Spanish border town of Portbou was attacked by insurgent bombs during the night. A railroad bridge was destroyed.

Apparently, the Aragon front was quiet.

U. S. Marines Help Stop Shanghai Strike Riot

Shanghai, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—U. S. Marines went into action with British ploice and soldiers today to quell a riot of 1,000 striking workers in the Chinese Fou Foong flour mill in the International Settlement.

The workers demanded a month's salary in advance because of war conditions and attacked the mill when the management refused their demand. Twenty-five were admitted to hospitals suffering from tear gas and scalp wounds.

At Los Angeles, final papers for the adoption of 6-year-old Alleene Genevieve Lamson were granted today to Mrs. Ruth Rankin Lamson, second wife of David A. Lamson, former Stanford University press executive, who was freed of charges of murdering his first wife after he had been sentenced to death. The Lamsons are shown in court.

U. S. Ships Forbidden to Haul War Cargo; Others Told They Aid Orient at Own Risk

officials refused to meet union demands for bonuses and indemnity insurance for members of the crew.

"There she sits and there she's going to sit," said J. E. Slater, vice president. "They asked a bonus of $250 and $25,000 life insurance for each man. You can imagine what our answer was."

He said it would cost more than 50 per cent of the entire pay roll to meet the demand. Slater insisted American export vessels had never been molested in Spanish waters and did not go into danger zones.

The National Maritime Union, the American Radio Telegraphists Association, the Master Mates, Mates and Pilots Association, and the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association joined in asking for a temporary rider in ship's articles providing for a $250 bonus and insurance of not less than $25,000.

The Maritime Commission will meet today to decide the actual effect of the President's proclamation on the Wichita. Commission sources indicated last night that the Wichita is the only Government-subsidized vessed to be affected by the order as far as they now know. The 36 other vessels directly operated and the 150 others leased by the Government are engaged in other shipping.

Japanese and Chinese embassies declined comment on the President's order last night.

The National Maritime Union's Washington representative, Ralph Emerson, said last night that New York headquarters had told him the Wichita seamen would probably begin a sit-down strike in San Pedro unless they were promised war bonuses.

Restates Aversion to War.

During his press conference the President had repeated his statement of Saturday at Hyde Park—that the Government's policy will use every possible means of keeping this counrty out of war.

The President's statement last night night said in full:

"Merchant vessels owned by the Government of the United States will not hereafter, until further notice, be permitted to transport, to China or Japan any of the arms, ammunition or implements of war which were listed in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937.

"Any other merchant vessels, flying the American flag, which attempt to transport any of the listed articles to China or Japan, will, until further notice, do so at their own risk.

"The question of applying the neutrality act remains in status quo, the Government policy remaining on a 24-hour basis."

Seamen Still Want Bonus.

New York, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—National Maritime Union spokesmen tonight said President Roosevelt's order barring United States owned ships from carrying war material to the Far East would not affect their demand for a $250 bonus for every seaman sailing into either the Far Eastern or Spanish war zones.

Three freighters, the Excello, Exchange and Examiner, of the American Export line, were due tomorrow and will be tied up as soon as they arrive, the union said. The S. S. Excambian also is due from the Mediterranean via Boston and will face similar action, the union announced.

Ships Sent for Baggage.

Shanghai, Sept. 14 (AP).—Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commandant of the United States Asiatic fleet, announced today that two Navy Transports would be sent to Manila for trunks and other personal effects held up by baggage restrictions when Americans were hurried from the trouble zone.

Further assistance was given by Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner of the Philippines, who sent a representative to supervise shipments on the transports Chaumont and Gold Star two weeks hence.

Consul Order Irks Tokyo.

Tokyo, Sept. 14 (AP).—Japan's foreign office announced in angry language today that "Moscow has dared to notify the Tokyo government" that it must take its consuls away from Odessa and Novosibirsk.

This, said the communique, was in spite of the terms of an agreement of 1925, under which each power was permitted nine consulates in the other's country.

Japan thereupon is closing the consulates, today's announcement said, but "declared its reservation of rights."

Jews' Protection 'A Christian Duty'

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP).—Dr. Oscar Mees, Lutheran minister from Canton, Ohio, told his colleagues in convention today "the first duty of the Christian is to oppose all antisemitism and protest against persecution of the Jew."

Convention delegates who represent American Lutherans in six Eastern States and Canada heard their committee on foreign lands report:

"Hitler in Germany is experiencing what many another ruler before him has discovered, that the Church of Christ is the one institution which cannot be compelled to bow the knee to earthly authority."

Castle Joined Franco Abroad, Says Mother

Declares No Law Violated in Enlistment; Letter Tells of Injury.

Mrs. Harriet Bayne Castle, of Oxon Hill, Md., and prominent in Capital society, yesterday said her 22-year-old son, Guy, wounded in the last big Madrid offensive, had not joined the Spanish rebel forces here in defiance of neutrality laws.

Castle, according to his mother sailed from New York June 18, on the S. S. Scythia, bound for distant ports in the Mediterranean and North Africa and "interested only in travel and his health."

"He was recovering from a severe illness. As far as I know he had no intention of joining the Spanish fracas then," the mother said.

Mrs. Castle said she received three letters from her son since then. One was from London, mailed in early July; the other from Gibraltar some weeks later.

"Only then did he tell me he was leaving for Spain to join the forces of Gen. Franco."

Yesterday's letter—the third and last—bore the stamp of the Military Hospital at Calatayud, Saragossa, insurgent base. It was heavily censored. The date was smudged and could not be deciphered. It revealed that Guy had joined the Spanish Foreign Legion in Seville, July 9, and that he had been "fighting continually around Madrid" until his injury.

"He saw the worst of the Madrid fighting," Mrs. Castle said yesterday. "He was active in the last big offensive and on the Jarama River sector."

In his letter Castle said:

"While fighting at the front in the Legion, I was wounded in the leg, but here I receive good care from the nurses and the doctors are excellent. My stay is indefinite."

Well known in Washington, young Castle is a graduate of St. Alban's School and served for three years in the Marine Reserve Corps. This spring he worked as a reporter on a Washington paper. His mother is the widow of Commander Guy W. S. Castle, U. S. N.

French Airliner Attacked.

Madrid, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Rebel aircraft today attacked an airplane of the Air France line flying from Marseille to Barcelona, loyalist officials announced tonight. The plane was said to have been damaged by machine-gun fire.

Tokyo Confident World Will Ignore China Plea

Military sources asserted that Japan's mainland armies had not attacked noncombatants.

Japanese Storm Five Fronts; Chinese Doggedly Resist Foe

and there was a lull along the International Settlement front until dawn when a new Japanese drive was started towards Kiangwan. A Japanese spokesman said that Lieut. Gen. Iwane Matsui, Japanese commander, had ordered Kiangwan to be occupied during today. He said Japanese artillery was bombarding the district beyond the village of Tianlohsi which Japanese troops had occupied. Tianlohsi is two miles northeast of Kiangwan.

Chinese also reported hand to hand fighting around the village of Yunganchiao to the northwest.

In North China, three Japanese armies continued to advance along the three railway lines which lead into the Peiping-Tientsin area, northwest of Peiping, on the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway, they were over-running northern Shansi Province and were ready to strike south from Tatung-fu toward the provincial capital, Taiyuan-fu, and westward into Suiyuan Province.

[Chinese asserted they had recaptured Kalgan, most important city in Chahar Province, and denied Japanese claims to the capture of Tatung, strategic Shansi Province rail point, according to the Associated Press—Editor's note.]

Southwest of Peiping, on the Peiping-Hankow railway, they kept up continuous pressure on the Chinese advanced lines while their airplanes bombed the important railway junction of Shihchiachuang, south of Chinese headquarters in Paoting-Fu.

To the east of the Peiping-Hankow line, on the Tientsin-Pukow-Nanking railway, the Japanese had reached Tsangchow.

It was indicated this army, under Lieut. Gen. Rensuke Isogai, might swing westward from Tsangchow in an effort to hem in an estimated 200,000 Chinese troops in the Paoting area.

Planes Bombed Towns.

The Japanese announced a week ago the two drives southward from the Peiping-Tientsin line were designed to clear all major Chinese military groups out of southern Hopei Province, and it appeared today this plan may be near success.

In South China, Japanese planes and warships bombarded a dozen towns and villages near Canton. These operations apparently were designed to prevent the southern provinces from sending armies into the Central China area to reinforce the estimated 400,000 Chinese troops already in the Yangtze Delta.

[Chinese shore guns and planes drove off the ships, the Associated Press reported.—Editor's note.]

Japan has announced her determination to smash organized military resistance throughout all China and military experts said this means Tokyo is prepared for a campaign which well may last for a Chinese military headquarters here announced last night that its new defense line begins in the North Railway Station in Chapei, within rifle shot of the U. S. Marines' line on the north border of the Anglo-American area of the International Settlement.

German military advisers are urging the Chinese to fall back 20 miles farther to their main position in the Soochow lakes region.

The Anglo-American area of the Settlement and American and other foreign warships continued in great danger as Chinese batteries in the North Station area will continue pouring shells over district in an effort to hit Japanese warships anchored in the Whangpoo River.

Honolulu, Sept. 14 (AP).—One hundred United States Marines were ordered today to leave for the Shanghai war zone from Pearl Harbor Naval Station September 25 on the transport Henderson. They will relieve Far Eastern units.

Order Depresses China.

Shanghai (Wednesday), Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Chinese government officials were disheartened today at President Roosevelt's order preventing ships owned by the United States Government from carrying arms or ammunition to China or Japan and warned other American-owned vessels that they carry such cargo at their own risk.

A high Chinese official in Nanking, to whom the United Press telephoned the news, said that "whatever purpose may have inspired this order, its effect is to help Japan and hurt China."

Tokyo Praises Order.

Tokyo (Wednesday), Sept. 15 (U.P.). President Roosevelt's order banning shipment of arms and munitions either to China or to Japan aboard United States Government-owned vessels today was understood by those close to official circles to be "highly satisfactory" to Japan.

Japanese officials themselves reserved comment.

Reds Doom Seven In Terrorist Gang

Moscow, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Seven persons were sentenced to death at Kuibishev today on charges of "Trotskyist-Bucharinist" wrecking.

Thirteen others, including two women, were sentenced to prison on the same charges.

Those convicted were accused of spoiling machinery and mistreating, beating and robbing villagers to arouse indignation against the Soviet regime.

Clerical Bloodshed In Reich Is Feared By Vatican Organ

Vatican City, Sept. 14 (AP).—The semi-official Osservatore Romano declared in an editorial today that if the anti-Christian movement in Germany continues "sowing seeds of hatred and villification," the blood of priests may be shed there "as it was in Spain."

Prelates said Pope Pius read and approved the editorial, which warned that the Nazi Congress in Nurnberg has endangered the possibility of religious peace in Germany.

The editorial condemned the "fatal union of the State with forces hostile to Christianity." It said anti-religious writings in Spain preceded the strife.

Climbers Map Perilous Way Up Shiva's Wall

Scientists Hope to Find Rare Wild Life on Lofty Plateau.

By the Associated Press.

Grand Canyon, Ariz., Sept. 14.—Expert mountain climbers—vanguard of a scientific expedition on the trail of biological history—charted a perilous 1,200-foot ascent today to the Grand Canyon's "Forest in the Sky."

Between the climbers and the wild Shiva Temple, a land yet believed untrod by humans, lie an encircling chasm and a precipitous, eroded wall. The scientists must depend upon the experience of their climbers, who will lower ropes when once they have conquered the forbidding plateau.

While the climbers, headed by Walter A. Wood, jr., of the American Geographical Society, carried on their preliminary inspection, Dr. Harold E. Anthony, mammalogy curator of the American Museum of Natural History, and other scientists collected experimental equipment to be used when they reach their destination.

A signal fire, ignited by Supt. M. R. Tillotson, of Grand Canyon National Park, will herald the triumph. Then will begin an intensive exploration of the 275-acre "Forest in the Sky."

Edward D. McKee, chief naturalist of Grand Canyon Park, and discoverer of the unique Kaibab squirrel, believes it possible the party will find a species of animal dating back to the Ice Age of from 12,000 to 35,000 years ago when Shiva Temple first began its diversion from the mainland.

The party will make the climb with only meager food rations. Additional food and any necessary supplies will be dropped by parachute from the expedition's plane, piloted by Miss Amy Andrews. She was forced to establish her base on the south rim instead of on the north rim, as originally planned, because the 9,000-foot altitude at the latter location lowered the power of her plane on the takeoff.

Farley Declares For Mahoney in N. Y. Mayor Fight

By the Associated Press.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, formally threw his support yesterday to Jeremiah T. Mahoney, candidate for the Democratic nomination in the New York City mayoralty primary.

In a prepared statement released at the Postoffice Department here "in answer to numerous queries relative to the mayoralty fight in New York City," Farley said:

"I am an enrolled Democratic voter in the Fifteenth Assembly District in New York City where Jerry Mahoney is the leader. I am going to vote for Jerry Mahoney and his associates in the primaries on Thursday."

Liquor Board Asks Bar on 'Repeaters'

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday recommended to the District Commissioners that a regulation be adopted to block "repeaters" who take up the time of the board.

The proposed rule would bar any applicant from renewing his application within a year after it had been rejected by the board.

Boy, 12, Drowned At County Fair

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., Sept. 14.—Tragedy marked the opening day of the annual Shenandoah County Fair here today, when John Mumaw, 12-year-old Woodstock schoolboy, drowned in a cistern while a playmate looked on.

Nelson Evans, 14, a companion, said the youth removed the cover of the well, his foot slipped and he plunged into the cistern. He was brought to the surface 20 minutes later by Marshall Miller. After four hours of work by the Red Cross at the fair, the boy was pronounced dead by Dr. James H. Smoot.

Sugar Allotment Session Is Called

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Wallace estimated yesterday that sugar cane growers in the United States must produce 439,071 short tons of sugar in 1938 to meet the estimated quota for next year.

The estimate is a requirement under the new 442,783-ton sugar quota legislation. The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced a conference of cane growers to determine how next year's quota would be split up among factories and growers. The meeting, to which Louisiana and Florida growers have been invited, will be at Baton Rouge, La., September 20.

AAA officials explained that the new legislation permits a cane grower to produce any amount he desires, if he does not wish to share in the benefit payments. If he wishes to receive the benefit payments he must comply with the allotment schedule to be worked out.

August Living Cost Up A Tenth of 1 Per Cent

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—To feed and clothe himself and keep a roof over his head cost the average wage-earner in the United States one-tenth of 1 per cent more in August than it did in July, the National Industrial Conference Board reported today in its monthly survey of living expenses.

Edith Maxwell's 2d Appeal Put In Court's Hands

Staunton, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—Arguments were concluded today before the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in the case of Edith Maxwell, former Wise County school teacher, seeking to have set aside a murder conviction on a charge of killing her father, Trigg Maxwell.

The defendant was convicted at her first trial and sentenced to 25 years in prison. On an appeal the Supreme Court set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial, holding the evidence did not support a first-degree murder conviction.

The second jury that heard the case returned a second-degree verdict and fixed her punishment at 20 years in the penitentiary, the maximum under the law.

Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, conducted the argument for the defense of the 23-year-old girl. Joseph Kelly, assistant to the attorney general, argued for the State, although Attorney General A. P. Staples was present.

The defendant, who stands convicted of the murder of her father on July 20, 1935, is at liberty under $15,000 bond.

St. John's Enrolls 20 in New Course

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 14 (AP).—Stringfellow Barr, president of St. John's College, today said that 20 freshmen had enrolled for the new liberal arts program at the college.

They are included in a total of 79 students who have enrolled in the new freshman class. Those not taking the new program will take the regular work of the college.

About 228 students, including 150 upper classmen, are expected to enter the college when the academic year begins on September 21. Last year 248 students were enrolled, including 98 freshmen, at the same period before the school opening.

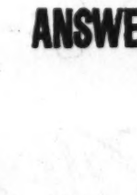
"IS IT GOOD BUSINESS TO BUY COSTLIER TOBACCOS FOR CAMELS?"—A QUESTION ASKED BY MANY PEOPLE

ANSWER: Camels are the Largest-Selling cigarette in America

"I have taken my share of big fish—marlin and tuna. I know what a rod-and-reel contest with these heavy fighters does to a man's energy. When I've gotten a big fellow safely landed, my next move is to light a Camel. A Camel very quickly gives me an invigorating 'lift.'" (Signed) REX BEACH, famous novelist and sportsman

"Camel's rich, delicate flavor appeals to a woman's taste. I smoke nothing else. So many of the girls in our crowd feel the way I do about Camel's being extra-gentle to the throat." (Signed) JOSELYN LIBBY, private secretary



"I can tell Camels are made from mighty fine tobaccos. There's a sight more goodness in 'em for one thing—real natural flavor that doesn't tire my taste. I wouldn't be caught on the high seas without my supply of Camels. No sir! Camels come in handy, too, at the table. I like my Camels at mealtimes. They help my digestion keep on an even keel." (Signed) GEORGE BUCKINGHAM, ship's engineer

Think of what this means! The greatest pleasure for the greatest number of smokers ever given by any cigarette

AND this didn't happen by chance. Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in America—and in the world—because they give a new delight to smoking—because people can and do appreciate costlier tobaccos. Smokers have learned that they can trust those finer tobaccos in Camels to give them more of what they want in smoking. And that makes Camel's policy of spending millions of dollars more for costlier tobaccos "good business."

Millions of men and women have given Camels the severest test—smoked them steadily—and have found that Camels open the door for full, natural smoke enjoyment. If you are not a Camel smoker, try them. And see if you, too, don't find vastly more pleasure in Camel's costlier tobaccos.

"I love the taste of a Camel. They're so mild. Even after steady smoking I notice no 'cigaretty' after-taste." (Signed) MRS. ANTHONY J. DREXEL 3D

"In this racing game, it's vital to know that you can rely on the mildness of your cigarette. That makes it Camels for me. Man, Camels have a mildness that's unbeatable, to my way of thinking!" (Signed) LOU MEYER, Indianapolis Auto Race winner

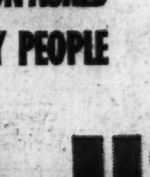
Tune in Benny's popular swingsters—hear his famous trio and quartette. Tuesdays at 8:30 pm E.S.T. (9:30 pm E.D.S.T.), 7:30 pm C.S.T., 6:30 pm M.S.T., 5:30 pm P.S.T., over WABC-Columbia Network.

"Camels? I smoke 'em all I've a mind to, day in and day out. My throat is easily irritated, but Camels, being so exceptionally mild, never have a harsh effect. They sure do hit the spot. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'" (Signed) CHARLES CHASE, locomotive engineer



"'For digestion's sake—smoke Camels,' is a rule with me. I think it is grand how Camels help me enjoy my food no matter how tense I may be. And Camels do not irritate my throat." (Signed) LENORE KIGHT WINGARD, America's premiere mermaid

COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN A MATCHLESS BLEND

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic. The skillful blending of leaf with leaf brings out the full flavor and mildness of these choice tobaccos.

Convention Insights:

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14.—All the delegates are in harmony on one thing that Representative Ramspeck made the most courageous speech of his political career when he attacked spoilsmen in Government here Monday, calling people by their names and giving the initials and home town addresses.

And some caught the wistfulness in Ramspeck's voice in this line: "Politicians are creating jobs for their constituents, and there will be more created as long as there is a spoils system." The militancy resumed when he came to "it is a vicious system; we get more and more people on the pay rolls we don't need."

They toured the city Monday, and the words, probably spoken a million times in Philadelphia, were heard: "So this is the Liberty Bell."

The Planetarium, a highspot of the tour, caught the imagination of a gentleman from the general accounting office. In a twinkling, the stars appeared, the moon came out and shortly thereafter the sun came up. Said the delegate: "This would be an awful place to come in while drunk; if you dozed for a mement you'd think you had slept all night" . . .

Green Is Missed.

Maybe William Green, long embattled, would be glad to know that the delegate from all sections really seemed sorry that he could not appear on the program. Truthfully, Mr. Green, the regrets seemed genuine and spontaneous.

President Stengle, in a brief flash back to his recent brethren, now with the U. F. W. A: "There is always room for honest differences of opinion in the A. F. G. E., and honest differences of opinion are always respected. There is not room in this organization, or in any other that wishes to survive, for disruptive and subversive activities" . . .

Maybe the reason Ramspeck detests the spoils system: He told this column yesterday that he has 30,000 applications for jobs in his files, and he seemed to think this would call for more dishing out than Santa Claus does on Christmas morning.

In all truth, the forthcoming mummers parade is attracting more attention from the delegates than some of the convention business. Incidently, no one thinks the convention will adjourn on Wednesday; they anticipate it for Thursday, midday.

The Department of Agriculture 1937 yearbook rounds out the work of the committee on genetics appointed by Secretary Wallace in 1933. The committee's task was to make a national and, to some extent, international survey of practical breeding and genetic research with those plants and animals that are important in American farming.

The present volume covers a wide field—garden vegetables, Northern tree and bush fruits, citrus fruits, flowers, nut trees, forest trees, forage grasss and legumes, Angora and milk goats, turkeys, ducks, furbearing animals, honeybees and "finally, that good friend of the farmer, his dog."

The present "Yearbook" and the 1937 edition together probably contain the most complete and up-to-date account of breeding work and genetic research in relation to farm plants and animals that can be found gathered in one place.

Both books are intended for two groups: (1) Readers who want to know what is going on in the field of plant and animal breeding in order to enlarge their understanding and to enable them to carry on their farming operations more intelligently, and (2) students and others who have, or expect to have, a closer concern with the science of genetics.

A limited number of copies of the 1937 book has been made available to members of Congress and to the Department of Agriculture. It also will be on sale through the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C., at $2 a copy.

MARY BROWN WARBURTON.

Reducing Pills Overdose Kills Wanamaker's Granddaughter

By the United Press.

New York, Sept. 14.—Mary Brown Warburton, granddaughter of the late John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, died today in her Park avenue apartment. A physician said she might have taken an overdose of reducing pills.

Miss Warburton, who was about 40, was found in the bathroom of her apartment by her maid. Her personal physician, Dr. Thomas Morrisey, tried for several hours to revive her with a pulmotor. He said his first impression was that she had suffered a heart attack.

Her parents, Maj. and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, were at her bedside when she died. The medical examiner's office claimed the body for an autopsy.

It was the second death in the family within a year. Miss Warburton's brother, Barclay, jr., was shot accidentally while hunting near Doylestown, Pa., last fall.

Miss Warburton was prominent in society in New York, Philadelphia and Paris. She frequently was hostess at parties attended by Broadway celebrities and Park avenue society.

Last night she joined with her parents and a brother, G. Edgerton Warburton, in a reunion celebrating their return from Europe. Maj. Warburton reportedly told her she was not looking well. She replied she planned to go to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for her health.

Miss Warburton, tiring of society in 1927, entered business and became manager of a company which introduced a new tea said to be effective as a reducing agent.

Her friends said they knew of no reason why she should have tried to reduce, as she had a comely figure and apparently did not worry about her diet.

Manville's Wife Finally Agrees to Divorce Playboy

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Tommy Manville got down to serious business today with his fourth wife, Marcelle Edwards, and made a "gentleman's agreement," it was learned, whereby she will go to Reno for a divorce.

The matter was settled at a conference at which Dr. William H. Bishop, an old friend of the asbestos heir, acted as mediator.

Marcelle wasn't there. On the telephone she said she would see her lawyers tonight and probably fly to Reno tomorrow. The amount of her settlement was estimated at about $200,000.

Dr. Hart Named As Coadjutor Of N. Y. Area

Bishop Freeman Expresses Hope St. John's Rector Will Not Accept.

In a special election, held in Trinity Church, N. Y., the Rev. Oliver J. Hart, D.D., rector of St. John's Church here, was chosen Coadjutor Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Central New York.

Dr. Hart, who last night was reported returning from a vacation in Castine, Me., was elected on the nineteenth ballot at the special election made necessary as a result of a failure to make a choice at a convention in the same church last May. If he accepts the post, Dr. Hart will become assistant to Bishop Edward H. Coley, of Utica.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D.D., Bishop of Washington, when informed of the election said, "Of course, I regard Dr. Hart as eminently fitted for the office, but I should sincerely regret his withdrawal from the Diocese of Washington and St. John's Parish."

One of the most eminent ministers in the South, Dr. Hart has been rector of St. John's Episcopal Church on Lafayette Square, the "Church of the Presidents," since April, 1934. He had formerly been pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Chattanooga, Tenn., for eight years. Last spring he was elected Coadjutor Bishop of Tennessee, but refused the post.

At that time Dr. Hart announced from the pulpit of his church, "I have declined the call, hoping that we can carry on the work done here in the last three years."

Dr. Hart, 45 years old, is a graduate of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., and General and Union Theological seminaries, New York City. Last May he was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws by Hobart College. He had previously received the degree of doctor of divinity from the University of Chattanooga and the University of the South.

Ordained deacon in 1916, Dr. Hart entered the priesthood the following year. He left the active parochial ministry in the early part of 1918 to join the armed forces of the United States, and later saw service in France as chaplain of the First Division.

Dr. Hart, who is married and has one son, returned to the United States in 1919 and became an assistant minister at St. Michael's Church, Charleston, S. C. Leaving St. Michael's, Dr. Hart went to Christ Church, Macon, Ga., as rector, and while there wrote a history of the famous church.

Pugh Predicts Fraud Arrests In Montgomery

Many High County Officials Are Summoned Before Grand Jury Quiz.

Arrest of four Montgomery County officials in connection with irregular accounts may follow a grand jury investigation next week to which many high county officials have been summoned, State's Attorney James H. Pugh declared yesterday.

An auditor's report, covering the period from July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937, has been in the hands of Montgomery County commissioners since September 3, Pugh said, and it is this report which will serve as a basis for the grand jury hearing scheduled to start September 24. The commissioners, however, said that the report reached them yesterday when they met and was forwarded immediately to the State's attorney.

Pugh said he would summon the following before the grand jury:

J. Oscar Foulke, manager of the county liquor control board; Forest Walker, county treasurer; County Commissioners Frank Karn, Robert Hagner, Richard Lansdale, Charles King and Paul Coughlin, and E. E. Wooden and William R. Walton, jr., accountants. Pugh pointed out that the summoning of these men automatically cleared them of any blame in the alleged shortages.

The State's attorney said that he did not believe the present grand jury would return indictments, but that arrests would follow its correlation of the facts and investigation of supposedly mishandled funds. He declared that he expected the jury to request a thorough audit of county accounts for at least three years back.

The officials and accountants will be asked to bring before the grand jury all records, memoranda and date of al audits during 1937, and county officers will be requested to produce fiscal year reports submitted by them to the board of commissioners last August, together with original letters of transmittal, Pugh said.

The Value Of Plain Speaking.

In his address before the annual convention of the American Federation of Government Employes Representative Ramspeck, chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, minced no words in denouncing certain members of Congress for hostility to the merit system. The attitude of Senator McKellar, ranking Democratic member of the Senate Civil Service Committee, was called the "greatest single menace to good government that exists in America today." Three of Mr. Ramspeck's colleagues in the House were also singled out for special unfavorable mention as friends of the spoils system.

Possibly it is unfair to denounce specific individuals as arch enemies of the merit system when Congress as a whole has been so singularly indifferent, if not actually hostile, to proposals for strengthening the civil service and eradicating spoilsmen.

It is, however, encouraging to find a convention of organized government employes turned into a forum for serious discussion of issues that vitally concern its members. Too often addresses delivered by public officials, especially political representatives of the people, consist of meaningless generalizations or vague pleasantries, neither interesting nor informing. Mr. Ramspeck's hard-hitting speech was a refreshing departure from this kind of oratory. It should stimulate constructive thought and discussion of plans for protecting the service against those who seek to undermine it.

As President Charles I. Stengle of the A. F. G. E. points out in his annual report, unions of government employes do not deal with personal employers but with acts of Congress and regulations having the force of law. Strikes and picketing, even if tolerated, would not change the statutes governing the terms and conditions of employment. If there are grievances, the way to remedy them is to bring them to the attention of the proper authorities and in final analysis to Congress.

An organization like the A. F. G. E. will perform a major service, not only for its own members but for the Nation, by intelligent support of those members of Congress who are working to raise the standards of the service and insure permanency of tenure. As Mr. Ramspeck indicates, its intervention will not be resented by those Congressmen who take the responsibility of their office seriously.

Nuremberg And After.

The Nazi conclave at Nuremberg, which came to an end Monday, was from all accounts an impressive spectacle. Such mass demonstrations are the forte of dictatorships. And through long practice the Nazis have learned to organize and handle them supremely well.

But the precision and self-confidence found in the ceaseless parades past the Fuehrer was notably absent in the speeches with which the assembled multitude was regaled. If somewhat less hysterical than those made at Nuremberg last year, these discourses were with rare exceptions mere repetitions of a theme overplayed in the past.

The keynote, now as before, was the poisonous quality of bolshevism, with Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, the high priest of Aryanism, contributing his special bit by adding the Confessional church movement and Catholicism to the list of National Socialism's enemies. And the advice which the Nazis gave to the outside world was similarly stale. It was to join forces with the Third Reich in defending "civilization" against the Red menace.

The plan is even more unconvincing now than last year. For this time one could sense that the Nazi leaders themselves are beginning to realize its shallowness. That may explain why Hitler and his subordinates found it necessary, on so many occasions during the week of festivities, to make sarcastic references to democracy. At times this theory of government was denounced as the inevitable prelude to communism. At other times it was scorned as a weak and decadent force without a future in a world divided between the rival ideologies of communism and fascism.

The growing indifference of the democracies to the clamor raised at Nuremberg is clearly more than a disappointment to Herr Hitler. For by persisting in their failure to be impressed by Third Reich policies, the democracies are blocking his expansionist hopes at a time when both the internal and external positions of Germany demand victories of prestige. The magic of verbal propaganda may now be increasingly neutralized by the potent counter-propaganda of tightening belts.

The Nazi regime has been able to offer the German people a series of striking successes in the overthrow of many parts of the Versailles Treaty. But a continuation of such triumphs is more difficult. There is Spain, of course. Yet even in Spain the Nazi investment is by no means safe from destruction. And it is an ominous portent that even while remaining aloof from the Iberian struggle Great Britain and France are showing clear signs of refusing to submit any longer to the blackmailing tactics of the totalitarian states.

The determination with which the two democracies are preparing to purge the Mediterranean of piracy is an event that casts its shadows before. Even Italy, to which Hitler made such flattering references, is not the altogether certain ally and loyal partner described in the frequent and flattering references to the Berlin-Rome axis. And on the other side of the world Germany's quasi-ally, Japan, is entangled in a Chinese morass from which she may not extricate herself very soon or very successfully. To tackle Russia at this time, either directly or indirectly, would seem, therefore, to be beyond Germany's capacity.

It is understandable, therefore, why the emphasis is more and more on colonies. Their vaunted economic value, were all Germany's pre-war colonies returned to the Reich, is demonstrably slight. But as prestige they would, at the present juncture, be a considerable asset.

The Nuremberg congress found the Third Reich at an unhappy cross-roads. It is hemmed in by its failing domestic program of autarky and by its diminishing power to threaten democracies whose rearmament is fast approaching its own. The dilemma is both dangerous and difficult, to be solved fundamentally only by a quality of statesmanship which has been none too common in the post-war world.

President Masaryk.

There is always the risk of a false parallelism in comparing the great figures of different nations. But it is entirely permissible for the people of Czechoslovakia to speak of Thomas Garrigue Masaryk as the George Washington of their country.

The similarity between the two men goes deeper than the fact that each inspired his people to weld a new nation amid the furnaces of war. It is not confined to the way a grateful people in each case placed the life of an infant republic in their leader's keeping. Masaryk, like Washington, was also one who in thought and action gave expression and direction to the spiritual qualities of his countrymen, and thereby made his people something more than they would have been without his leadership.

The stature of the first President of Czechoslovakia, dead at the age of 87, will not be appreciated if he is regarded merely as a political liberator. His deepest interest was in intellectual freedom. It was primarily the conviction that his people could not be free in this sphere under Hapsburg domination which led the young professor of philosophy into politics. And, ardent nationalist though he became, Dr. Masaryk never allowed himself to be a vulgar patrioteer. Like Washington, again, his sense of balance, his love of justice whatever the issue, his penetrating critical faculty never failed him.

It would be gross exaggeration to say that Czechoslovakia is strong today merely because of the firm political foundations which Masaryk laid. A large part of his triumph roots in the sturdy intelligence of the Czech and Slovak people, fitted by character, training and tradition for self-rule. But by giving scope to these abilities, and by guiding them skillfully in the construction of a liberal democratic republic, President Masaryk won the undying admiration of his countrymen.

His achievement was the greater because the methods employed were always modest, unassuming and reasonable. When blatant demagogues overthrew democracy in the great neighboring states of Italy and Germany, President Masaryk made no alteration in his temperate direction of policy. His quiet confidence in the strength of Czechoslovakia to serve as a bulwark against raging Fascist tides has been justified under the presidency of his brilliant aid and successor, Edward Benes. And the ease with which leadership passed from the older to the younger member of this famous team has given further evidence of Czechoslovakia's essential strength.

Masaryk, like Hitler and Mussolini, sprang from very humble origins. But the Czech leader was a scholar who brought freedom to his people by striking the shackles from their minds. Hitler and Mussolini, by contrast, were wage earners who have brought oppression by the calculated destruction of everything for which scholarship stands.

Compared with Berlin and Rome, Prague is still a provincial city. Compared with Germany and Italy, Czechoslovakia is a small and materially weak nation. But it is built on firmer foundations than either of the neighboring dictatorships. Its people, for all the menace of foreign aggression which hangs over them, are happier and more truly self-confident than the regimented Germans and Italians. They know that they are moving forward.

That this is true is to a large extent due to the temperate and skillful direction of Thomas Garrigue Masaryk. And when the calm perspective of history reduces the turmoil of the last two decades to clear proportions, his will be a name which will remain emblazoned as one of the greatest of his age.

Mixed Motives.

There is only superficial contradiction in the policy of first trying to cut down member-bank reserves and now endeavoring to expand them by releasing previously sterilized gold and buying Government obligations in the open market.

The credit policies of the Federal Reserve System are at all times determined primarily by the exigencies of deficit financing. If that fact is kept in mind secondary inconsistencies are not difficult to reconcile. So long as the budget remains unbalanced it is considered essential to maintain easy conditions in the money market, facilitating sales of Government bonds carrying low rates of interest.

About three weeks ago reductions were announced in Reserve Bank discount rates. This was meant to encourage member banks to borrow when in need of funds, as an alternative to selling their holdings of Government securities.

Without waiting to see what effect these reductions might have, the authorities have now acted in a way to discourage the borrowing which they said they would welcome by deciding to build up member-bank excess reserves. Moreover, release of "sterilized" gold by the Treasury will mean a partial reversal of the policy of impounding gold imports and partial neutralization of the efforts of the Federal Reserve authorities to cut down excess reserves.

The haste with which this latest change of policy was announced, and the fact that it followed a very sharp decline in stock market values, is significant. A sudden reversal of this sort is not satisfactorily explained as due solely or even primarily to a desire to avert an anticipated seasonal stringency in the money market, considering the extremely low rates now prevailing.

Indeed, when the reductions in central bank discount rates were announced a short time ago, it was generally assumed that the Federal Reserve authorities looked forward to a slight rise in open market rates. Otherwise, member banks would have had no inducement to borrow as an alternative to selling low-yield Government issues, when in need of funds.

However, the break in the stock market, and the increasing pessimism regarding the general business outlook, cannot fail to have worried the Federal Reserve authorities. Hence, no doubt, their decision to pump a little more credit into the banks, to provide assurances that interest rates will remain abnormally low, and to furnish support for the Government bond market. The failure of the stock market to respond instantaneously, as expected, to the psychological stimulus of the announcement is not surprising, in view of the deep-seated underlying causes for uneasiness and uncertainty as to the business outlook.

Business is undoubtedly active but the businessman is more concerned with future prospects than current records. And looking forward he sees reasons for anxiety. Restrictionist policies, designed to raise commodity prices, and mounting labor costs are cutting the profits of expanding business and helping to depress stock-market values. Heavy Government spending also gives rise to fears of augmented taxes while failure to balance the budget is another source of acute and growing anxiety.

The connection between impaired earnings prospects and the current decline in security values is strikingly revealed by the relative stability of certain high-grade railroad bonds, contrasted with the marked declines in quotations of junior issues and second-grade rail bonds dependent upon earnings to sustain their value. This showing indicates that the threat to rail earnings is a major cause of the decline in railway issues.

That threat, and increases in production costs affecting the profit outlook for various industries, are substantial "bearish" factors. They cannot be readily exorcised by cheap money or inflationary credit policies.

R As In Raw.

"Mensibus erratis vos ostrea manducatis" may be just poor Latin to most people, but it's a red rag to oystermen. For, freely translated, it's a phrase heard around the world, especially during the R-less months. It means that oysters should not be eaten except from September 1 to May 1. The old Romans, it seems, had a word for bluepoints in June, July and August and that word was "dangerous." And in spite of campaigns, slogans, and organizations such as the Eat-Oysters-in-Any-Month-You-Please-Club, this hangover from toga times persists.

Charles E. Jackson, United States Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries, maintains that this R-less theory is "just as silly as that fish should not be eaten with milk." Cook books take an on-the-fence attitude and say that in the summer oysters are as wholesome but not as toothsome. Sol seems to shrivel them up. Occasionally it's even possible to find an oysterman who will admit that these succulent morsels are no good until the water over their beds runs cold.

And so the battle rages. But why let it bother one these cool and crisp days? The only question that really matters now—or will matter for the next eight months—is whether to order them a la Newburg, fried, scalloped, creamed, or on the half shell as Nature obviously intended.

Favors For Farmers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is estimated that the wheat and corn crops produced this year in the State of Kansas will return to the farmers of this State a total of more than $225,000,000. In addition thereto is the regular revenue enjoyed from the sale of livestock, poultry, eggs and dairy products; also it is well to remember that Kansas landowners received for oil leases and royalties a total of at least $40,000,000.

Added to the above is a large total representing the sales from mines, flour mills and other manufacturing and commercial institutions, while the wealth of the State is indicated by total deposits in Kansas banks on January 1 of this year amounting to $173,311,531.51. Kansas is a typical prairie State so rich in resources and production as to inspire every one of its citizens with a deep feeling of pride.

What a strong sense of humiliation and shame must therefore come to every self-respecting citizen when our political representatives in Washington beg and secure from the National Government and at the expense of the people in States less favored by nature than ours, hundreds of millions of dollars to be paid as relief money to our indigent fellow citizens.

Under a proper system of government, such a combination of wealth and poverty could not exist. The single tax should remedy this evil. Meanwhile, the huge Federal appropriations for relief should be voted down, and local relief needs be taken care of locally.

Shooting Of Ambassador.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Concerning the shooting of the British Ambassador to China, take a look at the map where the fighting is going on outside Shanghai and then consider the following:

Anything coming down the only road from Nanking, the capital of China, headed for the rear of the Chinese army outside Shanghai would fall under only one presumption—it was something important to help that army.

This road has been machine-gunned and bombed for two weeks, and anything on it, headed for Shanghai, has been attacked.

There is no evidence that the British Ambassador notified either the Japanese or Chinese that he was coming, and would be at certain places, on the road at any approximate time, what his car looked like, how many cars there were (there were two), or what flags they would fly.

The Ambassador's car flew two small British flags "12 by 16 inches" from the front of the car. British and Chinese flags are both predominately blue and red and can be confused. Flying of false flags for protection is frequent in all fighting. A man in the air sees only the upper edges of a flag flying vertically. It was perfectly simple to cover the whole top of the car with a British flag and tie down the ends so that an airman could see what it was.

Summary: If someone heads into the back end of a battle without telling anybody that he is coming, and without competent indentification, and then gets shot, whose fault do you think it is?

Free Outlet To Readers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some of your readers, I fear, are growing a bit tired of the fruitless discussion of academic issues in The Washington Post. This may be applied both to the editorial writers and to the host of contributors who get a kick out of seeing their effusions in print.

Let us take a couple of fresh illustrations. In today's Post you editorialize on "Promotion in Pulchritude." In one line, at the end of course, you infer that most rational folks are "getting a little fed up with the whole silly procedure." True, but why dignify and help promote it through your editorial columns?

Not many days ago you editorialized on the vacant topic of the British relief system, seeking to draw invidious comparisons between what England, "a right little, tight little isle" did under given conditions and what was attempted to be done, sincerely and without prejudice, I am willing to assume, over this mighty empire of America. You had some comeback, of course, from irrepressible and prejudiced commentators. Yet the editor was exactly in the middle, and so was The Washington Post, when you had to resort to a foot note to explain or justify or defend your editorial dictum.

It is a fine thing for American newspapers to give reasonably free outlet to the opinions of their readers. But they should not, in any event, invite confusion by "confusion worse confounded."

The Klan Issue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Copeland, the Tammany candidate for Mayor of New York City in the coming election, must be hard pressed for support when an appeal has to be made for votes by an attack upon the Klan in the case of Justice Black's appointment to the Supreme Court. The attack shows to what extent some politicians will go to secure public office.

While attacking an American organization which supports Protestant principles of government against foreign influences opposed thereto, Copeland appears to have no scruples about accepting a nomination from Tammany Hall, which if not alien-minded, what is it? Most politicians of reputation would spurn a Tammany nomination

Justice Black is a member of the Supreme Court and from all appearances is likely to remain so. His membership in the Klan—if he is a member—has nothing to do with his fitness as a member of the court. The use of the Klan issue is far-fetched and can do its sponsors no good.

Job For Mr. Lewis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that John L. Lewis, the head of the C. I. O., has had his house painted by a member of Mr. Green's A. F. of L., I have not heard so much about Mr. Lewis.

The thought came to me that if Mr. Lewis might come out in the sticks and try to arbritrate (no rough stuff) the question between the katydids. There has been, as we all know, a dispute between them for years. Some say Katy did and others say Katy didn't; and be it far from me to try and settle the dispute. But if Mr. Lewis could settle this argument we poor souls in the sticks would feel under great obligations to him. As the katydids are a little green, he might be able to get them to join the C. I. O.

JASON CASKEY.

The Defense Of Shanghai.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Japanese militarists have found, though a little late, that the long-boasted march into Shanghai has not proved itself to be an easy, unopposed "walk-in" as in the case of Manchuria. Despite their years of military preparedness to conquer China and despite their authority in mechanized land, sea and air forces, the Japanese have thus far repeatedly failed in their long-heralded "big pushes" to drive all the Chinese troops out of the city. Following are some of the reasons for their fiasco:

Japanese arrogance—The Japanese, more fervently so among their jingoistic elements, have revered this characteristic as pride, prestige and success. But experience tells us that arrogance is synonymous with smallness and meanness. Inspired and influenced by their misinterpretation of the word the worshipers of the Rising Sun and Mikado have systematically penetrated China with their well-planned imperialistic program. Unfortunately for Japan, arrogance leads her warlords continually to belittle and underestimate the patriotism and the strength of modern rejuvenated China.

Military strategy—Although military experts the world over recognized the Japanese military machine as being modern and efficient in every respect, the surprising results of the month-old struggle in Shanghai do not seem to justify such universal recognition. Incessant aerial, naval and artillery bombardments of the invading armies have not done real destruction to the strategically constructed fronts of the Chinese defenders. Apparently superior Chinese military tactics are partly responsible for defeating Japan's series of formidable offensives.

Heroism—As a matter of fact the present life-and-death struggle locking the two Asiatic powers may be narrowed down to a struggle between Chinese nationalism and Japanese imperialism. There is no question about the bravery of the Mikado warriors. But it is artificial or coerced bravery, manufactured at the point of a revolver or bayonet from the Japanese high command. Heroism of the Chinese defenders, on the other hand, is spontaneous and voluntary on the part of the soldiers.

Chinese heroism symbolizes the flaming patriotic spirit of a modern, united China, whose sole aim it is to follow the teachings of Dr. Sun Yat-sen and the inspiring leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek so that the New China may gain an equal and just footing among the civilized nations of the world. It is little wonder, then, why the Chinese have surprised everyone by putting up such tenacious resistance against the Japanese invaders.

For military reasons unforeseen and unpredictable the heroic Chinese defenders may, as now reported, be forced to abandon temporarily their present line of defense for a "Hindenberg Line." But they certainly have proved to the entire world, especially Japan, that they can and will fight to the bitter end to protect China from Japanese wanton aggression. FURN S. YEE.

Gov. Workers In Business.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Much has been said in the press about Government in business, but little or nothing at all has been said about Government employes in business.

What I mean by the above is that many Government employes (especially in the Postal Service) use their spare time in soliciting insurance (both life and fire) thus coming into competition with those giving their entire time to these lines.

Some engage in other lines of endeavor. Government employes, as a rule, are well paid and some action should be taken, preventing them from making it difficult for legitimate solicitors to earn a living. Mr. Roosevelt seems to think that shorter hours would mean increased employment, but not so, if employes are allowed to use their spare time for lucrative pursuits.

The Post Impressionist

To Hell With Kimonas.

IT MAY sound a little farfetched, but I wonder if Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo and Myrna Loy, the lovely wretches, didn't have something to do with the Japanese invasion of China.

Before going any farther I might as well admit that one of my pet theories, on which I will discourse endlessly if allowed, is that the movies are a grim menace to the peace and happiness of mankind. Therefore it is very easy for me to see how Hollywood started all the trouble in the Orient. Let me try to make myself clear. If possible.

Everyone knows the Japanese invasion is an attempt to raise the standards of living for the Japs from a rice and water basis to a roast beef and watermelon basis. Japan, underfed and underpaid for centuries, has suddenly become acutely conscious of the fact life is not just a bowl of curries. A great national hunger for what the Nipponese suppose are glorious but everyday commonplaces in the western world has started them on their most enterprising national adventure since they fell in with a young man named Buddha.

The call of industrialism to them is the same call which sent the 49'ers westward, which sends Mussolini southward, and the Reich Ruhrward. Much as everyone loves China (and I am practically daffy about it), being a citizen of the United States which gobbled up Puerto Rico, California and most of the Southwest from helpless opponents, I hardly dare hold up the finger of scorn to the Japs, who are only imitating us and our Dear Cousins in England, who in centuries past really showed the world how to gobble what didn't belong to them.

The Japs behave the way they do, I contend, because they are imitating us in the manner of our past imperialism and trying to imitate us in our manner of present living. They want big league baseball, lots of territory, fingernail polish, ham and eggs, long pants, collar buttons, permanents and all the other beautiful whatnots of the western world. To hell with Kimonas. "We want two chickens in every garage!" they cry. "And we'll turn every Japanese household into a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer set, with music, too, if you give us time."

Having gone this far, I will now ask the reader one question: Where did those little rascals get all their high-flown ideas? Ah ha! You guessed it. They didn't get them from reading about them, because they can't read English any better than I can Japanese. Certainly! They got them from the movies.

America exports boatloads of films to the land of the cherry blossom every year. They are shown in countless little cinema palaces, I'll bet, in cities and villages dotting the whole chain of islands, and are viewed by millions of serious, slant-eyed citizens who go without a scrap of fish for Sunday dinner in order to save a couple of yen to see the Occident in a three reel feature.

• • • •

And what do they see? They see Joan Crawford and her wonderful tomato mouth, they see Myrna Loy with her lovely pug nose, they see Greta Garbo with her zweibach sex appeal, and most of all they see the glamorous backdrop of la vie Americaine, which is very plushy as portrayed in the movies.

Can't you just imagine a poor little Japanese spinning mill tender going stark raving mad with envy at the vision of Joan Crawford floating down a curving marble stairway, dressed in sleekest black silk (which the spindle tender probably made), to meet a guy like Robert Taylor, and then whisking in a long low Packard to a long low yacht for a long low evening? No wonder the poor Japs want economic parity, when you consider they've been getting along for years on boiled rice and no glamour.

This lovely man Robert Taylor may have had a lot to do with it too, not to mention Gary Cooper, Eddie Duchin, and all the other glamour boys. You can't tell me those Japanese battalions of death didn't get their ideas from the movie heroes who love to die and die for love, dropping off like flies in the cinemas for a Cause, preferably love of something or other, even love of country. Furthermore, the item of Packards, Puritanism and Progress are strictly American ideals of which the unfortunate Nipponese once knew nothing but for which they are now willing to die on the battlefields of China, with a grim smile.

• • • •

A lot of people will tell you the world is going crazy. They point with alarm to the machinations of Russia in China, to the skullduggeries of Italy in the Mediterranean, the current explosion in Spain, and the unprovoked assassinations in Shanghai. But I insist the Japs aren't crazy in trying to be like us. Not much.

Nazi Camps.

THE COMBINED, unrelenting efforts of all the enemies of Nazi Germany from the day of Hitler's rise to the present time have done less to demonstrate to the remaining democracies of the world the menacing character of the country which salutes the swastika than Hitler himself and his subordinates have accomplished in the past week.

Under a hysterical round of national self-adulation the German leaders clearly stated their enmity and contempt for the nations which still maintain freedom for their citizens and revealed an official intention to promote unpatriotic activities through Nazi societies.

These activities are neither new nor news in this country. They have been observed and reported in the American papers for a long time, and, although the Nazi camps in New York, New Jersey and elsewhere have shielded themselves under the American flag and the American laws, both of which they despise, their nature has been clearly understood.

* * * *

HOWEVER, EVEN though they were very apparently political outposts of the Nazi nation, their leaders were able to deny any connection with Berlin until the German Foreign Minister himself made a speech calling on all Nazis living abroad to promote Nazism and attack the "old liberal ideas" which are the very soul of Americanism.

In other words, every Nazi in the United States, including those who have taken out American citizenship, is expected to do his utmost to destroy the American form of government and erect in its place a dictatorship in which religious freedom will be abolished, labor will be forbidden to organize, the Masons and the Rotarians will be disbanded, the will of one man will be the law of 120,000,000 people and the ballot will become merely a blanket indorsement with no space in which a dissenter may vote "No."

This obviously, is the aim of the Nazi camps which have flourished under the protection of the American flag and the rights of free speech and assembly. And now the German Foreign Minister has formally called on the members of these bunds to undermine this and other democratic nations in which they find themselves.

* * * *

IT IS ONLY WHEN the various speeches are considered together that the intention of the Nazi government is seen. Foreign Minister Von Neurath, for example, told a congress of Nazis from other lands gathered in reunion to consider themselves as Nazi agents wherever they went. All Nazis, including those who have been naturalized here, would be included in this force against the American system of government, because, like the Kaiser, the present leaders insist that a German shall keep his fingers crossed when taking the oath of allegiance to another flag and renouncing the Fatherland.

Then Goebbels made a similar address and followed that with one in which he declared that democracy was finished. Other speeches further emphasized this thought with its plain demand that emigrant Germans hold themselves disloyal to the land of their adoption, and, as an open challenge to the authority of this nation to protect itself from treachery, Von Neurath forbade the United States to interfere with the activities of Nazi enemies in our midst.

If the Germans in this country who came out since Hitler's rise now find themselves suspected and avoided that will be the fault of the Nazi statesmen themselves.

The arrogance of all this is reminiscent of the Kaiser's own attitude, which was largely responsible for Germany's defeat in the great war, but even this painful lesson which caused great distress to many honestly naturalized Americans of German birth has been forgotten in Berlin.

Rough-house raids on Nazi camps are not in the cards, and they will not be necessary, but nobody writing or lecturing against Hitler and the horror has been able to make out such a powerful case against those who belong to such bunds and march in impudent rallies on the free soil of the U. S. A.

Always up to now they have been able to pretend that they were honest Americans enemies of bolshevism and get away with that pretense, because unquestionably they are enemies of communism. The speeches of the German leaders within the last few days, however, have given proof that they are also enemies of the American form of government as well.

The Once Over

War While Unconscious.

What the world has always yearned for may be at hand: a war that can be fought under an anesthetic.

* * * *

Chemists announce the discovery of a drug that can make whole armies pass out and not know a thing about the big battle until they wake up with a cup of soft-boiled eggs and a plate of buttered toast in their laps.

* * * *

It is called "acetylcholine." One grain of it is said to be enough to lower the blood pressure of 1,000,000 soldiers. When the blood pressure of an army has been sufficiently lowered it just faints in its tracks.

* * * *

A world war can be ended if only both sides will take a deep breath.

* * * *

The drug would be fired in shells, and even a direct hit wouldn't wound a soldier seriously. After everybody has fainted it is merely a matter of taking whole armies prisoner and awaiting the official score to see which side resisted the drug the better.

* * * *

Think of it! You leap into the uniform of your fair country, kiss the girls good-by and rush to the battle. All you ever know about it is when you come to in a hospital and a pretty nurse says: "See! . . . It's all over. The peace treaty has been signed and you never felt a thing!"

Royal Commission Begins First Investigation Of Constitutional And Government Systems Of Dominion Since 1867.

By William Marchington.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Ottawa.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION, which is to undertake the first comprehensive investigation of the constitutional and governmental system of Canada since the Dominion came into existence in 1867, held its first organization meeting in Ottawa last week.

At its close the chairman, Chief Justice Rowell, declared he could not fix a date for the opening of the public hearings until two or three of the provincial governments notified him that their cases, which are being prepared by experts, such as Prof. Jacob Viner, of Chicago, were ready.

Representations are to be heard not merely from the federal and provincial governments but also from "recognized public bodies" such as the Canadian Chambers of Commerce, the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Bankers Association. The inquiry promises to be a long-drawn-out affair and Judge Rowell intimated that there was no hope of having a report ready for the next session of the Federal Parliament. He pointed out that the commission had been explicitly instructed to study the problem of the constitutional reforms which, it is generally agreed, are necessary to readjust the relations between the dominion and the provinces. This suggests that the report probably will have to be submitted to a dominion-provincial conference before any attempt can be made to draft legislation based on it.

Meanwhile, the commission has secured a competent secretary in Mr. D. A. Skelton, the head of the research department of the Bank of Canada, and expert specialists are being employed to study various problems and collect data.

Need For Investigation Evident For Many Years.

FOR YEARS the necessity for such an inquiry has been plain. The administrative business of Canada has been handicapped by uncertainty about the delimitation of federal and provincial jurisdiction. This has frustrated a general desire for measures of social reform such as unemployment insurance. There has been a serious duplication of public services, which has increased overhead costs of administration far too high, and there has been a widespread demand for a reduction of the cost of government by the elimination of wasteful overlapping.

From the maritime provinces and the west particularly there have been recurring complaints about the present system of taxation and tariff policy. Moreover, since the depression, the financial embarrassments of all the western provinces have been so acute that they have been unable to carry on without special assistance from the federal treasury.

One root of the difficulty over provincial finances is that according to the interpretation of the Constitution, the provincial governments are called upon to shoulder the burden of the great expansion of social services which has taken place through the economic transformation of Canada in the last 70 years. But they have not the necessary financial resources. The federal government, however, which could find the necessary funds, is debarred by the constitution from undertaking responsibility for such services. Altogether, there is a strong case for readjusting the financial and administrative arrangements between the partners of Canadian confederation.

Economics Will Be Particularly Studied.

THE COMMISSION is authorized to hold a broad and unrestricted inquiry. While it is instructed to pay special attention to certain definite problems about finance, these instructions are not designed to narrow the limits of the investigation. Its work will be primarily an economic rather than a constitutional inquiry. It will study and weigh the wisest distribution of administrative powers and the necessary and equitable division of taxing powers and make recommendations for such changes as it deems to be advisable in the national interest.

It is virtually certain that the commission's recommendations will make constitutional changes necessary if they are to be carried out. Whether the federal and provincial governments will agree to recommend any such changes is not yet clear. Inevitably in a country so rent by sectional cleavages as Canada, the problem of overhauling the constitution bristles with great difficulties and opens up the prospect of prolonged controversy.

The Province of Quebec, for example, has been traditionally jealous of provincial rights and has refused to countenance any tampering with the British North America act. Opinion in Quebec has always resisted the idea of transferring the custody of Canada's constitution from the British to the Canadian Parliament because it regards the former as the safer watchdog of the racial and religious privileges secured to the French-Canadians by the act. Although Mr. Taschereau, the late Liberal Premier, showed before he left office a disposition to recede from his former "die-hard" position, Mr. Duplessis, the head of the Union-Nationale ministry, who succeeded him, has proclaimed his intention of fighting for the preservation of all existing provincial rights.

Again in New Brunswick, where there is an English-speaking majority, there has developed in recent years a strange new passion for stressing provincial economy. This feeling owes its inspiration mainly to a pair of local ministers, who regard themselves as constitutional experts, and they were largely responsible for the futility of the last two Dominion-provincial conferences. Moreover, they carried their ideas about provincial rights to such extremes at the accession of King George VI that their influence was successfully exerted to have a special local proclamation of his accession, in which he was described as "King of New Brunswick, a province autonomously dependent upon the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland." They are continually insisting that New Brunswick is a community with full sovereign rights.

Provincial Resistance Foreseen On Many Sides.

Accordingly, if the commission recommends a substantial increase of the federal authority by transferring to it matters now within provincial jurisdiction and the federal ministry attempts to give effect to its recommendation, it can count upon resolute resistance from a variety of quarters. Indeed, so delicate and complicated is the problem of constitutional reform that its achievement will probably only be possible through the agency of a national constitutional convention at which all parties and provinces would be represented.

Mr. Bennett, the Conservative leader, has always taken the view that such a convention would be necessary. If the chief party leaders were in agreement about the broad lines of constitutional reform they might find it possible to mobilize a sufficient force of public opinion to wear down the opposition of recalcitrant elements who are battling against any sacrifice of provincial rights. But in view of the necessity for the cordial cooperation of the leading politicians in the task which is now being undertaken, many people think it was a major error on the part of the King ministry to choose as the five commissioners only men of Liberal affiliations and outlook and not give it leaven of Conservative opinion. Had he done so, this might prevent the forthcoming report from being plunged into the arena of partisan controversy, as might easily happen.

Premier Aberhart of Alberta has severely criticized the personnel of the commission on the ground that the record of all its members shows them to be faithful disciples of financial and monetary orthodoxy and that they have mainly been appointed because they can be relied upon to condemn any unorthodox experiments like the Social Credit program, which he aspires to carry out for the salvation of Alberta. Premier Mackenzie King has denied, however, the validity of this charge.

Concerning Alberta the present situation is that the King ministry has exercised its federal power of disallowance on the three banking bills which were designed to give the Aberhart ministry control of the banks operating in Alberta. The courts have been notified of the status of this legislation by a proclamation in a special edition of the Canada Gazette. It had been found that Mr. Aberhart would not allow it to use the provincial Gazette of Alberta for this purpose which was the normal procedure. Legally the laws are now null and void and the next move is with Mr. Aberhart.

Federal Writers

By

Theodore Hall.

"American Stuff."

NOW IN THE reign of Well-Meaning Roosevelt II, a wondrous number of writers filled the land. We, who are so much more sensibly off in 2003, will scarcely believe that the Government then enrolled many of these gentry together, paid them up to $103.50 a month on the assumption that they were indeed writers, and set them to noting down the parks and cancer institutes and haunted houses from Portland to Portland. With industry and migraine this was done; the published "Guides" make interesting reading even yet. Then a battalion or two undertook to list all public documents, the deeds and wills and evidences of legal pother that accumulate in county courthouses, and when 32 folio tomes were at last issued, everyone felt very proud and wept on reading the newspapers.

But even with this the Federal Writers' Project—the 1930s were at least very systematic in their nomenclature—did not rest satisfied. After all, the members asked themselves, who could wax poetic over Trenton's cheese factory or Richmond's unexampled array of colonial wills? Were they not writers, for all their day wage? Did they not dream?

Of course they did, they told themselves with conviction. Yet since everything they wrote in eight hours was Government property, and since they had an almighty fear (for some impossible-to-conjecture reason) that they might write what was called a "best-seller" and thus put money into the public treasury, they perforce had only their spare time in which to be real writers. The dilemma was painful to them. Then an ingenious gentleman, who happened to be director of the F. W. P., conceived of a volume to be put out as an ordinary commercial risk, a volume in which the writers might avoid cheese factories and be (I use the contemporary locution) "themselves." And this book comes down to us—"American Stuff."

I GLOSS OVER its quaintness of appearance; to be sure, it was not quaint to its public. Nor can I spend any time on its pictures, all duly turned in by members of a companion Art Project. But what I should like to point to, for readers of this century, is the curious fact that the very best thing in the book is still the cheese factory.

That is to say, the merit lies not in writing as we see it—I allude, of course, to Stephen Beamish's decisive rechampioning, in 1936, of writing as imagination—but in the elementary act of seeing and recording the elements of American life that lay about these Rooseveltians. They cast a sharp eye and ear around. They caught much of America that was already passing away. They showed very clearly what it meant to live in that discordant, uncomfortable age. And they had, in and by themselves, almost nothing to contribute.

Let me be particular. This book, setting out an assortment of stories, poems and essays (one oddly distracted and self-fuddling essay deals with a writer named G. Stein, a figure I have not yet been able to identify)—this book, I say, holds nothing so good as the interlardings of what was called "Americana."

With great diligence, certain of these writers had collected Negro spirituals (one would like to have known the tunes), street cries of Negro hawkers in Harlem (a place, seemingly real enough, not shown on my best maps), tall stories from the West Virginia hills (e. g., some valleys there were so narrow that they said a dog could wag his tail only up and down), local legends of spirited living, and phrases of the Negro people. A few of the latter must be decisive rechampioning, in 1936, of writing as imagrun up a tree." "Money thinks I'm dead." "Ef you wants to see how much folks is goin' to miss you, jest stick yo' finger in de pond den pull it out an' look at de hole."

ALL SUCH MATERIAL is too good to be forgotten. There is likewise an interest, deeper than mere antiquarianism, in a marvelously human and poetic comedy, a story called "Pan Feinkuchen," in the spare, effective pathos of another, "Fine Afternoon," and in the report of a Negro on "The Ethics of Living Jim Crow." Here are human beings as they were in the 1930s, though we may not care to be reminded of that time.

Indeed, it will surprise us how little protest there was against the stupidity of that era. Only the poets speak out—and by far the ablest in the lot, a Mr. A. T. Rosen, has no more than this to say to the nonproductive rich:

"Ah, gentlemen, resign and take our thanks,
Resign the tinsel in the sanction'd room.

But this, of course, was in an age altogether fearful of social change, and one in which everybody looked under his bed to see if even so erroneous and short-sighted a figure as Lenin were there!

At the same time, in a very bad and prosy poem by one Edwin Bjorkman, there is struck a prophetic note that must astonish us in 2003. He is impossible to quote. Yet he says, as if it had never occurred to his contemporaries, that democracy had not yet been given time to prove itself. He could not foresee exactly, but at least he knew in his bones.

OF THE BOOK as a whole, I repeat, we moderns must observe that it is all reporting. At the extreme of good quality, there is a kind of reported common vision of what America held, as true strength, in its heart. At the other extreme there is, actually, a narrative which told, from the rat's point of view, what it felt like to have its head bitten off by a man. Even the story that will strike many readers as the most creative in the book, "Juggler's Gold," seems rather beside the point as "American Stuff" since it is set in Finland. All, all is note-taking and reproduction—distinct, admirable and inevitably limited as literature.

No doubt at all, that type of work was necessary at the time. And it is always necessary in the growth of any given writer. But it is a stage, like learning to make decent sentences. "Yes, yes!" we cry back to these distant figures. "You had your materials! But what, as a writer and maker, were you going to do with them?"

Well, we are clearer about such matters nowadays. We moderns know what to ask of a writer. But the odd thing is that the 1930s gave such public attention and even governmental aid to people who were not really writers, but simply very nice, sensitive, intelligent young persons growing up to face their realities by means of pen in hand.

"A SMALL, GREEN apple for Washington? Suicide!"

TOM McCARTHY.

"You can't market small, green apples in Washington," he said, "because they like their apples big and red. I don't know the reason for that and I don't know why green apples sell best throughout the South in the early part of the season, and then proceed to drop right out of the market.

"That's the apple business," he concluded, "and you cash in on knowing taste preference, which can't be logically explained."

Mr. Richard had been telling me some of the peculiarities of his profession as apple exporter from the Shenandoah Valley. I'd gone down to Winchester to take a look at the apple harvest, but even seasoned pickers don't want to brave a rain, and it had been raining for several days.

However, after I'd been settled in Mr. Richard's office for a while, I concluded that I was learning more about apples than I'd ever discover in a hundred vague tours through as many orchards. In the first place, I discovered that there's romance in what might seem the prosaic profession of apple buyer. Those signs on the little building of red brick which houses Wyatt Richard's office smack of far places. Proudly they list ancient firms in Liverpool and London, Glasgow and Clyde, which market only the apples of the Shenandoah Valley to British housewives.

SITTING IN HIS office in Winchester, it's part of Mr. Richard's job to know just what sort of apples will be wanted by the housewives in Glasgow, and what sort will be preferred by those in London. The chances are ten to one that the taste preference will vary widely. In some cities, the general demand will be for hard, red apples; in another city, a few hundred miles away, a hard, red apple will be a drug on the market. You might say that apple buyers have to outguess appetites.

"You'd probably expect," Mr. Richard told me, "that the hardy Scotsmen would like a good crisp, crunchy apple; but if you tried to market many of that kind in Scotland you'd soon go broke. The Scotch may be a rugged race, but when it comes to apples they're 'softies.'

"That's one of the few preferences we can explain and there's quite a chain of circumstances built up in the explanation. The Scotch like candy, and that has its relation to apple sales, far-fetched as that might seem. Their sweet-tooth is supposed to be one of the explanations for the prevalence of poor teeth in Scotland. And poor teeth and false teeth are the determining factors in the Scotch apple market They want soft apples."

FARTHER DOWN West Piccadilly street in Winchester you'll find S. P. House, possibly the oldest apple buyer in the section. One of the few buyers to be rated with four stars in that bible of the packers, the "Red Book," he carries at his fingertips the knowledge of years of accumulation. A soft-spoken, gray-mustached gentleman, he likes to sight backward along the years and note the changes.

"I can remember when you really had to be on your toes every minute in this game," he says. "Unscrupulous packers used to fill baskets with low-grade apples, topping them off with a few choice ones, and the buyer would find that he'd purchased a carload not worth the price of the freight. All that's changed now, since the Government stepped in.

"Inspectors are on the job all the time to see that the apples are properly graded. The buyer can rest easy knowing that Uncle Sam is doing part of his job for him. In the old days, though, we had to keep wide-awake all the time.

"This year's crop? Well, it's going to be a bumper crop, not only here, but throughout the country. That probably means a poor market, but it's the gamble which every orchard owner takes.

"It's not the only gamble though. There are plenty of headaches between the time we have our Blossom Festival and the time when trees are ready for harvest. I suppose the average city man figures that you just go out, once a year, and pick the apples.

"THE ORCHARD OWNER has a full-time job in getting ready for his single harvest. Dry years, it's the insects. Wet years, it's the fungus growths. To fight the apple worms they have to go through the orchard time and again with poison spray. If it rains shortly after the spray has been put on they have to go out and do it all over again. Sometimes the grower thinks he's perfectly safe, but the poison is washed off before it's had time to get in its work. When that happens the grower may go out and find he's raising livestock, not apples.

"About the only trouble we don't have to worry much about in this business is labor trouble. We've never really had any. Some apple raisers pay harvest hands by the day; others, by the amount picked. A man can earn as much as $3 a day, picking under normal conditions, and on the other hand, some will work all day and only have $1 to show for it. That, of course, is in cases where they're being paid for what they pick.

"Where does the labor come from? Well, we get the usual quota of itinerant workers from all over the country. Whole families come down from the Blue Ridge to help out in the harvest. Of course, we really haven't started to harvest yet this year. The peak ought to be about the last week in September or the first week in October.

"Drop down this way again when the weather clears and the harvest gets into full swing. This is mighty nice country through here and real apple country. Why, do you know we've got apple trees in Albemarle County that were planted by Thomas Jefferson!"

Gold Imports by U. S. Decline In August to Four-Year Low

By the Associated Press.

Gold imports dropped precipitately in August, reversing a trend that has poured $5,000,000,000 worth of the metal into the United States in less than four years.

The Commerce Department reported yesterday imports fell to $67,000,000 by comparison with monthly totals that had not been less than $121,000,000 since the first of the year and had ranged as high as $262,000,000.

The cause, officials said, is difficult to determine, but they suggested as one reason that Europe's supply of "floating" gold, gold available for such shipment, has been sharply reduced by the huge imports of the last several years.

For another, they thought the trend of general exports and imports may have had its influence. Exports of merchandise and other articles from the United States have fallen below America's purchases abroad. The excess, which ever way it is, is generally paid for in gold.

Whether last month's decline in gold imports marked a turning point in the general trend, officials were reluctant to predict, but pointed out that this may be the case if it is true that there is little "floating gold" left in Europe.

The import movement began back in February, 1934, when the Administration devalued the dollar and the Treasury announced it would buy al the foreign gold offered it at $35 an ounce. It had been paying $20.67 prior to that time.

This attractive price, combined with recurring monetary crises in the European countries which remained upon the gold standard, brought the yellow metal into the country with every liner.

Lotus Features Revue Direct From New York

By Chanticleer

The fall season is opening with a bang at the Lotus Restaurant with Earl Lindsay's Revue, composed of eight clever and beautiful girls in the chorus, coming direct from Broadway. They feature a ballroom number and a musical comedy hit. Marion Mack, known as the "Girl Band-It," is one of the surprise novelties. Felicia is featured in an acrobatic number which is exceedingly clever and entertaining.

Marion Dawn, a member of Bill Strickland's Capitolian dance orchestra, is the popular songstress. Al Norton is the genial master of ceremonies. There are three revues daily, 1, 7:30 and 11:30 p. m. and never a cover charge.

* * * *

Much interest is being evidenced in Paul Kain, youthful band leader, opening the fall season at the Wardman Park Hotel tonight.

His seven-piece band has won wide popularity in the smarter West Coast spots.

Kain, a graduate of Notre Dame, won a master's degree in music.

Although workmen have been busy constructing the room most of the summer, there is still much to do before it will be ready for the formal "unveiling."

It's an eight-pound boy at the Madrillon. Johnny Robb, one of the musicians with Johnny Shaw's aggregation, is going around these days with that proud daddy look.

If it is true that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach . . . well if Napoleon could say it why can't we?—then Brinkley's, the Southeast's most envied contribution to the night club scene here in Washington, has made more than one bosom friend. The word that seeps out is that a now regular customer when searching for a place to dine where the food would come up to what he desired, was told of the quality of Brinkley's. He spurned the advice until his adviser wagered him on the quality. He visited, he ate, and he lost his bet.

Not hard to find, easy to remember, hard to forget, and leaves a desire for a return visit? What is it? Why nothing more startling than the Hi-Hat cocktail lounge where nightly may be heard the three M's in musical hi-jinks.

There's many a wave of hilarity due tonight when Washington's latest cocktail lounge . . . the Anchor Room at the Hotel Annapolis, dips its gang plank to receive the first contingent of happy voyagers who are anticipating a real night of entertainment at this spot. On hand for the christening festivities will be Johnny Slaughter's novelty, bolstered by the presence of songstress Evelyn Knight.

"Truck to the right, now truck to the left and spank the horsie!" Such incantations, and many other of a similar ilk are nightly resounding among the rafters at the Boulevard Farms indicating more than ever that the "Big Apple," first introduced here some weeks ago, still is holding high court at this nightery.

To the bachelors, God bless them, the Maiyfair offers a haven of rest. Here during the week those harried baches who are industrious enough to prepare their own meals may take themselves when they run out of supplies, or when they get tired of their own cooking.

There will soon be a new spot in town, under the name of the Bamboo Gardens . . . going to be located in the middle of downtown Washington, too . . . nothing more on that for the present.

New Band Leader at Wardman Park

Boston, Sept. 14 (AP).—Dr. Lynn C. Fairfield, China secretary of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, tonight announced the board had voted to permit all missionaries in China to decide individually whether they would evacuate Chinese posts.

The board stated it expected the United States Government to assist in evacuation wherever practicable but agreed that injury suffered by missionaries or damage to property should not be regarded as cause for war or threat of war.

Alabama Legion To Parade Here Sunday Morning

Approximately 300 Alabamians, en route to the 1937 national convention of the American Legion, which opens Monday, will arrive in Washington Sunday morning. The contingent will be headed by Gov. Bibb Graves, first commander of the Alabama department, and Dr. B. F. Austin, present commander. The Alabamians will arrive on special trains and by auto. A parade has been arranged and is scheduled to move at 10 o'clock. All Alabamians in Washington are asked by R. Lee Barnes, president of the Alabama State Society, to meet on E street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets at 9:30 so that they may participate.

The line of march will be west on E street to Fifteenth street, thence south to Constitution avenue and east on Constitution avenue to Louisiana avenue and on to the Union Station.

The Alabama Drum and Bugle Corps, one of the finest in the South, will arrive at 7:45 over the Seaboard Air Line. There will also be a junior band from Clarke County, as well as other musical organizations. Gov. Graves, accompanied by Senator Dixie Graves, will come to Washington from Atlantic City, where they are attending a conference of Governors. Following the parade the Governor will head a motorcade from Washington to New York City.

AAA Proposes Drastic Slash In Crop Quotas

By Russell Smith

The Administration yesterday presented its 1938 crop control program to 100 State agricultural experts gathered here for a two-day meeting.

This program called for drastic reduction in acreage to be planted to cotton and rice, with lesser reductions included for corn, tobacco, potatoes and peanuts. Wheat was, notably, omitted from the recommendations.

Specific acreage regarded by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration as desirable for every major crop were laid before the visitors in an AAA memorandum.

Adherence to the proposed acreages on the part of growers would avert possible repetition next year of 1937 bumper crops and the ruinous price declines which, it is generally agreed, would follow upon such repetition, the farm leaders were informed.

The program was laid before them as Senate committees were engaged in regional hearings over the country, preparatory to drafting a general farm stabilization bill.

Means What It Says.

Insofar as concerns the Administration's plans for curtailment of production, the memorandum laid before these leaders yesterday represents what its proposes, regardless of enactment of legislation providing for compulsory restriction of output, storage of surpluses and loans for carrying out the "ever normal granary" program of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

The AAA's object in presenting the restriction program was to be action toward avoidance of "disastrous" surpluses so far as such action may be taken under the present soil conservation act, without the compulsion expected to be inserted in the new general farm legislation.

In the group which met here yesterday with AAA officials every State was represented. The visitors included representatives of State extension services, State executive officers and State agricultural committeemen. No representatives of organized farm groups were invited.

Call for Quotas.

The memorandum they received called for a system of acreage quotas per State, county and farm, with indicidual farmers encouraged to participate by benefit payments to those who participated in the program of acreage reduction.

The national quotas suggested in the memorandum were as follows: Cotton, 29,000,000 to 31,000,000 acres; corn, 92,000,000 to 96,000,000 acres; tobacco, 1,585,000 to 1,660,000 acres; potatoes, 3,100,000 acres; rice, 825,000 to 875,000 acres; peanuts, 1,500,000 to 1,600,000 acres.

Cotton	33,736,000	40,541,000
Corn	96,146,000	103,419,000
Tobacco	1,690,000	1,872,000
Potatoes	3,224,000	3,327,000
Peanuts	1,666,000	1,417,000
Rice	1,003,000	925,000

An important element in these proposals, however, was the memorandum's suggestion that quotas be allotted for every county in the cotton, tobacco and rice programs, whereas for corn, potatoes and peanuts such quotas would be established only in areas where there is a large commercial production.

The individual farm quotas would be fixed, under the proposal, by county committees which have been working with the AAA for several years.

Such a program differs little from that outlawed by the Supreme Court in the Hoosac Mills decision, except that there is no implication of penalties for nonco-operating farmers. Such penalties were imposed by the Bankhead cotton and Kerr-Smith tobacco acts. The AAA believes, however, that such penalties, to be used only as a last resort to force complance, are essential if the granary plan is to operate without accumulation of surpluses which would have a catastrophic effect on Federal finances.

Half Million Spent By Sears in Year

More than a half million dollars were spent in Washington during the last year by Sears, Roebuck & Co., it was announced yesterday by W. M. Johansen, group manager of the local Sears stores. The exact figure was $515,116.

The money, Johansen said, covered salaries of resident employes, $275,487; newspaper advertising, $114,427; rents and taxes, $80,421, and $44,781 for merchandise purchased from five manufacturers in Washington.

"There is little doubt that business in Washington has shown a vast improvement during the last two or three years," Johansen said. "During the last five years, Sears has spent on an average of $434,680 in the District annually. This figure is exclusive of sums spent for stor openings and remodeling projects, supplies and traveling expenses."

Announcement of expenditures was made in connection with the company's fifty-first anniversary. An anniversary sale starts here and throughout the Nation today.

I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife unless she will meet me at the Mayfair, 13th and F Sts., every night (and Sunday) for dinner and cocktails.

Abell Returns To Fight for Child's Custody

Says He Wanted to Hit Pearson in Nose for Island Invasion.

George Abell is coming to Washington today, and, according to Abell, Drew Pearson had better watch out.

Abell, landing at New York from Europe yesterday, announced a determination to engage in two fights, one a continuation of his court struggle for custody of his 5-year-old son, the other with Pearson.

Abell charged that Pearson and Mrs. Pearson, who used to be Mrs. Abell, engaged three men to take his son away from his nurse on Sark Island, off the English coast. Both Pearson and Abell are Washington newspapermen.

"I was hoping to get a crack at Pearson," Abell told the Associated Press. "As to my former wife, I had no intention of molesting her, but as to her present husband, I would have punched him in the nose, particularly if I could have caught him on the island.

"I'll never stop until I get custody of my child. If we can't reach a settlement there will be plenty doing. I plan to take every possible legal action. I have little money, but I will spend everything I have."

Early last November, Abell related, he and his divorced wife became friendly and even discussed remarriage, but a few weeks later while he was away on a business trip the former Mrs. Abell eloped with Pearson and married him near Albuquerque, N. M.

Wheeler Chosen Red Cross Aide

W. W. Wheeler, of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., will serve as vice chairman of the annual Red Cross Roll Call, it was announced yesterday by Marcy L. Sperry, general chairman of the membership drive.

Sperry also announced that John Bleecker, president of the District Junior Chamber of Commerce, would assist Wheeler and himself. Miss Minnie Harman, for 12 years a member of the National Red Cross staff, will serve as general secretary.

Wheeler has been associated with the Community Chest, the Greater National Capital Committee and the President's Cup Regatta Association, Sperry said. He also assisted the 1936 roll call chairman, Lloyd B. Wilson.

A membership of 75,000 is the goal of this year.

Bishop Hughes Marks Jubilee At Conference

Celebrates 50th Year in Church in Iowa Where He Entered Ministry.

Newton, Iowa, Sept. 14 (AP).—Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of the Washington, D. C., area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, returned to the scene of his first pastorate today to celebrate the golden anniversary of his admission into the ministry.

Acting senior bishop of his church and president of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, Bishop Hughes presided over the annual meeting of the Iowa-Des Moines Conference. He was received on trial as a minister in this conference in September, 1887.

At the opening of the conference, Bishop Hughes spoke on "Fifty Years in the Methodist Ministry."

After serving pastorates in Iowa and Massachusetts, Bishop Hughes became president of De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind. In 1908 he was elected a bishop at Baltimore. He also served as acting president of Boston University in 1923. Church leaders recognize Bishop Hughes as one of America's foremost preachers.

Several testimonial luncheons and other honors in observance of Bishop Hughes jubilee were planned in dierent cities this fall.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Girl Claims 'Severe Inferiority Complex' Because of Parental Slight in Earliest Infancy.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a happy, healthy young girl, who is suffering from a severe inferiority complex, which I think I can account for. I was the third and unwanted child of our family. When just a tiny baby, my mother left me in care of a friend while she and the others vacationed out of town. All my life that fact has more or less haunted me and I have been unable to live it down.

* * * *

However, it gave me a driving urge to make my parents proud of me. I have been aggressive in developing my talents. I am fortunately possessed of the ability to make friends easily and can even make the strongest stone wall soften. I am confident and perfectly at ease when speaking before large audiences. I have always made the highest marks in school. These things have thrown me into the spotlight more than the average person and have brought me compliments and praise.

* * * *

But here is the catch: I am reluctant to accept anything said in my favor and complimentary remarks always go in one ear and out the other. I have always received more than the average share of praise, but it has always annoyed me rather than puffed me up. This inferior and unworthy feeling amongst friends is bad enough, but now I have a new problem.

* * * *

I have met a fine young man, the kind of man every girl dreams of having for her own. He means everything in the world to me and is just my opposite, in that he is somewhat conceited. We plan to marry eventually, but I know that if I do not overcome this complex of mine I shall never be happy. When I realize that he actually desires me above all else I want to cry.

* * * *

Both my parents died before I was 15, and having attentions paid me makes me feel so unworthy. I feel entirely out of place and, though I love him dearly, I cannot understand why I attracted him. I do want to be able to accept his compliments and love in the way I should, but I seem unable to do so. That inferior feeling always creeps in. Please tell me how I can live down a childhood haunt that threatens to ruin my future happiness. Sincerely, K. K.

* * * *

Adolescent Nonsense.

DEAR K. K.: I doubt that your alleged inferiority complex has anything to do with your mother having left your infant self in care of a friend while she vacationed with the family. It's fairly natural for the adolescent maiden to wish to dramatize herself, and it's not an uncommon thing for her to satisfy this desire by ferreting out some such unimportant episode of infancy or childhood and building a great, pseudo-tragic fiction around it. I did it myself in my teens. I have no doubt the incident occurred; but what of it? You weren't left to perish of hunger, cold or neglect, were you? And how many of the world's children, do you suppose, are breathlessly awaited by their parents as blessed events, or bundles from heaven? At best, the majority are philosophically accepted when it is learned they are on the way; and by the time a mother has had her third child, usually she is no longer so agonizedly concerned about the little stranger's chances of living. She knows that every sneeze and yelp of complaint doesn't presage an early grave; and she's sensibly grateful to whoever will give her an occasional chance for a holiday; a chance to draw a free breath away from year-in, year-out baby tending.

* * * *

Just why you have felt it necessary to make yourself the heroine of an impossible fiction I wouldn't know. Possibly your childhood was consistently prosaic and you were intelligent enough to realize you were not unusually gifted, so that you decided to make the most of what you did possess and be recognized as somebody very special in spite of Nature's niggardliness. Such a decision, rightly developed, would be very praiseworthy, and usually is the underlying reason for the greater percentage of individual social and professional successes. But it's downright silly to reproach your parents for the form which your will to survive in a big way has taken.

* * * *

I should say your oratorical and scholastic achievements are simply your own deliberately chosen ways of attracting the spotlight you crave, and that your false modesty in supposedly detesting and disbelieving the applause which you deliberately invite is nothing more nor less than self-deceit.

* * * *

Ever since the phrase, "inferiority complex," was invented and defined, far too many persons have been manufacturing symptoms—and reasons for them—to match the complaint. Your whole trouble is that you think too much about yourself. Even in love, you are still thinking about yourself to the almost total exclusion of the young man. Stop trying to analyze the reasons why he is attracted to you. Just be thankful that he is; and hereafter try to think of his happiness rather than your own.

* * * *

Whether the young man really is "somewhat conceited" is open to question. To label a person as conceited is to imply that his good opinion of himself is without foundation. It is not to be confused with that healthy self-assurance which comes of being socially adequate, on excellent terms with one's self and the world as one finds it, and unafraid of potential emergencies. The one attitude is braggadocio; the other is poise. M. H.

For That 1900 Look—a Gay Ostrich Plume

If you have in the attic any old hats with ostrich plumes or any feather boas or fans that your Aunt Mamie used when she was a belle of the gay 90s, now is the time to get them out and give your fall wardrobe a modern touch. Not since the turn of the century has ostrich trimming had such a conspicuous place in the fashion scene. It sweeps off the trains of evening gowns, subtly accents daytime and tailored frocks, decorates coiffures, gloves, capes and coats. It takes on all sorts of guises on hats, appearing in neat little quills on flamboyant curled feathers. In the hat shown above the romantic air of the turn of the century is subtly imparted to a very modern smart black postillion hat by a striking three-toned ostrich plume. The plume adds an illusion of height to the crown. Hat designed by Harryson.

Diet Measurements.

Of all the chronic diseases that afflict mankind, diabetes is the best one to have, but there are two catches in it. It can be managed better than any of the others, and such management gives wonderful results, but it depends upon constant attention and intelligent understanding of the disease. A man with cancer, whether he is rich or poor, stands about the same chance of recovery (which, incidentally, is very good). And if he uses enough sense, or by the offices of his friends manages to fall into the right hands, from then on he need not use any intelligence or self-control or will power—the result will be the same anyhow. Not so diabetes.

Rough Estimates.

The first stumbling block the diabetic who is just learning to handle himself goes up against is that he must weigh and measure his food. He is not used to this, and furthermore most of the formulae are expressed in grams (the metric system), which is additionally confusing to him. But this need go on for only a few weeks—after that he has learned to measure roughly the amounts in each food, and besides, in most cases of diabetes, it is unnecessary to be terribly accurate. In the cases where extreme accuracy is essential, insulin comes in to help, so again extreme accuracy is unnecessary. But approximate accuracy is necessary, so let us try to straighten out the mathematics.

First, very briefly, what is diabetes? Diabetes is a low tolerance on the part of the body to sugar and starch—the carbohydrates of the diet. The diabetic body cannot utilize as much of them as the normal because the secretion of the pancreas, insulin, which normally burns them up, producing energy, is lacking. Hence, if too much sugar or starch is eaten it simply flows off in the urine. In treatment other foods to replace the carbohydrates must be substituted in order to keep the body from attacking its own flesh. Treatment aims to keep the amount of carbohydrate eaten just at the patient's ability to utilize it; all diabetics can utilize some carbohydrate. With this treatment improvement occurs and tolerance rises. If treatment is not adhered to the constant presence of sugar in the blood causes poisons to accumulate, with the result of acidosis, fatigue and sluggishness, and the danger of boils, carbuncles and other complications.

Metric System.

The books on diabetes and the diets given out usually list the different foods in terms of grams and kilograms—the metric system. It isn't really hard to get on to this, because no normal person has ever been in the habit of weighing his food in any system of weights. A weighing machine marked in grams can be obtained in any physicians' supply house and many drug stores. The diabetic himself or herself should weigh his or her own food for a month in order to learn what portions of what weigh how much.

The housewife, however, isn't used to grams, and if she calls up the druggist, as she is apt to do, to get light on what a gram is, she will be told in apothecaries' measure, which is different in many respects from avoirdupois measure, which the grocer uses, and in which body weight is measured in American households.

An ounce is 31 grams—about two tablespoonfuls.

Demand Children Make For Candy Is Cultivated

Sweets Best Provided in Other Forms, Dietitian Says; Sugary Substances Rob Appetite for Other Food, Provide Quick Energy.

By Jean Green.

IF YOUR CHILD has the candy craze, the chances are it may be your own fault. Dietitians say the problem of curbing children's excessive appetite for sweets is largely a matter of educating the parents. Mothers and fathers, and especially fond uncles and aunts, have glorified candy in the eyes of children to the extent the average child has come to feel that an enthusiasm for it is expected.

JEAN GREEN.

Miss Claire Shephard at the WPA nursery school operated in connection with the University of Maryland points out that parents can do much by means of suggestion. Children come to school with a penny for candy but if the parents had given them the money especially for an apple or for fruit they would have been just as satisfied, she believes.

However, she feels that children do need sweets. At the nursery school, no candy is included in the diet but the sweets are introduced in the dessert. Such desserts as junket, peaches, stewed fruits, baked custard, fruit gelatin desserts and tapioca puddings are some of the ways in which the sweet tooth is satisfied. The favorite dessert in the group among the children now at the school is jello with fruit in it. Both the color and taste appeals.

Candy Has Place in Diet.

Miss Shephard believes candy has a place in the diet but it should be given at meal time or at an hour when it will not interfere with the appetite for the next meal. One reason for much disapproval of confectionery, she points out, is that most children buy the cheaper candies that are made of synthetic stuff with little food value.

For the afternoon lunch, she suggests that hunger pangs be satisfied with fruit and natural sweets. The dried fruits are nutritious. Honey and maple sugar can be used as a flavor for nutritious milk shakes and ice creams. Dextrose has been advocated by several doctors as an excellent sweet because of its digestibility and palatability.

The problem of sweets for children has been discussed by Dr. Henry C. Sherman, of Columbia University. He finds that the eating of candy lends itself to abuse. He observes "from a nutritive standpoint sugar should be most cautiously used lest it displace too much of the foods which supply protein, vitamin and mineral matter which children need so urgently for growth and development."

Sugar Supplies Energy.

The sugar and concentrated sweets supply only one food stuff—calories needed for energy and heat. In nature most foods are many sided and contain not only the calories for energy but also elements needed for growth. For this reason the sugar is listed as a one-sided food.

In the child's diet, according to Dr. Sherman, the problem is not to avoid the one-sided food, but rather not to allow the one-sided food to encroach on the proper place in the diet of the many sided food.

If the sugar and concentrated sweet is eaten before the meal or in quantities between meals, the appetite is spoiled for other foods.

From this it seems that the natural craving of children for sweets is an idea that has been built up in the minds of parents. Candy is one of several sweets that supplies energy for growing children. The craze for candy can be curbed by training children at an early age to enjoy a variety of foods and to plan diets for them that contain sufficient calories to satisfy their hunger.

Recipe Contest.

Have you sent in your recipe for using marshmallows? It may win for you one of the cash prizes being awarded this week. The first prize is a check for $5, the second $2 and there are three prizes of $1.

Any new recipe for using marshmallows may win a prize. It may be a special fall picnic dish for open fire cooking, a tempting dessert, or a special way of using them in garnishing.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Sept. 14.

WE ARE USED to eccentric visitors—in fact, this is their world headquarters. But we had a brand-new one the other day, and aren't over it yet. You may not believe it, but we had a prize beauty, headed for the Atlantic City Pageant and Shambles, who thinks that a bathing suit is to be used for swimming and not for camera-posing. If that isn't tops for eccentricity, you name one, please.

ALICE HUGHES.

Of course, the young lady is not "Miss Sauk Center, 1937," who would automatically put on her swim-suit and strike an attitude of girlish abandon the moment she saw a camera. Our novelty was Senorita Molen Pietrantoni, "Miss Puerto Rico, Class of '37," the first girl so chosen from our Island Commonwealth, daughter of a Corsican papa and Spanish mama, and 123 pounds of sultry loveliness.

She was introduced to us at a rum-cocktail party at her hotel, and the reporters, excited by a lot of swizzles, and Molen's rich, ripe beauty, buzzed excitedly about her. She wore modest gold brocade, with brown accessories, and the conventional mantilla. She was modest, charming and a feast for the male eye. The cameramen charged upon her, hinting about the bathing-suit routine. The senorita gave them a chill. "You do not understand," she said.

"I am competing; I am a guest, and shall dress in an evening gown!" Baffled, the lensmen slank away—and when you see a cameraman slink away licked, you are beholding one of the world's rarest sights. No bathing suit for Miss Puerto Rico at Atlantic City! And Atlantic City will be much the poorer, I assure you.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Now that the national tennis matches are over, and the court pretties have all dispersed to their own back yards, it is safe to say that about the jolliest girl on the Forest Hills turf was Dorothy May Bundy of California. The prettiest are still Alice Marble and Kay Stammers, but the one who enjoys playing tennis most is the roly-poly Dorothy May—and she is still young enough to grow toward the championship.

* * * *

The town girls are a little upset because Robert Montgomery won't be able to come to Broadway this fall, owing to press of movie business. They had counted on Bobby in the flesh, but are somewhat comforted by the fact that Henry Fonda will be on tap in "Blow Ye Winds," due to open here next week.

* * * *

Speaking of the troupers, the latest generation of Barrymores seems intent on acting, as their blood tells. Diana Barrymore, daughter of John, has laid down the law to her mother, now Mrs. Harrison Tweed. Di wants no more finishing school, but a course in a dramatic academy—and will probably get her way. She's grown into a lovely girl, and why not? Both Pa and Ma have been noted for their personal beauty! . . .

* * * *

We seem to grow a hardy breed of baby here, and city slickers aren't all softies! Francis Abriola, all of 19 months old, fell out a fourth story window on Ninth avenue the other day, and the worst he got was a cut on the leg! Those Ninth avenue kidlets are tough stuff—ask any old New Yorker. He may have bounced a floor or two . . .

* * * *

Our three-day marriage license law is still getting much attention. Paul Y. Anderson, correspondent, and Katherine Lane, wanted to get married — and ducked the new rules by getting an order from a Supreme Court justice. But how few of us have even a leering aquaintance with a mighty judge? Thank goodness for that!

* * * *

The furrowed brows on our streets this month are apt to spring from the annual trial known as Fur Coat Worry. All the girls want one of the boxy swagger coats, short, stubby and smart, this fall. And many young ladies are getting them in the comparatively inexpensive gray squirrel and silver muskrat. This removes the mink menace, always a curse. Of course, those of us who have no handy money have no worries and brow-furrows at all. Maybe we're lucky, at that!

Rough Tweed Is Swank For Wear This Autumn

Paris (AP).—Among swank plain materials for fall are rough tweeds, diagonals and chevrons. Some smart mixture wools appear, in black and white, or in brown and tawny rust color, as well as thick jerseys that copy tweeds for suits, or go off on their own exclusive tacks.

Sturdy day-wear coatings take in new boucle wools, woven in one color or in two-tone effects such as one having a navy ground with "curls" or boucles in red. Some new long-haired zibelines suggest the teddy-bear's pelt in weave and texture.

Tell Fortunes at Parties

—Home Institute—

DO YOU YEARN for attention at parties? Want to be called a fascinating date? Then try fortune-telling. It's easy, and everyone falls for it.

Begin with card fortunes. You can be a spell-binder in no time with the thrilling but simple Seraphina method.

You first let your friend shuffle the cards, choose 13 of them and make a wish. Then you sort these 13 cards into 5 stacks, as the picture shows. The first stack is for "Self," the second "Home," the third "Love," the fourth "Wish," the fifth "Hopes" or "Prospects."

Now you unveil the future by explaining the meanings of the cards in each pack. Perhaps in the "Self" pile you find a seven of clubs. That promises popularity. In the "Home" stack the ten of hearts hints a stranger is coming. The queen of spades in "Love" fortells romance with a raven-haired charmer. And what male won't melt when in the "Wish" pile you find the nine of hearts and say, "Your wish comes true!"

Draw a wheel on a large piece of paper, divide it into sections and write a fortune in each—anything that fits your crowd. "Surprise from a blonde," "wedding bells this year." Then put a bottle in the center and let each guest spin it as he makes a wish. The bottle stops on his fate.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Let Me Tell Your Fortune," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Studs Instead of Buttons.

New York (AP).—Studded sports frocks are a summer novelty. Instead of buttoning, they fasten with little studs of simulated pearls or colored composition. They come in dusty pinks and soft blues and are simply cut.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

BEAUTY does not hold up without vitamins, and the latest thing in the up-to-the-minute beauty salons is the cosmetic diet bar. There you can sip your full share of the vitamins and minerals so very necessary to the youth of your complexion.

Scientific diet has at last been recognized for the role it plays in beauty. Without vitality, beauty does not exist, for a wan complexion or a drawn look does not make for loveliness.

The cosmetic value of vitamins still is, however, much greater than is generally realized. Skin troubles often may be traced directly to a deficiency of vitamins A and G in the diet. Lack of vitamin A has been known to cause rough, dry skin, and to take the sparkle from your eyes. Scientists also tell us that insufficient vitamin G can take all the luster out of the hair. You can see what vitamins mean to beauty!

Milk Is Skin Food.

Milk is a real skin food, and miracles of loveliness can be accomplished through the addition of a pint of milk to the daily diet. Milk is your best source of supply for vitamins A and G. By using skimmed milk you get the same amount of calcium and phosphorus, but less vitamin A. Butter, however, is an excellent source of this vitamin, as are raw carrots. Raw carrots really make you beautiful!

Be sure that you get plenty of milk, butter (one and one-half pats daily is plenty for the reducer), carrots and egg yolks. These are the foods richest in vitamin A. If your resistance is 'way down, add cod liver oil, which is concentrated vitamin A, to your winter diet.

Get your beauty vitamins.

Vitamin C is another beauty factor. This vitamin is directly connected with the health of the teeth, gums and joints. A good way to insure its inclusion in the diet is to have at least one citrus fruit every day. Vitamin C is supplied most liberally in oranges, tomatoes, lemons, grapefruit, limes and pineapple. Good, sound teeth depend upon vitamins C, A, B and D, as well as phosphorus and calcium.

Vitamin B seems to have a lot to do with the nervous system, and there is nothing that effects your beauty like nerves! Extremely active people who burn up a great deal of nervous energy should be very sure to get their vitamin B, which is furnished in whole grains, wheat embryo and yeast. It is also supplied in vegetables in varying amounts. This important vitamin is essential to muscle tone and to proper functioning of the digestive system, and, therefore, to clarity of the skin.

Can Store Vitamin D.

The sunshine vitamin, D, can be stored in the body in summer, but concentrates of vitamins A and D, supplied in cod liver oil and haliver oil, are valuable in the winter diets of both children and adults. They keep up your resistance to colds and to the minor infections that undermine your health and beauty. Vitamin D is contained also in butter, egg yolk and irradiated foods.

Last Feudal State Rulers May Visit Here This Fall

The Seigneur and Dame of Sark, Who Were Feted Here in November, Plan Another Trip to Capital; Brother of Mr. Hathaway Is Resident of Bethesda.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Society events, now few and scattered, soon will be followed by the seasonal avalanche. Each day, plans are rolling up like snowballs, and as a whirl begins to gather momentum, it looks as if there's just about time to take one more long breath before plunging into a constant round of entertainment.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Just as the list of "coming out" parties grows longer, so does the list of celebrities scheduled to visit the Capital this fall and winter. In fact, a glance at the calendar for the next three months indicates that feteing is going to be pretty evenly divided between debutantes and distinguished visitors. The former we have with us every fall and winter, of course, but the latter never have come over in such numerous lots as they probably will between now and Christmas.

Latest among those whose visit to the Capital is expected in the late fall or early winter is Mrs. Robert W. Hathaway, the Dame de Sark, who with her husband, the Seigneur de Sark, rules over the last feudal state in the world—the tiny Channel Island of Sark, where peaceful prosperity functions under sixteenth century laws.

Widely Feted on Previous Visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway came to Washington last November on their first trip to the United States since their marriage in 1929, and were extensively feted both here and in New York during their visit. Mr. Hathaway is a brother of Harrison R. Hathaway, of Bethesda, Md., and was born in New Jersey and educated at Yale. The Dame is the former Sibyl Mary Collings, daughter of the late W. F. Collings, Seigneur of Sark. Before her marriage to Mr. Hathaway, she officiated as Seigneur of the little island over which members of her family have been overlords since 1852.

One time a haunt of pirates and later occupied by the French, Sark has been a feudal municipality since Queen Elizabeth decreed it so in 1565, when she granted the island to Sir Helier de Carteret on condition that he colonize it with 40 families. In 1732, it passed out of the hands of the De Carteret family and eventually came to Mrs. Hathaway's great-grandmother. Today, the Hathaways are overlords just as Seigneur de Carteret was. They take orders only from the King of England in council.

Although plans for Mrs. Hathaway's visit to the United States this fall still are nebulous, she will come at the invitations of Robert R. Ripley, who wants her to appear on his "Believe It or Not" radio program, and of the editor of a national mazagine interested in having her give a series of lectures in this country.

It seems, certainly, that the Dame of Sark would have much to say from the lecture platform, coming as she does from a principality in which there are no automobiles, no streetcars, no towns—and no one in jail. Her ancestral home is a fine Elizabethan mansion with a walled formal garden, situated on ground that was occupied by a monastery 1,000 years before the good Queen Bess. It is probable that the Dame of Sark will come over some time in November and be joined here later by the Seigneur. Judging from the round of parties given in their honor on their other visit, it also is probable that they will be widely entertained again.

Local Hathaways Also Newsworthy.

Mention of the Hathaways of Sark reminds me that some of their relatives around here also are newsworthy these days. Miss Cynthia Hathaway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hathaway, who was graduated at Vassar last June with high honors, including a history prize and election to Phi Beta Kappa, will leave October 1 for New York, where she will be on the editorial staff of Little Wings, the junior magazine of the Literary Guild.

Her sister, Miss Helen Hathaway, will leave in a few days for Boston, where she again will attend Webber College this year. The youngest of the Hathaway trio of sisters, Anne Hathaway, will spend the winter here, and is now deep in plans for entering junior high school soon.

Denmark Envoy Host at Dinner

Otto Wadsted, the Danish Minister, has been busy rounding up a congenial group to meet his distinguished countryman, Mayor Christensen of Copenhagen. The mayor—his department is social welfare—arrives in Washington today and the Minister is giving a dinner for him tomorrow evening at the Legation.

His guests will include the Chairman of the Social Security Board and Mrs. Altmeyer, the Chief of the Public Health Service and Mrs. Thomas Parran, the Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board and Mrs. J. Warren Madden, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Miss Josephine Roche; Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor; Dr. Martha Eliot, of the Labor Department Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Street, Gerard Reilly, solicitor of the Department of Labor, and Mr. and Mrs. Roberft Fechner.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins have been invited to the dinner, but the former is out of town, so their acceptance is not definite yet.

When Miss Frances Perkins entertains for the mayor and his wife at luncheon tomorrow she will greet her guests in her official dining room at the Department of Labor. Those invited include the Minister, the Counselor of the Legation, Wilhelm Eickhoff, and members of her staff.

Roper Children Visit Parents

Family reunions are the order at the home of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper. Tomorrow, their son, Leiut. Comdr. John W. Roper, is scheduled to arrive from Long Beach, Calif. When he is on official duty, he is aide to Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander in chief of the United States fleet and is accompanying the Admiral on his annual call East.

Then on Thursday, September 23, Mr. and Mrs. Roper's daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Bohn will arrive from Southern California, where he has been conducting a series of lectures at the universtiy. Grace Roper Bohn, all on her own, is an expert on Canadian tariff, being a member of the commission, with the very serious title of Assistant Economic Analyst. Partly due to her efforts, Washington's Town Hall of brilliant visiting speakers opened it "doors" several seasons ago.

Chinese Envoy Sees War Film

Dr. Wang and Aides Among Guests at Preview of Newsreel.

At the cocktail hour yesterday a private showing of the latest issue of the March of Time was given at the Carlton Hotel, with the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. C. T. Wang, in the audience as ranking guest. The film dealt in part with war scenes in Shanghai.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, who was also present, came to see a part of the film dealing with insect pests in the United States and the manner in which they attack crops.

Cocktails were served before and after the showing in the patio room of the hotel to the group of guests representing official and professional Washington residents.

Twenty members of the Chinese Embassy staff accompanied Ambassador Wang. Poth Jules Henry, Charge d'Affaires of the French Embassy, and Count Roussy de Sales, the French journalist, were interested spectators.

Among other guests were Senator and Mrs. William E. Borah, the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William Leahy, Laurence Knapp, Pendleton Turner, John Herling, of the Fortune magazine staff, and Hugh Wilson, Michael McDermott and Herbert Feis, of the State Department.

Lieut. A. J. Bolton, another guest, is leaving for the West Coast on Friday.

Mrs. Woodring Gives Farewell Luncheon For Miss Grunewald

Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War, entertained at a farewell luncheon at her home on S street yesterday for Miss Christine Grunewald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Grunewald, of the Westchester. She will leave today for Duke University at Chapel Hill, N. C.

The other guests were Miss Erma Grunewald, sister of the guest of honor and a student at Holton Arms; Miss Jean Benton, Miss Aileen Munson, Miss Katherine Conman, Miss Lochead Aubrey, Miss Hope Toulon, Miss Barbara Gruber and the Misses Jean Gullatte and Chaney McNabb, of Fort Belvoir.

Mexicans Plan Party Tonight

TONIGHT there is going to be a party at the Mexican Embassy. Not a glittering party, replete with red velvet carpets and long marble steps, but just an informal get-together for members of the Embassy staff and for the pillars of Washington's Mexican colony.

There will be no host and no hostess—though modest Dr. Rafael Fuentes, First Secretary, is making most of the necessary arrangements. In the absence of the Ambassador and Senora Najera, who are at this time in Mexico City, it devolves upon Dr. Fuentes to see that the celebration at the Embassy of Mexico's Independence Day is a complete success. There will be dinner, deliciously compiled of Mexico's tongue-tantalizing national dishes, and after that the program will be supplied by everybody, right on the spur of the moment.

Independence Day in Mexico falls on September 16, but most of the celebration of it falls on the day before. There is a very good reason for this. On September 15, 1810, all the bells in Mexico City began to ring, as Miguel Hidalgo, a patriotic priest, called the people to rise up against their Spanish overlord and proclaim themselves a free nation. So, figuratively speaking, bells will ring at the Embassy tonight in honor of Independence Day tomorrow. It sounds a little involved—but Senor Fuentes declares that it is good history.

ABOUT THE TOWN

With Dudley Harmon

A summer's dust will be flicked off the tables and bookshelves of the Junior League office and library today as the members prepare to open them for the winter. Mrs. William North Sturtevant, the president, gets back on Monday from her summer home at North Haven, Me., and within the next few weeks the headquarters on Massachusetts avenue will begin to seethe with activity.

So unobtrusively did Mrs. William Mackall, the former president, resign her post, that many of the members themselves did not know that Mrs. Sturtevant had been elected to carry on her duties. Having spent most of the summer in Alexandria, Mrs. Mackall is now living in nearby Arlington.

The library is being opened today because the league is anxious to raise as much money from it as possible for sweet charity's sake. So eager are members to have its shelves of fiction, nonfiction, murder thrillers and biographies patronized that they even deliver and call for the books themselves.

CHIEF WORRY of Junior Leaguers is that they will not be taken seriously. They don't want people to think them frivolous or forget all the hard work they do raising money for charity, visiting the sick, helping in hospitals, and occasionally sponsoring an art exhibition or similar cultural enterprise.

Every debutante secretly hopes to be elected a provisional member of the league when she "comes out," but a fair proportion are disappointed. There is no set number taken in annually, but year before last only one-tenth of the season's debs made the grade. Before becoming full-fledged leaguers, they have to pass an examination on serious subjects assigned them during their provisional period.

The late Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, who died in a tragic accident several years ago, was one of the founders of the league some 30 years ago. Since then it has grown like a mushroom and there is now a branch in every principal city.

MANY JUNIOR LEAGUERS are still out of town, but they will begin to trickle back within the next few days. Among these is Mrs. Pierre Gaillard, who is expected on Saturday from Macinac Island, Mich., where she spent the summer. She shares a cottage there with her sister, Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, and they take turn about every summer in occupying it.

Speaking of Rehoboth—although it is a little late in the season to do so—everybody who has been there loves the place, but hates the five-hour trip it takes to get there. C. A. R. Wastfelt, attache of the Swedish legation, has worked out the problem in a very satisfactory manner. He simply hops into his private plane and one hour later is ready for a swim in the cooling waters of the ocean.

Last Sunday he flew up in his tiny two-seater with a friend, and after lunch and a swim they were back in Washington for supper. The plane cost only about a thousand dollars—some cars cost a lot more than that—and they spent only a little more for gas on the Rehoboth flight than they would have in an automobile.

Mrs. McLean Due Back Today From Visit in Colorado

Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Evalyn McLean, and her son, Edward Beale McLean, jr., today will return to Friendship, her Wisconsin avenue estate, after having spent the past three months in Colorado. Also returning with Mrs. McLean is Miss Georgiana Todd.

John R. McLean, Mrs. McLean's other son, is also expected back in the Capital soon. He has been in the East most of the summer.

Visit Is Ended By Tuckermans

Mother and Daughters Are Back After Two Weeks in Southampton.

Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman and her daughters, Misses Ruth, Alice Noel and Margaret Carey Tuckerman, have returned to Washington after spending two weeks at Dormie, their place in Southampton, Long Island.

Shortly before leaving Southampton, Mrs. Tuckerman was guest of honor at a tea given by Mrs. Firth Geer and Miss Alice Tuckerman assisted in receiving at the tea dance at which Miss Betty Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Austin Clark, made her debut. Later Miss Tuckerman and her sisters attended.

While Mrs. Tuckerman and her daughters were in Southampton Mr. Tuckerman was at Rye, N. Y., where he participated in the recent golf tournament there. He left for Canada yesterday to take part in another tournament.

Brazil Takes Interest in Child Work

Mrs. Alfred Byington, Leader in Movement, Visits Capital.

The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. Alfred Byington, daughter of Mississippians who moved to Brazil after the Civil War, and wife of a native of the United States, now a Brazilian citizen, is pioneer in a child welfare movement which is sweeping through that country. She is in Washington, conferring with social service agencies to gather new ideas and also with a hope of bringing nations of North and South America into closer cooperation in such work.

Seven years ago, Mrs. Byington, whose home is in the state of Sao Paulo, was asked by a group of young women trained as "health educators" there to enlist the support of other influential women in their work for mothers and children. She organized a group which had its first meetings at her home. She also permitted clinics to be held there and made it a headquarters for welfare activities. Finally, Mr. Byington, recognizing the need for a larger and more suitable place for the project in which his wife was interested, gave the use of one of his buildings in the business center of the city.

As the movement grew, it became necessary to form a permanent organization and a charter was granted it as an institution, "Cruzada Pro Infancia." It has been given recognition by the government and receives a small subsidy but is maintained largely by private contributions. In addition to the central offices and clinics, there are four branches maintained in the city and a magazine is published every two months with news of progress of the work.

For three years a fresh air school was maintained on a large playground, temporarily unused. Later this project was taken over by the municipality and is now being successfully carried on by the city.

There is a growing recognition of the need of such social service not only in Sao Paulo, but throughout Brazil as a result of what has been accomplished there, Mrs. Byington says. Nine of the 20 states are adopting similar programs and joining in the observance of October 12 as "The Day of the Child." This inaugurates a week similar to our Child Health Week, in which one day is devoted to mothers, one to preschool children; others to infants; to school children; children who work; the dependent, delinquent or neglected child, and one day to the spiritual needs of the child.

As a result of interest aroused by this observance a year ago, the governor of Bahia, a state north of Rio de Janiero, has agreed to establish pensions to care for needy mothers up to the time their babies are six months old.

Mrs. Byington conferred here with Miss Katharine Lenroot, director of the Children's Bureau, and Mrs. Elizabeth Shirley Enochs, of the staff of the bureau, whom she met some years ago when Mrs. Enochs was in Brazil. She also visited the Juvenile Court, the Pan-American Union, D. C. Health Department, the new prenatal and child hygiene centers and Catholic School of Social Service. She goes from here to Williamsburg to inspect the social service school at the College of William and Mary, and on to Cleveland to visit her daughter, who is married and living there.

Kansan Marries Dorothy Howe

Miss Dorothy Duncan Howe, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Howe, of New York and Washington, who was presented to Washington society in 1934 and who attended the Holton Arms School here, became the bride of Lathrop Smith Douglass at a wedding which took place September 10 in Greenwich, Conn. The ceremony was performed in Christ Church, with the Rev. Albert J. Wilson officiating.

Mr. Douglass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Robinson Douglass, of Kansas City, Mo., studied at Yale University and the Yale School of Architecture, from both of which he was graduated with honors. He also studied at the Ecole Americaine, in Fountainebleau, and is a member of Sigma Xi.

Carin Anderson Becomes Bride Of Dr. Maury

A wedding at which the two principals concerned were members of Washington's medical set took place September 11 at Pen Mar, Pa., when Miss Carin Margareta Anderson became the bride of Dr. Franklin Hervey Maury. Both studied in Baltimore at the Wilmer Institute of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, of which Dr. Maury's uncle, the late Dr. William Holland Wilmer, was physician in charge.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Anders Herman Anderson, of Stockholm, Sweden, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Maury, of Mobile, Ala.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Benjamin Rones, Plinio Montalvan and Theodore Abernathy, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. Walsh and Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Anderson, of Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. King, of Waynesboro.

Mrs. Maury, who is now on the staff of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital here in Washington, is a graduate of the Central Hospital of Varmland, Sweden, and during six years was connected with the Wilmer Institute. Dr. Maury is a graduate of Tulane University Medical School in New Orleans as well as of the Wilmer Institute. They will make their home in Washington.

Howard Maucks To Reside Here

Now on their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mauck, who were married September 11 at Calvary Baptist Church, with Dr. William Abernathy officiating, plan to make their home here in Washington upon their return.

Mrs. Mauck was the former Miss Bettye Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carlton Davis, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Clyde Mauck, of Alexandria, Va.

The bride's attendants were her sisters, Miss Clara Davis, who acted as maid of honor, and Mrs. Caroline Wood, who was matron of honor. Miss Mary Carper Butler, a friend, of Charleston, W. Va., served as bridesmaid.

Theodore H. Dent acted as best man and the ushers were Z. D. Blackistone 3d, Daniel C. Eberly, Carl Pierce and Henry Alt.

The bride's gown, fashioned on bouffant lines, was of champagne tinted marquisette over matching taffeta. Velvet ribbons at the waistline had bows in front whose ends extended the full length of the gown. Her tulle cap had a short veil and her flowers were a cluster bouquet of dark hybrid orchids, surrounded by phalenopsis.

The dresses of her attendants were of contrasting shades of peach, and were made on lines similar to that of the bride. Their headdresses were of velvet ribbon and the bouquets were of gerberas, blended with the color of their gowns.

Professional Women Asked to Aid Move For City Manager Rule in Alexandria

A plea for a movement to institute the city manager form of government in fact as well in name in Alexandria, was made to the Business and Professional Women's Club by J. Randall Caton last night at its dinner meeting at the George Mason Hotel. Mr. Caton, an attorney of Alexandria, whose wife is a former member and past president of the club, was the first speaker on the new year's program following the National Federation theme, "Our Town's Business."

When the charter was adopted, three years ago, providing a city manager form of government, it left to a vote, the choice between having five council members elected at large, or three members chosen at large, and six elected by wards. The second plan is that under which the city now operates and puts the administration into partisan politics where it was before, Mr. Caton explained. The purpose of the city manager form is to serve the best interests of the entire city and conduct its affairs on a business basis, he said. This could be best served by the election of five councilmen at large, he asserted, because all would then be representing the city as a whole rather than their separate wards.

The only way to change the present plan is by an election which could be called on petition of 10 per cent of the qualified voters. Mr. Caton urged the business and professional women to study the relative merits of the two systems and to support a movement to institute the one which would make the city manager government effective in the way it was originally intended.

Miss Elizabeth Apperson, vice president of the club, presided in the absence of Miss Corrine Reardon, the president. The music included a group of songs by Mrs. Cameron Roberts, a former member accompanied by Mrs. Elva Book. Miss Dolly Callahan, of the faculty of George Washington High School, was introduced as a new member. About 40 were present at the dinner.

Mrs. C. H. Corlett Hostess for Nieces

Things are beginning to boom for the younger set. One of the first parties of the new season was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Charles H. Corlett, wife of Col. Corlett, U. S. A., when tea and cakes were the order of the afternoon at her home in honor of her three nieces, the Misses Anne and Susan Cornelius, and Miss Mary Corlett Taylor, all of Colorado, who are visiting her.

Miss Taylor and Miss Anne Cornelius expect to settle down as permanent fixtures of Washington society—for this season at least—for they will live with Mrs. Corlett and study at the University of Maryland. Miss Susan Cornelius is bound for New York, where she will take her master's degree at Columbia University.

Although the tea was for the most part a young people's affair, Mrs. Corlett was assisted by several of her own friends. This group included Mrs. James A. O'Connor, wife of Col. O'Connor, of Belvoir; Mrs. Edward S. Johnson, Mrs. Lathe Row and Mrs. Herbert F. Corn.

Mrs. Keyes Takes Post On Magazine

Will Add Several New Departments; Plans Other Changes.

By Christine Sadler.

On her first day back in Washington after a summer of work and travel in Europe, Frances Parkinson Keyes yesterday assumed the editorship of the D. A. R. Magazine, official organ of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Keyes, wife of Former Senator Henry W. Keyes, of New Hampshire, and author of several best sellers—the latest of them "Capital Kaleidoscope"—last night announced plans designed to make the small journal into possibly the leading historical magazine of the country.

Historical articles, historical fiction, at least two serials a year, a book review department and one on antiques will be added. Heretofore the journal has been a conventional club magazine.

To Set Standard In History Field.

"Now we hope to do for the field of history what the National Geographic does for the field of geography. The magazine, of course, will continue to outline D. A. R. activities. We will take out nothing now of general interest, but will broaden the field.

"We hope to reach all 150,000 D. A. R. members, as well as be of general appeal.

"If history repeats itself we want to be ready for the repetition. Presentation of good, modern historical articles will help," Mrs. Keyes said.

In the antiqyue department the magazine will carry articles on furniture one month, glass the next, and so on around the antique calendar.

Its format will remain unchanged and it will be January before the innovation in material begins to be evident. One of the changes noted then, in addition to big-name articles and authentic historical fiction, will be less stiff and less glazed inside pages.

The appointment of Mrs. Keyes was announced by Mrs. William A. Becker, president general. She is the second editor the magazine has had and succeeeds Miss Natalie Lincoln, who died two years ago.

New Editor An Active D. A. R.

Mrs. Keyes is as well known to D. A. R. members as a patriotic leader in their society as she is as an author. She entered the organization through eight different ancestors who fought in the War for Independence. Her mother, Mrs. John H. Wheeler, of Newbury, Vt., was an early member and founder of the Oxbow Chapter. She has regularly attended the Continental Congress each April.

During the summer she motored through many European countries, making two trips to Lisieux, scene of "Written in Heaven," one of her best known books. She covered the National Eucharistic Congress there for an American syndicate, living in the convent where she wrote the book. After a tour through Normandy studying the old inns she returned to the convent for a birthday party in her honor on July 21.

A study of German housing projects in four cities was made by Mrs. Keyes for the Federal Housing Authority, and in Paris she inspected the American art exhibit arranged by the WPA under direction of Ellen S. Woodward, assistant administrator.

In addition to this "official" business, she found time to motor into Holland, to visit her publishers in London, and to write 10,000 words on her next novel—which will be out in midwinter.

Her new editorial duties, which make up the first "time-clock" job she has ever had, will not put a stop to Mrs. Keyes creative writing, she said.

HELEN PRENTISS, who last July became the bride of Paul J. Culhane, will be guest of honor at a bride's shower being given Saturday night by Elizabeth M. Cox, in whose office she began her legal career. Her husband is an attorney, as is Mrs. Cox's husband, Henry A. Cox.

The guests Saturday night all will be members of Kappa Beta Pi, international legal sorority, of which Mrs. Cox is province dean and the bride a former officer. Miss Elizabeth Reed, new grand dean, will be there, as will Miss Beatrice Clephane, assistant editor of the quarterly; Mrs. Olive Geiger Faircloth, dean of Eta alumnae chapter; Mrs. Grace Dawson, grand marshal; Miss Margaret Rawalt, director of Province No. 2; Judge Ellen K. Raedy, Mrs. Elizabeth Casteel, Mrs. Anne S. Musgrave, Mrs. Minnie Cheseldine, Miss Margaret Hunt, Miss Eleanor Finch, Mrs. Mildred Gott Bryant, Mrs. Verna Parsons Young, Mrs. Edwina Avery, Miss Mary Connelly, Mrs. Marion Hines Taylor, Miss Grace Knode, Mrs. Clemency Coulson, Miss Mildred Reeves, Miss Edith Cooper, Miss Anna Boyle, Miss Helen Newman, law librarian at George Washington Library, and Miss Anna Hedrick, who has her office at Arlington Courthouse.

Mrs. Cox is entertaining at a supper at 7 o'clock at her home on Iowa avenue, and members of the company will go from there to the home of the bridal couple, which is near American University.

The bride, whose father was the late Spencer Prentiss, senior member of the law firm of Prentiss & Stone, is a member of the Woman's Bar Association and the National Association of Women Lawyers.

JUST RECEIVED this month's interesting "Zontagram" with all the news of local Zontians. Lois Dowdle Cobb, a former member of the club, with her husband, Tully A. Cobb, is leaving this week for Atlanta, Ga., where he is resuming his publishing business. They will live at 1296 Fairview road.

Also, according to the "Zontagram," Edith Salisbury, another Zontian, leaves Saturday for Canada—but not to stay; just for a vacation.

And another bit of news from the club's monthly bulletin: Birthdays of members which occur in September, listed with numbers in front of them. (Do you suppose the numbers indicate the ages?) There are Katherine Ansley, 12; Vera Lundquist, 19; Kathryn Fox, 20; Frances Hill, 23; Hettie Anderson and Winifred Burwell, the president, both 24. If Zonta gives a birthday party for them, I'd just like to suggest gifts befitting their years.

MRS. M. L. PARLER, president of the Washington Alumnae Chapter of Delta Zeta, will entertain the executive committee at her home in Alexandria this evening. The activities for the coming year will be outlined and final arrangements made for the October meeting. Plans also will be discussed for the Panhellenic delegates' tea in honor of Miss Helen Martell, president of the city Panhellenic Congress. Miss Martell is the Delta Zeta representative on the city Panhellenic this year as well as its president.

The executive committee has the following members: Mrs. Parler, president; Mrs. R. E. Stevens, vice president; Mrs. G. L. White, secretary; Miss Louise Shoemaker, treasurer, and the heads of the standing committees, Mrs. T. Osterhaus, social; Miss Margaret Neuman, program; Miss Zoe McFadden, membership, and Mrs. G. L. White, benefits.

Roosevelt Says To Wait Until Black Returns

Declares He Didn't Know of Klan Charge When He Appointed Senator.

he had had no communication with Black since the membership charges were made and that he had no information on when the justice would return. When a reporter pointed out that his statement implied that some statement would be forthcoming when Black does return Mr. Roosevelt cautioned the news men not to go out on a limb on that supposition. When a reporter started to ask what would happen if it turned out that the justice is a Klansman, the President interrupted with the assertion that this was an "if" question and declined to answer.

Asked whether the Justice Department had made an investigation into Black's qualifications for the Supreme Court appointment, the President said he did not know.

Attorney General Cummings yesterday said, after he had been questioned as to whether such an investigation was made:

"His record of public service and selection on two occasions by the State of Alabama as United States Senator made his suitability beyond question."

Declaration Asked For.

Meanwhile, Senator A. Harry Moore (Democrat), of New Jasrey, said he would not have voted to confirm Black if it had been proved at the time of the Senate vote that Black was a member of the Klan, the Associated Press reported. Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, declared at Clinton, Mass., that the new justice "owes it to the President, the Senate and the country to declare publicly whether he is a member of the Klan and if so to indicate in unmistakable language his repudiation of the Ku Klux Klan and its principles."

In New York, Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), seeking the mayoralty nomination, declared Black obtained Senate confirmation of his nomination "by misrepresentation and not without fraud." Saying there was no legal way to remove the Alabaman from the bench, he added, according to the Associated Press:

"The only way is by resignation. This should be done. The country should not be embarrassed."

In London, Black, recently arrived from Paris, escaped besieging newspaper men by leaving his hotel with Mrs. Black and motoring into the country. He refused to make any statement on the Klan charges, and complained to the management of his hotel about the "lack of privacy" provided for him.

Evans Indorses Copeland.

On the other hand, Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Klan, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying the hooded order had "supported Copeland in his 1928 race for the Senate.

"Senator Copeland is a good friend of mine," Evans added, "and I think he is the best candidate in a bad lot seeking the mayorship of New York."

Senator Moore, elaborating on his statement, said Black should be given an opportunity either to affirm or deny the charge of Ku Klux membership. "After all," he said, "it is a charge and has not been proven yet."

"Senator Bankhead (of Alabama)," he added, "said on the floor of the Senate that Black was not a member of the Ku Klux Klan. I took that at its face value. When a Senator makes a statement on the floor of the Senate, it's supposed to be the truth."

Senator Walsh suggested that the President select an "impartial agency" to ascertain the truth of the charges.

"And," he said, "if the President, through such an investigation, found Black to be a member of the Klan, he can ask for his resignation."

Walsh pointed out that the Senate could take no action until January and then could only investigate the facts.

Reconsideration Doubtful.

Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama, also named as a life member of the Klan, told the Associated Press at Atlantic City that he formerly was a member, but could not recall ever meeting Black at any Klan meetings or conferences.

"I never knew Black to be a member of the Klan," he was quoted as saying, "and I never saw one of the life membership cards in the Klan which Black and I were supposed to hold."

Replying to suggestions that the Senate might reopen its consideration of Black's appointment, Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, said at Birmingham:

"If the Senate can reopen consideration of Justice Black, it can also reconsider its confirmation of Justices Butler, McReynolds and Sutherland, the conservative members of the court, of which there has been much criticism."

Klan Wizard Evans would not say definitely whether Black ever had been a Klansman.

"I know he is not a member now," he said, "but I have more to do than ramble through millions of membership cards to find out if he ever held membership!"

Senator Moore said that if it had been shown Black had been a Klansman, but had resigned, Moore still would have voted for his confirmation.

In Boston, insistence upon an investigation into charges that Black is a member of the Ku Klux Klan was voiced by Congressman John W. McCormack (Democrat), Massachusetts, the Associated Press reported.

In a letter to United States Senator Henry F. Ashurst, chairman of the committee on Judiciary, Congressman McCormack asserted "the Senate owes it to itself * * * and to the American people to make this investigation."

New Deal Paper's Call on Black to Quit

Text of editorial, entitled Justice Black Should Resign, printed this morning in the Philadelphia Record, stanch Administration supporter:

It can no longer be doubted that Justice Black was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, one of the most vicious, antisocial and un-American organizations ever to exist in this country. The President and his liberal supporters can only be relieved of their grave embarrassment by the resignation of Mr. Black. If he will not resign voluntarily, then the President should insist that he step down.

As a United States Senator, Mr. Black has a magnificent record of progressivism. He has been an outstanding liberal, frequently sponsoring legislation more advanced than the President's own program. Yet, such a fine legislative record cannot overcome the blot of Klan membership.

Those of us who fought the Klan in the 20s vividly recall it for what it was: A bigoted gang of hidebound hoodlums, with a fair sprinkling of pseudo-respectable citizens who gave it a certain "tone." It fomented racial and religious hatreds. It tried to nullify the rights of freedom and worship and of assemblage guaranteed by our Constitution—the same Constitution that Supreme Court justices must interpret.

That the Klan did not succeed was due to the deep tradition of democracy in America, which caused the public to revolt, to stamp it out by popular opinion set in force by men of ideals and courage.

The riff-raff who joined the Klan in those days might be pardoned. They didn't know any better. But Hugo Black, in the early 20s, was an intelligent man with a background. He must have recognized the dangers to democracy inherent in such an order. He must have known that the moment he enrolled in the Klan, the word would go out through secret, devious channels; that his name would give an air of respectability to gangs of masked thugs; that he would immediately become a force on the side of darkness; that he would help to spread intolerance and race hatred throughout his State. There is no excuse for him.

It may have been politically expedient; it may have been that Mr. Black's career in the public service would have died aborning had he not won Klan support. But other Southerners were courageous enough to fight the Klan and take the political consequences. Senator Underwood was an outstanding example. He sacrificed a seat in the Senate rather than kow-tow to Kluxers. There were others.

All politicians—even our greatest statesmen—must sometimes compromise in order to make any progress at all. Yet, there are certain fundamental principles which can never be compromised—no matter what the cost.

It may be that Mr. Black sincerely regrets the Klan interlude in his earlier political life. It may be that he determined to devote the rest of his time to constructive statesmanship and help for the underdog. It may be that his exit from the court would be a loss to liberalism. Nevertheless, the precedent of a Klansman on the court is so pernicious, so dangerous, that Mr. Black must resign regardless of the personal or political effect.

* * * *

The President may be partially excused for his mistake in nominating Senator Black for the Supreme Court. Mr. Roosevelt, cognizant of the Senator's 11-year record of progressivism, may have believed that so outstanding a liberal could never have been a member of so thoroughly reactionary an organization as the Klan. To have asked him the direct question might have been as embarrassing as to query a notable church worker about underworld connections. But the President should have made certain. It was possible to learn the truth.

There is valid excuse for the action of the Senate in confirming Mr. Black. Though the Senator did not issue a public statement denying his Klan membership, he reputedly informed several of his colleagues privately that the rumors were false. Men like La Follette, Guffey, Wagner, Borah, defended him—because they accepted his word.

Now comes proofs which can hardly be doubted. Now comes an airy wave of the hand from the justice, himself, as he tours Europe. He won't deny it, he won't admit it, he won't talk. He would laugh it off.

Truck Out of Control Crashes Into Dwelling

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 14 (AP).—Rufus Miller was awakened at 3 a. m. today by a crash that rocked his home. His sleepy eyes were blinded by the headlights of a freight truck astraddle an easy chair.

The truck driver explained he had gone asleep at the wheel and swerved into the house. Miller's living room was almost demolished.

President Confesses He's Pinched for Money

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt confided to newsmen yesterday that he has his own financial troubles.

He was asked at his press conference about the general monetary situation, and particularly if he thought there was any prospect of a "money pinch."

The Chief Executive referred his questioner to the Treasury. Then he added, with a smile, that he himself is always in a money pinch.

Maryland Farmers Ask Prison Labor

Baltimore, Sept. 14 (AP).—Twenty Howard and Anne Arundel county farmers petitione dthe State Board of Welfare today to allow House of Correction prisoners to work on their farms when their employment might prevent crop losses.

The petition was presented at a board meeting calle dto investigate employment of House of Correction prisoners on Howard County farms.

Two Howard County farmers, W. F. Stirm and William S. Ledbetter, who have employed prison labor in the past, appeared before the board to present the same request. The petition held that crop losses might occur if farmers suffered a labor shortage and were prevented from employing the prisoners.

Charles J. Butler, board chairman, said he was convinced an act of the 1937 Legislature made it illegal to employ House of Correction prisoners in this manner but that he would refer the matter to Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor for an opinion.

Warden Walter E. Quenstedt, of the House of Correction, was summoned before the board to explain the situation in Howard County.

Harold E. Donnell, State superintendent of prisons, said before the meeting he had ordered such employment halted six or seven years ago.

Asserted Head Of Klan Here Invades N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 14. — J. L. Baskin, a Richmond (Va.) lawyer, who described himself as grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan for Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, said today he would address several Klan meetings at undisclosed places during his visit here.

He estimated the Klan membership in New York is between 60,0000 and 70,000 and said this was about 75 per cent of the peak for all time. A membership drive is in full swing now, he said.

Baskin, a member of the Klan since 1917, added he could not say whether Hugo L. Black also was a member.

"I have known Mr. Black for 25 years," he said. "He is an honest man, and if you ask him he will tell you. If he gives you an answer it will be the truth."

He made public excerpts of one of the speeches he expected to deliver here, disavowing any direct Klan interest in the current city campaign in these words:

"We are not concerning ourselves about your local mayoralty campaign, although it might not be amiss for us to do so. We do propose to devote ourselves to this un-American city and actively oppose to the best of our ability the foreign elements who are engaged in this campaign merely as a practice maneuver looking ahead to the national campaigns of 1938 and 1940."

Klan Link Would Alter His Vote, McAdoo Says

Santa Barbara, Calif., Sept. 14 (AP). Senator William G. McAdoo, who voted for confirmation of Senator Hugo L. Black as Justice of the United States Supreme Court, said tonight he would not have done so if he had known, or believed, the Alabaman is a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

"I am frank to say that if I had known, or believed, Senator Black is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, I would not have voted for his confirmation," Senator McAdoo said. "But I am not in possession of all the facts, and reserve judgment until after they are fully developed."

Ohio Village Bank Robbed.

Washington Court House, Ohio, Sept. 14 (AP).—Three men robbed the Farmers State Bank at nearby Good Hope, a village of 250, of an undetermined amount of money today. Miss Effie Palmer, the cashier, was alone when the holdup occurred.

Theater Guild Subscriptions Break Records

New Season Sets New Marks in Five of Country's Principal Cities.

Lucile Luttrell, subscription manager of the American Theater Society, announced yesterday from the New York offices of the Theater Guild that the five subscription cities have already broken the records of last season, with an enrollment of more than 40,000 subscribers. The entire balcony of the Erlanger Theater, Chicago, has already been sold out, and the same can be said for the National Theater, Washington, D. C.

With several weeks still to go, the number of subscribers on the books for the coming season should pass the 65,000 mark. The old record, established last year, was 38,128.

This means an increase of more than 40 per cent for the five cities, the biggest subscription jump since the American Theater Society's inception six years ago.

Capital No Laggard.

Boston, with 9,000 subscribers on its books, has tripled its last year's record and, at the moment, leads all the other cities in this respect. Chicago, with 12,000, shows an increase of 50 per cent over the previous season, and Philadelphia, with 5,000, is 30 per cent ahead with bright prospects of increasing this to 40 per cent before the subscription season closes.

Washington is showing unusually strong gains with 3,000, making double last season's enrollment at this time, and Pittsburgh shows the same percentage of increase with 2,500 joining the season at the Nixon Theater.

Washington subscribers to the American Theater Society will see two Theater Guild productions next month. The first, opening at the National Theater October 4, will be Gaston Baty's dramatization of Flaubert's novel, "Madame Bovary," with Constance Cummings in the leading role. Benn W. Levy adapted the play and is also directing the production, which is now in rehearsal.

This will be the first production of the American Theater Society's sixth subscription season in Washington.

Lunts Are Coming.

The second play will be the Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne production of Jean Giraudoux's "Amphitryon 38," which will open at the National Theater October 18, with Mr. Lunt as Jupiter and Miss Fontanne as Alkmena. "Madame Bovary" will open at the Broadhurst Theater, New York, October 19 as the second production of the guild's twentieth New York subscription season, while "Amphitryon 38" will be presented as the third production at the Shubert Theater November 2.

Also scheduled for Washington is Gilbert Miller's production of "Tovarich," with Marta Abba in the role she created in New York.

Disney Makes Rapid Strides With Cameras

Moviegoers leaving a theater after seeing Walt Disney's Silly Symphony, "The Old Mill," will probably wonder, subconsciously or otherwise, why it looked a little different from the usual Silly Symphonies.

This short subject was the testing ground for the new multiplane camera process, developed within the Disney studios, and which will be seen further in their first feature-length production, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Camera Cost High.

The camera, which was perfected after months of testing, and at a cost exceeding $50,000, enables the characters painted upon transparent celluloid sheets, to be photographed against a background at different levels.

The history of the camera at the Disney studios is one which actually calls forth the overworked adjective, "amazing."

Several years ago the department consisted of one cameraman who also used to cut the films. Now, there is a test camera crew of 13 men working in three eight-hour shifts. There is a color camera crew of 8 men and a cutting department of 11.

In addition, there are always camera experts working overtime to perfect new and ingenious methods of shooting animated pictures.

Serial Queen Set In Comeback Role

And remember the heroines, Helen Gibson and Helen Holmes?

Retired from the strenuous goings-on of those silent chapter-films, both young women still live in Hollywood, and recently Miss Gibson, the first wife of Hoot Gibson, turned up as an extra in Paramount's "High, Wide and Handsome," appearing in a scene with Irene Dunne and Randolph Scott under Rouben Mamoulian's direction.

What a Figure!

Louise Campbell eats toast and coffee for breakfast, two apples for lunch, two in the afternoon and a regular dinner—minus bread at night. And does she have a figure!

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

One of the Year's Notable Motion Picture Weeks Leaves the District's Citizenry Slightly Chilled

Perfect Weather, Labor Day's Aftermath and Other Items Have Their Effect at the Box Offices; Rialto Closed for Policy Change; Java Invites Cornell; Irish Players Expand Repertoire; Peters Promoted.

WHILE a different story may be written beginning today, this week, so far, has presented one of those strange anomalies in the theater when the motion picture bills are uniformly of too high a level of excellence for their own good.

BELL.

With such attractions on view among the downtown screens as "One Hundred Men and a Girl," "Stella Dallas," "Varsity Show" and the rest, it was presumed that the walls of the theaters would bulge with the crowds clamoring to see such fine exhibits of the advanced art of the cinema. The walls, however, remain intact and show not even so much as a dent.

This is not to say that the leading first-run film houses are not enjoying lucrative patronage. It is merely that they are not "packin' 'em in" quiet as was expected. Probably the weather has had something to do with it. The potential theatergoing public of the Capital has found an irresistible lure in the first touch of autumn temperatures, accompanied by cloudless skies and perfect touring weather. Those that have remained faithful have divided their allegiance about equally among the temples of the gelatin drama. It is all a little surprising.

There may be a wait of several weeks before another such array of pictures is available in a single seven-day period. As has been emphasized—I hope—in this space before, "One Hundred Men and a Girl" and "Varsity Show" point the way to a deft and logical utilization of music as an aid to plot; "Stella Dallas" deals with redoubled effectiveness with a vibrant story of mother love to which Samuel Goldwyn virtually has given his all, as the saying goes, in the matter of studio resources. The other current features, including "Wee Willie Winkie," "Lost Horizon," "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" and the rest, also are pretty well known to the gentry by now.

Of these last named, "Lost Horizon" is the outstanding beneficiary of a repeat engagement. The Frank Capra picturization for Columbia of the James Hilton novel is doing a landoffice business, to coin another pat phrase, and bids fair to continue its run at the Metropolitan, notwithstanding the splendid success it scored at the Earle and, contemporaneously, in four days at the Ambassador.

But "Stella Dallas" definitely will terminate its engagement at the Palace tomorrow night and the jury is still out as to the Deanna Durbin vehicle. This is a serious reflection upon the discrimination of Washington theatergoers. See that it doesn't happen again!

However, what I said back in the first line or two of these casual remarks upon an unprecedented situation still goes. I mean, "a different story may be told beginning today."

Today is the first Government pay day since the Labor Day holiday—and if you think that doesn't make a difference, you are practically e pluribus mentis, non compos unum, or something!

And that is not all that is unusual in the local theater setup. With the close of business last night, the Rialto Theater closed its doors for at least a week while a new house policy is being formulated. That policy may take a dozen different forms—give or take a few either way—according to the tangle of rumors that have been floating about for weeks. Bobbing up most persistently in all this speculation has been the word "burlesque." It has been reported repeatedly that "smoker circuit" interests have been hot after the house to heat it up with a hot line of entertainment. If this proves to be true and the final turn of the wheel stops on burlesque, there will be need for a bit of remodeling on Ninth street. The Rialto stage is of no very imposing proportions and no provision was made in the plans of the house for dressing rooms, fly grid and other necessary facilities for the housing of touring road attractions of whatever nature. But this is all a lot of tilting with windmills. Announcement of the actual future plans will be made by the Rialto management in due course.

A bulletin from that eminent globetrotter, Ray Henderson, now on a world tour blazing the trail for Katharine Cornell, arrives from the Hotel des Indes, Batavia, Java, to impart the word that President J. Ph. van Hasselt of the Bond van Kunstkringen of Java—if that isn't too hot to handle—has invited Miss Cornell and her company to appear in Batavia, Sourabaya, Bandoeng and Semarang, if she makes her globe-circling trip next year.

It is believed by those who should know, including Mr. Henderson, that Miss Cornell will be the first foreign actress to visit Java with her own company of players and the first to present Shakespeare in English in that country.

The Bond van Kunstkringen, since you insist, is a nonprofit-making organization which has its own theaters, where it gives concerts by internationally famous musicians and produces plays acted by its own members. It also sponsors art exhibitions and occasional motion pictures. The society is supported by subscriptions from leading Dutch and foreign residents in Java and is the center of the cultural life of the country. So that is settled.

It is pleasant to record that a reward for loyalty, efficient service and hard work came yesterday to Gorge R. Peters, for the past several years assistant manager of Loew's Capitol Theater. Mr. Peters' recognition took the form of a promotion to the managership of the Loew house in Reading, Pa., according to announcement from the office of Eastern Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc. Mr. Peters, like so many other Loew employes who have climbed to positions of responsibility, began as an usher. His real start was obtained, however, with Manager Orangelo—"Angie" to you-all—Ratto, at the Palace, several years back. From his start there, he has advanced steadily. Congratulations.

The alert Mr. Claude P. Greneker, of the Shubert offices in New York, takes his mimeograph in hand to say that three plays have been added to the American repertoire of the Abbey Theater Irish Players, from Dublin, who open their season on this side in the Ambassador Theater, New York, on September 30 and are expected later to visit Washington.

"Riders to the Sea," by James Synge; Lady Gregory's "Rising of the Moon," and "Passing Day," in six scenes, by George Shiels, are the added starters. The original roster already has been recited in this space.

So Dan Terrell drops by from the Warner offices to add a copy of "The Deep South," by Ward Greene, to our expanding library of fiction pieces that have been converted into motion pictures. In film form, the Greene novel will bear the title of "They Won't Forget" and is to be previewed by the drama desks this afternoon at 1:30. It is reputedly the most significant celluloid work the youthful Mervyn Le Roy has tackled to date. More along this line tomorrow, one fears. The productive and large-hearted Mr. Terrell was accompanied on his errand of generosity by Agent MacMurray, whanging the cymbal a few days in advance of Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers Orchestra, opening on the stage at the Earle Friday. "They Won't Forget" will be seen at the Metropolitan the week of September 24. And if I have neglected to mention it, thanks for the book.

The principal male role will be played by Osgood Perkins.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Sept. 14.

Mutterings: Funny how John Barrymore swells with pride whenever anyone refers to his drinking ability. Frantic urge: to tell Frank Morgan that freak mannerisms, no matter how amusing originally, can become boresome if repeated in too many pictures. Growl: why do all of our brain-proud producers overlook that grand little actress, Mae Clarke, when they pass out the breaks? Maybe Adrian is a genius—but those wide-shouldered grotesques that he designs for Joan Crawford give me the jitters. Hit-and-run notion: to greet the sultry Mae West with a cheery "Good morning, Mrs. Wallace."

JOHN BARRYMORE.

Wonder if my yen to choke alleged comic, Lew Lehr, proves I have no sense of humor? Nervous itch: to tell some of our "best-dressed" movie queens that well-dressed women should not wear all of their jewels at lunch. Height of something or other: a fan letter received by Loretta Young after she adopted those children—its author requested $500 because she wanted a baby and couldn't afford one. Secret ambition: to have a confidential chat with the governesses of certain too-sweet movie children.

Wondering muse: are the unemployed husbands of screen stars given a monthly allowance or do they have to ask each time they want a dollar? No wonder there are so many traffic accidents in Hollywood when shapely gals are allowed to parade the streets in shorts. Imaginable hilarious evening: to play "truth" with filmtown's most-married stars and ask the real reason for each of their divorces.

The late Marie Dressler started by giving a banquet for the cast and crew of each of her pictures; Joan Crawford amplified it by presenting a souvenir gift to each member of her troupe when a picture was "in the can" and now, every star in Hollywood is trying to set a record for munificence. Marlene Dietrich, on the completion of "Angel," distributed gifts that must have cost her a week's pay. Carole Lombard celebrated the last shot of her most recent opus by practically buying out the gift department of Filmville's largest store. Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone — being practical — each gave $1,000 in cash and were thoughtful enough to fix the amount of each in inverse ratio to the amount of the giftee's wages —propeerty boys rated $100, the director a check for $1.66. It will not be long before Hollywood's set workers inquire about the bonus possibilities before accepting a job.

Set visited with Dorothy Lamour today and found her—as usual—garbed in one of those South Sea watchumacallems that reveal practically all of the North and South temperate zones. And very becoming such an outfit is in her shapely instance, too. I congratulated her on the evenness and smooth texture of her brown body makeup and was informed a bit tartly that she no longer wears makeup. "After playing three native girls in rapid-fire succession, I took the hint," she explained. "I invested in a sun-lamp, spent an hour or so under its rays each day and dared any producer to invent a role. African excluded, that was too dark-skinned for me to play au naturel!" Darned clever, these movie misses.

This morning's publicity barrage contained a sentimental little item about Lew Ayres and Ginger Rogers. "Lew has been visiting Ginger on the set so frequently," it stated, "that many of their friends are predicting that they will remarry." And there you have the typical Hollywood "slant"—not having been divorced, Ginger and Lew most certainly are still married but this town insists on regarding a separation as something just as emancipating as a divorce decree. Separated, but not legally divorced, stars flaunt their new loves before the world and the publicity lads and lassies relate the details of their romance as casually as though their marriage contracts had been dissolved when they packed their suitcases. I wonder what people in more conventional communities think when they read gushy fan magazine articles about the romance of, say, Clak Gable and Carole Lombard.

Had a date to go swimming with Jack Haley this afternoon but he telephoned his regrets. It seems that the Haley swimming pool is wearing the out-of-order sign for the time being. This morning Gloria, the young daughter of the family, invited some of her pals for a swim and Mrs. Haley, greatly concerned about the sun-burn menace, ordered them to go upstairs and coat themselves thoroughly with cold cream before taking their plunge. They got Jack's shaving cream by mistake—and the pool had to be drained to get rid of the suds.

Lady Godiva Role Narrowly Averted

The embarrassing plight of Orien Heyward is like that of the little Hindu who had no clothes and had to make his skin do!

Blushing no little, but thoroughly determined to see a test run of her new picture, "She Asked for It," the ex-Gotham model dashed from her car and into the studio attired in one (1) bathrobe.

While attaches of the wardrobe department scouted for emergency garments Miss Heyward explained that during her vacation tour, just completed, she shipped part of her clothes to Banff, Canada, part to Chicago, and part to New York, where they now repose because she forgot to give shipping orders in the excitement of returning to Hollywood.

12 P. M. "Here's why Republican Leader John R. Crews announced in Sunday's papers that he's for LaGuardia," a politican whispers at the Tavern. "Crews and Jeremiah T. Mahoney have an understanding. He doesn't want Copeland to win the Republican nomination, because then it'd be tougher for Jerry to win. Mahoney will take care of Crews if he's elected mayor" . . . "Please tell the cameraman no peectures," Luise Rainer asks Band Leader Emery Deutsch at the Rainbow Room. "Van I am avay from peectures, I dunt like to pose."

"Dolph Williams Atherton, nephew of Gertrude Atherton, will appear in a Shubert musical," a producer tips at Armando's. "He'll drop the 'Atherton' from his name" . . . "And John Montague, the Hollywood golfer," a publicist adds, "has turned down theatrical offers from every agent in town. But if he's acquitted of that robbery charge he'll appear in a movie."

2 A. M. "I'm going to Washington to see Roosevelt," George Jessel confides at "21," "about writing the foreword to the Warner picture I'm doing on the life of Haym Solomon. Then I'm going to Chicago to lay the cornerstone for Solomon's new monument there" . . . "Oh, so you're going to Hollywood to be in the new Bing Crosby picture," a heckler tells Bea Lillie. "Those Crosby pictures are all alike" . . . "Sure they're alike," Miss Lillie returns. "They all make money" . . . "Here's really why I married," Tallulah Bankhead confesses. "I married to let the other women relax—and me too" . . . "Darling," John Emery, her husband, berates, "it's the last part of that crack I mind" . . . "Did you know this?" Ralph Kirberry asks at the Versailles. "Winston Churchill will become the European columnist for a paper here" . . . The movie censor cut the phrase, "My husband is a Shlemiel, from 'The Women,'" a film official attest. They said "The meaning of the word 'Shlemiel' escapes us!"

3 A. M. "Friends of Rex Stout are driving him nuts," an editor confides at the Village Brewery. "Stout is the creator of that famous fiction detective, Nero Wolfe. So they call Rex up at all hours of the night to ask him what's become of Presidential Candidate Lemke" . . . "One of the World's Fair features here," an agent informs at Bill Bertolotti's, "will be controlled parachute jumps, like in Russia, for 25 cents a jump" . . . At the Russian Kretchma, Lotte Jacobi, who has been banned by Hitler from her native Germany, reveals: "I got word today that Ibsen's 'Enemy of the People' was produced, by mistake, at the Volkabune Theater in Berlin. And when, in the play, the government was harangued, a full house cheered" . . . "I just flew from the Coast," Producer Max Gordon sighs at the Gay Ninettes. "What a rough trip. "He took with him long underwear, torn pants, an old sweater, a battered hat with earmuffs, old, high-laced shoes, etc. Damon Runyon showed up, wearing the completest of the swank outfits from Abercrombie, Fitch. Fancy ski-pants, bright socks, raccoon hat, etc. Well, they ran into each other and looked each other over. 'Henry,' Damon finally spoke up, "one of us must be wrong'" . . . "Wallace Ford," a producer reveals at the Yumuri, "will get the role of George in the play 'Of Mice and Men.'" . . . "Yes," his companion contributes, "and Helen O'Hara, former wife of novelist John O'Hara, will replace Betty Fields in 'Room Service'" . . . "This place is open only three days," Dancer Grace McDonald sobs at the Frolics, "and already a backstage robbery. Somebody swiped my jewelry from my dressing room."

New Yorks Win Opener, Drop Final

Bostons Make Triple and Two Double Plays in Beating Chicago.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14.—Though the New York Giants could get no better than an even break out of their doubleheader with the Pirates today, taking the opener, 12 to 2, and then losing the nightcap, 6 to 2, they picked up a full game over the second-place Cubs.

The Chicagoans dropped both ends of their twin bill with the Bees, and thus fell two and a half games behind.

His teammates gave Hubbell as fine batting support as the screwball ace, first major league hurler to notch his nineteenth win, ever has received. Starting off with home runs by Mel Ott and Hank Leiber, each with a man on base, in the first inning to send Hub off to a four-run lead, they put on the clincher with an eight-run splurge in the sixth.

Carnival of Champions to Be Real Show.

By Jack Paulus.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Being strictly sidelights on the Carnival of Champions which Uncle Mike Jacobs, the Sahib of Sixth Avenue, is putting on at the Polo Grounds next Thursday:

More than 200,000 American Legionnaires will come down on Manhattan Island on the 20th. The show is on the 23d. Of course, Uncle Mike didn't expect the legionnaires! . . . Alcohol in any form is strictly taboo in the American fighters' camps—but not in the training quarters of Marcel Thil, the French "middleweight champion." The bald-headed boy who meets tough Pacific Coast Freddie Apostoli has a glass of wine for lunch and another glass for dinner each day. "C'est une ancienne coutume Francaise!" says Marcel, and Uncle Mike, strictly a non-Aryan, nods comprehension!

Mme. Georgette Thil, the champion's wife, will not attend the fights. She wants Marcel to settle down to the life of landlord of his holdings at Nueilly Plaisance, a few miles from Paris . . . On his next trip Marcel plans to bring along Mlle. Danielle Thil, now 4 years old!

• • • •

Lou Ambers, Barney Ross, Thil and Sixto Escobar, the four champions, are concerned about the weighing-in rule. They have petitioned the commission to insist on a weighing-in ceremony every day that it is necessary, or until the fight is actually held . . . And if they hold the ceremony in the basement of the State Building, where Farr and Louis climbed the scales, a couple champions are going to be left out. The place is obviously built for a linen closet!

• • • •

Ceferino Garcia, the Filipino who wants Barney Ross' welterweight crown, is the Beau Brummel of the outfit . . . He's always neatly dressed and dapper in appearance . . . And often changes attire two or three times a day!

• • • •

Ceferino was scheduled to open training on Tuesday—but his Greek manager, George Parnassus, stopped that business, Tuesday being bad-luck day on the calendar—'twas the day in 1455 when Constantinople fell!! . . . Garcia, bigger than most Fiipnno boxers, is a Tagalog . . . And everything is "mabuti" to him. "Mabuti" is a Filipino term meaning "okey-dokey" . . . Garcia likes to box against southpaws . . . His three New York bouts ended differently. He took a ten-round decision from Cleto Locatelli, got a draw from Izzy Janazzo and scored a kayo over Bobby Pacho . . . And he's some dancer, in and out of the ring!

• • • •

Pedro Montanez, who wants Lou Ambers' crown, will enter the real estate business when he's through with busting beaks . . . He is part owner of a restaurant and bar at 111th street and Lenox avenue in New York . . . Pedro's mother, one brother and one sister are now in New York on a visit, but his mom and sister will not see the fight. The kid brother, of course, will be near the ring.

• • • •

The first thing Montanez did when he went into New York was to get introductions to Jack Dempsey, Mickey Walker and Benny Leonard, his fistic idols when he was a youngster in his native Cayey . . . Pedro's first American bout was a 10-round victory over Steve Halaiko in 1935 . . . He was turned down by the garden on his arrival from Europe . . . So he made the "subway circuit" . . . Imagine the garden's red face when the police

Gehrig Pounds No. 34; Dickey and Hoag Are Prominent at Bat.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 14.—The world champion Yankees, held to three runs in their last two games, regained their batting eye with a couple of bangs today as they swamped the Cleveland Indians, 17 to 5, in the opener of a four-game series.

Led by Bill Dickey, with a double and three singles for a perfect day; Myril Hoag, with a double and two singles, and Lou Gehrig, who blasted out his thirty-fourth home run of the year, the champs battered three Cleveland pitchers for 16 hits. Eleven bases on balls also were a big help in their run-production.

Bees Humble Cubs Twice in Own Lair

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Aided by a triple play and two double plays, the Boston Bees defeated the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 2, in the second game to sweep the double-header today, after John Lanning shut out the Chicagoans with five hits, 9 to 0, in the opener. The Bees banged their one-time nemesis, Tex Carleton, for eight runs on as many hits in the fifth inning of the first game.

Cincinnati, Sept. 14.—The Brooklyn Dodgers today opened their last Western trip of the season by sweeping the first of three straight double-headers with the Reds. After taking the opener, 4-2, the Dodgers came back behind the fine pitching of Rookie Charles (Buck) Marrow, a big right-hander just up from Louisville, to win the second, 11-2.

'Grey Ghost' Sets World Trot Mark

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Sept. 14.—Greyhound, the "grey ghost" of harness racing, clipped almost 10 seconds off the existing world's trotting record for the mile and half today, but a high wind kept him from cracking the mile mark—the previously announced goal.

With Sep Palin, of Indianapolis, handling the reins, Greyhound made a turn and a half around the State fairgrounds track in 3:02½. The old record for the mile and half was 3:12¼, set recently by Rosalind at Syracuse, N. Y.

The big grey gelding, now five years old, started his time trial on the back stretch, running into the wind. It took him a minute and 2 seconds to run the first half mile, but then he began stretching out and trotted the last mile in 2:00½. He made the last quarter in the remarkable time of 29 seconds.

Two running horses, hitched to sulkies, served as pacemakers, but under harness racing rules they had to stay behind Greyhound and not serve as "wind breakers."

Palin's original intention was to send Greyhound after the mile record of 1:56¾, set by Peter Manning in 1922, but the wind and the poor condition of the track made impossible a good test of speed for the shorter distance.

Palin announced he would send the famous trotter after the mile mark Saturday if track conditions are favorable.

The time by quarters for today's run was 0:31, 1:02, 1:32½, 2:03, 2:33 and 3:02½.

4 Griff Miscues Help Bengal Crew to Win

Recruit Hurler Driven From Mound in Seventh Frame; Detroit Sluggers Continue Assault on Appleton and Linke to Increase Score.

By Shirley Povich.

The Nats instituted their great youth movement at Griffith Stadium yesterday, and it was a success—for the Detroit Tigers.

Rookie Joe Krakauskas, pitching very rookie-like and getting some rookie-like support from other rookies in the Nats' infield, wasted a 4-2 lead and learned later, as he was taking his shower, that the Nats had been beaten, 11 to 6.

Fresh from his performance at Philadelphia, where he held the Athletics to one hit in seven innings to make a sensational debut, the big blond Krakauskas was something less than sensational yesterday. He had trouble with his control, trouble from the right side of his infield and trouble from the Detroit Tigers.

Making his debut in Washington, too, was young Jimmy Bloodworth, from Chattanooga, who was given the job at second base, and a generous scorer charged Bloodworth with only one error, but critical fans were not so lenient. And at first base, Jimmy Wasdell didn't help any with his one grievous muff. All told, the Nats threw four errors into the proceedings.

It wasn't Krakauskas' fault that the Tigers reached him for a 2-0 lead in the second inning because between 'em, Bloodworth had an easy out on Walker's ground ball, but he threw the thing into Box 291A near the dugout, and a bit later Billy Rogell drove a solid double to right that produced the two runs.

But the Nats went right out and got four runs for Krakauskus, to put him in front,

HUNTING AND FISHING

By Bill Ackerman.

The season that opened the Patuxtent marshes to rail bird hunters ten days ago has all the earmarks of the duck season of 1936, so far it has been all expectation and very little in the bag.

Granted that the tide and weather has been against good bags so far, for with the high tide coming in the middle of the day and the days just warm enough to keep the birds from flying, little more could be expected. This week should be another story with two tides a day, but the size and condition of the birds can't change much in that time. So far they are poor, in fact, little more than sparrows.

In normal years by this time the flights are heavy and the birds are in good shape. In simple words, better for the pot, but not as good for fast shooting as are the poor birds.

The average bags so far have averaged but five or six to the tide. Twelve is the largest brought in. Until now the kick has been on the reduction on the daily bag in this year's regulations, but if the flight doesn't increase in the next few weeks the worry will be on getting even that many.

The hunting season on doves in Virginia is September 1 to November 15, September 1 to 30 and November 15 to December 31 in Maryland and in Delaware September 15 to November 1 and November 15 to December 15. The bag limit, set by migratory wildfowl regulations, is 15, baiting is not permitted, hours for hunting from 7 a. m to sunset.

Quail have an open season this year throughout the whole State of West Virginia, instead of being limited to certain sections, as it was last year. The later opening date, November 13 is because of a late hatching season, but the decrease in the size of the bag, five a day—30 a season, is primarily the severe winter of 1935-36, although the extensive stocking program in which 10,000 quail were placed this spring should alleviate those losses and with a reasonably open winter this year the numerical strength next season should approach normal.

Ruffed grouse should be more plentiful than last year, as they indicate a slight increase. Turkeys in West Virginia are likewise more numerous and the area over which they may be hunted has been increased.

Deer are increasing, but nevertheless the season has been cut down one day. To offset this the open territory has been more than doubled.

The supply of rabbits is far below normal because of the ravages of disease. Although there were placed this spring some 6,500 it will do little toward making good hunting. Hunters have been promised, if a late fall survey will permit, an open season over the Christmas holiday.

Bag is four a day and twenty-four a season. The varying hare, or snowshot rabbit, has been put on the closed list and may not be hunted at all.

West Virginia asks her hunters: "Would you rather have September squirrel shooting this year, with mediocre prospects, knowing that it will probably mean poorer shooting next year and in the years to follow, than scientifically regulated shooting this year and prospects for better hunting in the years to come?"

And points out that their season, begins earlier, is nine days longer, and the bag limit is greater by four, than in Pennsylvania, which West Virginians claim has better hunting.

Aren't those same differences the very reason why Pennsylvania is regarded as one of the best hunting States—because her hunters willingly follow more stringent regulations and limitations than West Virginians have ever been asked to follow.

The argument is that because there is a plentiful supply of food this year there should be plenty of squirrels to shoot; that the large supply of mast will also bring squirrels from other regions. That squirrels breed like rats—have litters at all times of the year, and if there is a real shortage, to close the season entirely. And that squirrel hunters provide most of the fish and game money and the later opening is unfair to them.

The large crop of acorns and nuts this year can't bring back the squirrels that died from September hunter's guns last year; two nests a year is about all that can be expected. Readily conceded by the commission that squirrel hunters are in the great majority, if it is unfair of you to your family to ask that they spend your wages carefully so that they always have some throughout the year when your family wants to spend it all in one day—then perhaps the late opening is unfair.

The "tempermentality" of the rockfish this summer in striking at trolled lures has many a good angler down, but not Aubrey Harris. He has followed them through all sorts of weather and with every kind of bait and lure that never resulted in more than mediocre luck until Saturday.

ACKERMAN

Fishing with Donald Bernard and his son on Capt. Moore's boat out of Deale, they had the kind of fishing you can always hear the other fellow talk about, but generally fall short of achieving.

From 2 o'clock until 4 they raised continuously on the outer edge of the bar that extends from Cape Ann to Fairhaven, but that was enough, for in those two hours they caught 59 nice ones.

About 30 minutes after they had gone down we arrived on the scene, chock full of expectations because of the perfect weather conditions; fished Holland Point bar out to the can, then up to Northwest buoy and back to the Fairhaven beacon, where several boats were circling along with a flock of lazy gulls. Repeated the course until good dark without even the sign of a fin.

Out early Sunday morning and again not a sign that would lead one to believe there was a single fish in the whole of Herring Bay, so we nose on down to where several boats were circling off Chesapeake Beach, but that was just about as bad, for by the time we reached them several of the boats had started to bottom fish.

Continuing on down, it was not until we were close to the buoy between Plum Point and Dares Beach that we found our first fish. Small rock, few of which would run over two pounds, and the only reason to which could be attributed their raising was the shift of wind, now several points east of north.

With the thought that it might bring the blues up that have been hanging around Cove Point, Joann's nose was headed for the light, heardly a tiny spot on the horizon, although only 19 miles away.

Another blank, and because the breeze by now was really fresh from the northeast, the quiet waters of the Patuxent looked more than inviting; in addition the thought that it was full three months since Joann had been on the ways and that we could run up to Osborn Lore's yard and let him dress her up for the fishing fair that gets under way at Solomons next Saturday.

A call from Col. W. T. Chantland this morning gives us about the same story of the section around St. Catherines Island and the Wicomico, where the anglers in the Federal Trade Commission are wont to spend their week-ends. They saw plenty of rock; in fact, they were breaking all around them, but for some reason or other they just weren't striking. Neither were the fish biting on the bottom.

In 1933, when it was estimated by Frank Bell, Commissioner of Fisheries, Department of Commerce, that $115,000,000 was spent that year by the sports angler, an amount greater by 12 per cent than the total return of the commercial fisheries of the Atlantic coast, it was thought that it was fast rating as big industry. But when you consider that in less than four years that yearly expenditure has jumped, until during the last year the estimated total put into circulation by the sports angler in pursuit of his sport was approximately $500,000,000, or an average of $50 per year an angler.

There is no doubt that he is traveling more and spending more. In New Jersey in 1936 it is estimated that more than a million anglers spent more than $5,000,000. During the same year the sportsmen of California spent $63,000,000, an average expenditure of $116.80 per angler.

Our Eastern Branch has always been productive of some right sizable goldfish, but the one weighing 1½ pounds and caught by Angus Cole near Moorefield, W. Va., has our local grown fish backed clean off the board. Or has it? Maybe some of the young hopefuls who frequent the upper section of the Anacostia could answer that one better than we could.

Don't forget the meeting tonight of the Bethesda Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America at 8 in the clubhouse of the National Capitol Skeet Club out on Bradley boulevard.

Anyone interested in the outdoors will find at these meetings much to interest them. The raising and liberation of quail (this chapter this spring bought nearly 100 just to liberate) is one of the prime interests at present.

Tigers Beat Nats By 11-to-6 Score out, but that late rally fell exactly five runs short of tying the score.

The Tigers won the ball game from Krakauskus in the fifth. They jammed five of their 13 hits and four more of their runs into that inning. Krakauskus walked Gill and then pitched five straight hits to the top of the Detroit batting order. If Pete Fox hadn't been hit on the baselines by Gehringer's drive toward rightfield, the rally might have gone on and on, especially since Wasdell dropped one of Bloodworth's slightly errant throws to first base. White, Fox, Gehringer and Walker hit safely in succession during the uprising.

Krakauskas lasted until the seventh, when he gave up singles to Fox and Gehringer before getting anybody out, whereupon Pete Appleton finished the job of surrendering two more runs to the Tigers. Ed Linke pitched the ninth and the Tigers picked up two more tallies after Travis muffed Greenberg's grounder. It was a pretty sad affair.

Junior Ace Beats No. 8 Performer

Other Favorites Advance as Tourney Reaches Quarter-finals.

By Bob Garrison.

Smooth stroking Davie Johnsen, 17-year-old junior stylist, inserted a little life into the early round lull of the Playground Department's annual tennis tournament yesterday as the District's last tournament of the season passed through the third round on the Potomac Park Courts.

While other favorites kept things running smoothly by winning in easy fashion, it was Ricky Willis' fate to run into Johnsen, who failed to be influenced by his No. 8 seeding, and meet elimination in the singles tourney in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4.

Johnsen, runner up to Harry March in the District Junior Championship, last month, was on his game and except for the beginning of the second set when Willis, of the Columbia Country Club, was tie at 3 games all, he had complete control of the situation, forcing his older opponent into numerous errors.

Meets Welsh.

The Roosevelt High student won the right to meet top-seeded Barney Welsh, defending champion, in the quarter-final round scheduled for Thursday, as Welsh moved into the round of eight by trouncing Austin Rice of the Army-Navy Country Club, 6-4, 6-3.

In another interesting match, Hy Ritzenberg defeated his Public Park teammate, Edwin Neimeyer, after he had trailed, 1—5, in the second set. Ritzenberg romped through the opening set, 6—1, then took the second set after Neimeyer had reached set game.

Mather, Latona, Gain.

Ed Mather, Tony Latona, Bill Breese and Lieut. James Farrin joined other favorites in the quarter-finals by virtue of easy wins. Mather, seeded No. 6, won from Don Garber, 6—4, 6—3; Latona, No. 3, trounced Bob Bradley, former Harvard player, 6—4, 6—2; Breese eliminated Bob Howell, 6—4, 6—4, and Farrin won from Buddy Adair, 6—4, 6—1.

Doubles competition holds the spotlight today as singles play is not scheduled until tomorrow. In the feature match Hugh Lynch and Davie Johnsen, who were given the No. 4 seeding, will have a chance to prove their worth when they oppose Ed Mather and Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson, a duo that might just as well have been given their rating.

In other matches, Welsh and Ralph McElvenny, No. 1 seeded team, will meet Hy Ritzenberg and Ed Haney; Bill Breese and Tony Latona oppose Don Garber and Bob Bradley, and Lieuts. James Farrin and Bill Howard, Navy team, will play Erwin Neimeyer and Art Simmons. All matches, quarter-final events, are listed for 5 p. m.

Detroit, Cleveland Win Softball Titles

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Detroit defeated a team of mixed nationalities from the Oklahoma oil town of Sapulpa, 1 to 0, tonight to win the men's national softball championship.

The Bob Feller of the females, 20-year-old Mary Skorvich, pitched Cleveland to its second consecutive championship in the girls' division tonight when the Ohioans defeated Detroit, 7 to 1.

DiMaggio Injured In Cubs' Contest

DiMaggio, making a spectacular one-handed catch of Stan Hack's fly to retire the Cubs in the second inning, fell heavily, and a preliminary examination indicated he may have fractured his left collarbone.

Marquart Vs. Angott.

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Billy Marquart, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, last year's Canadian Olympic featherweight champion, has signed to meet Sammy Angott, clever Louisville battler, in an eight-round bout next Monday night at Marigold Gardens arena.

Cup Regatta Craft to Race At 500 Miles

Yachts Will Compete in N. Y.-to-Washington Event Next Week.

By Daniel F. Craig.

A 500-mile New York-Washington power boat race, unique in the annals of yachting, will be held as a feature of the President's Cup Regatta, it was annuonced yesterday in New York.

The yachts, from 30 to 45 feet in length, will start off the Gravesend Yacht Club in Broklyn, N. Y., at noon, next Mondey, and their course will be laid from New York down the Jersey Coast stopping for fuel at Atlantic City, N. J., up the Delaware Bay, through the canal into the Chesapeake, to round Point Lookout for a 95-mile run up the Potomac to Washington. Additional refueling stops will be made at Chesapeake City, Md., and Solomons Island, Md.

The winning skipper is expected to make the run to arrive at the finish line off Haines Point Wednesday afternoon, September 22.

John Charles Thomas, the President's favorite barytone, has agreed to pilot Miss Maryland, flying the pennant of the Maryland Yacht Club.

Martin J. Rogers, of Orange, N. J., will be at the helm of Miss New Jersey, flying the colors of the Atlantic City Tuna Club. From the Sheepshead Yacht Club will be Miss New York, skippered by A. G. Edmonston. Other entries from New England States are expected.

A motorboat speed record between the two cities is in prospect and will probably be sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association since applications will be made and official timers appointed.

The run is not without its hazards as the 500-mile course takes the cruisers outside the treacherous Jersey coast, up the Delaware Bay with its swift tides and steep seas, through the not always placid Chesapeake, leaving the racers a more or less even chance of staying in the Potomac's winding channel until they reach Washington.

The event will be conducted under the auspices of the President's Cup Regatta and will be the first of the motor boat events.

Jockey Improving.

City Links Tourney to Start Today

Fred McLeod Predicts First Flight Score of 79 to Be Good.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

The District amateur championship, the awaited answer to the local question of who's the city's best simon-pure golfer? starts today at 11:25 a. m. over Columbia's course, boasting a champion-studded field that is second to none in the tourney's history.

A quartet of post entries boosted the starting list to 65 golfers with flights provided for all contestants in the match-play rounds on Thursday and Friday.

Fred McLeod, the host professional, nearly a quarter of a century on the job, predicts a qualifying score of 79 and a medalist figure at 73 as the championship golf course offers the stiffest test to low scoring since the National Open was held there in 1921.

Harvey Johnson, one of the three Georgetown University students that are pre-tourney favorites, paced yesterday's practice rounds with a 4 over par 74, playing with Billy Shea, Volney Burnett and Billy Dettweiler. Shea was 76, Dettweiler 79 and Burnett, Maryland State champion, reported no card.

Roger Peacock, a former champion and finalist at Manor last year, making his 1937 competitive debut, also played the lengthy course in 76 strokes, playing with Gene Pittman against Bob Barnett and Ralph Quinter. The match finished all square despite Barnett's 72, with 16 pars.

Page Hufty, Chevy Chase, was a post entry and will play with Parker Noland. Craig McKee, originally paired with Noland, withdrew. Other entries included Ray Fleming, Manor, who will play at 11:25, and Ralph Fowler and Joseph Kirchner, Washington, paired, together at 2:10.

The local champions entered include Billy Shea, Middle Atlantic titleholder, Burnett and his Maryland State crown, Levi Yoder, Woodmont and Chevy Chase Invitation winner and National Amateur qualifying rounds pace-setter; Everett Johnson, Manor Club Invitation champion, and Claude Rippy, city public links champion, for the last three years, making his debut in the event.

Washington Post Cup Entries Close

Entries for the Washington Post match play tournament, a scheduled event of the Women's D. C. Golf Association, close on Friday at 1 p. m. with Mrs. R. A. Lacey at Cleveland 3939.

The event, carded at the Columbia Country Club, will start with a qualifying round on Monday with the low 32 net scores forming the championship flight. Match play rounds, with 7-8 handicap difference applying, will continue through the finals on Saturday morning. The handicap limit is 18. Miss Gloria Rodgers, Kenwood, is defending champion.

By the way, records disprove that Freddie Steele, the Tacoma lad, is the world's middleweight champion. It was in 1932 that Thil became the world's titleholder by winning over Gorilla Jones, who had succeeded to the throne vacated by Mickey Walker and held as the American champion by all authorities. Since then Thil has beaten Vince Dundee, Jock MacAvoy, of England; Ignacio Ara, of Spain; Kid Tunero, of Cuba, and Eric Seelig, of Germany. That's a real international foundation! . . .

Gorilla Jones continued as the American champion until 1935 when he lost to Steele. Freddie will probably meet the winner of the Thil-Apostoli match, although he has run out on several Apostoli fights in the past. Just an old Seattle custom!

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UPSEEDUTCH, $7.90, $5.10, $4.30; PHONE, $12.10, $8.80; BILLY'S FOLLY, $7.30.

UPSEEDUTCH was never far from the pace, responded gamely to hand urging through the stretch, wore down BILLY'S FOLLY for command and had enough left to stave off the bid of PHONE. The latter improved her position gradually and closing with good energy, was going gamely at the close. BILLY'S FOLLY displayed good speed from the start, met determined opposition from LIGNUM VITAE and only weakened inside the last 20 yards.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 2:47. Off 2:54½. Winner, Bristol Stable's b. g. (6), by Omar Khayyam—Better Believe. Trained by G. Clements. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 1:14 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELIEVER, $5.40, $3.90, $3.00; BE JUST, $16.50, $8.50; LORD TOURNAMENT, $4.90.

BELIEVER was not hurried during the opening half mile, went to the front with a rush straightening out in the stretch and was clear at the finish. BE JUST moved up fast on the outside nearing the stretch and continued willingly in the closing drive. LORD TOURNAMENT had speed from the start, but weakened under pressure after going the first half mile.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NELLIE MC, $36.00, $16.60, $8.40; STAVKA, $10.50, $6.40; HIGH MARTIN, $4.00.

NELLIE MC took the lead at once, withstood early opposition from DARK WAR, drew clear and was never seriously threatened, winning with speed to spare. STAVKA moved up gamely on the outside nearing the far turn and finishing gamely under pressure, was going stoutly at the close. HIGH MARTIN closed in determined fashion after being unable to keep pace during the early running.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:37. Off 4:06½. Winner, J. J. Powers' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ORPHAN LASS, $23.50, $8.00, $5.00; EBONY PARASOL, $3.70, $3.00; HARRY'S DREAM, $7.40.

ORPHAN LASS, slightly restrained early, drove through on the inside at the stretch turn, went to the front with a rush and was never endangered in the closing drive. EBONY PARASOL, unable to keep pace early, moved around on the outside and closed with good energy and had enough in reserve to hold safe the closing bid of HARRY'S DREAM. The latter came with good energy and just missed being along in time to take the place.

Chances Favor 20-Cent Dollar, Babson Says

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 14.—Speaking before the Boston Chamber of Commerce today, Roger W. Babson said that a 20-cent dollar apparently was in sight. "Certainly a talk on the business outlook would be incomplete without a reference to inflation," he said. "Notwithstanding the violent denials at Washington, inflation is steadily creeping upon us. To a large extent its harmful effects have been thus far offset by labor-saving machinery and by the speeding up of production. This, however, has retarded employment. Therefore, inflation is largely responsible for our unemployment situation today.

"What of the future? No one knows. I say that the chances are 6 to 4 that we are headed toward a 20-cent dollar. How else will our huge personal corporation and public debts be paid? Inflation or repudiation seems very possible. Remember that the total world income will not pay 2 per cent on the total capital invested. The laws of mathematics cannot be set aside by a Supreme Court even if made up of all blocks!"

"Farmers, wage-earners and stockholders will all have more money to spend," he said. "I am forecasting no boom but I do promise business improvement." He said the favorable factors far outweighed the unfavorable factors and he listed both as follows:

Favorable Currents.

1. More money to spend (by wage-workers, salaried people, farmers, stockholders and other groups) should boost business to new high levels.

2. Prosperity area on the Babson chart is just starting to take shape, although normal was crossed several months ago. Further business expansion is indicated.

3. Credit inflation is still on the cards, although temporarily "talked down" by Washington. Despite slight mark-ups in rates, credit is still plentiful.

4. War preparations today throughout the world have reached bigger volume than ever before in peace-time history. Delivery is still the chief consideration.

5. Capital goods have only started, full activity with a real building boom still to come. Recent recessions in many commodities are bringing costs more into line.

Unfavorable Currents.

1. Narrowing profits must be expected when selling prices no longer can keep pace with mounting costs. Ratio of net profits to sales is probably in a downward spiral.

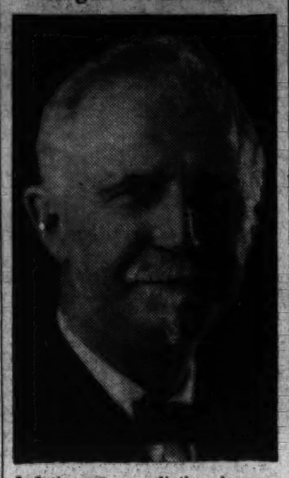
2. Federal budget problems seem to defy solution. Despite onerous taxes, Government takings still fall short. Any economy step crushes the toes of politicians.

3. Peaks are already sighted in certain directions. "Low-coupon bonds appear to have reached a top. Highs in earnings in some lines seem at hand.

4. Labor's violent demands, combined with the new hour-wage bill, validation of social security and other threats do not inspire confidence.

5. Character is in danger of being swept downstream by unwarranted speculative crazes. Prosperity in the long run does not survive a collapse of character.

Roger W. Babson



Inflation or repudiation is very possible, he declares.

Cotton Rallies Then Declines

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—The decline in cotton was halted today but moderate rallies on foreign buying were not fully maintained. After December had recovered from 8.76 to 8.90, it closed at 8.81, with final prices 3 to 7 points net higher.

Some commission house buying developed in sympathy with the steadier tone of the stock market and owing to what was regarded as a more attractive price as near months sold close to 8¾ cents. Short covering also added to the demand. Buyers became more cautious on the rally, however, and prices later became responsive to moderate offerings.

Futures Price Range.

	High.	Low.	Last.
October	8.98	8.80	8.86-90
December	8.90	8.76	8.81
January	8.94	8.81	8.86
March	9.03	8.91	8.97-98
May	9.13	9.00	9.03-04
July	9.20	9.07	9.12

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil was firmer today on increased covering and scattered commission house buying encouraged by the rally in allied markets. Final prices were 12 to 13 points net higher. Sales, 88 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; September closed at 7.45; October, 7.38; December, 7.37; January, 7.39, and March, 7.47.

Business Failures.

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Business failures in the United States for the five-day period ended September 9 dropped to 96 from 151 in the full week preceding, a fall of 36.4 per cent, Dun & Bradstreet reported. In the 1936 week the total was 110.

Wheat Climbs With Europe A Heavy Buyer

By the Associated Press.

A total of more than 3,000,000 bushels, of which 2,000,000 bushels was wheat from Canada principally destined for Great Britain, is estimated to have been bought for overseas. The 1,000,000 bushels and upwards that was in addition to Canadian wheat consisted of 750,000 bushels of United States hard winter wheat, part of it afloat and part to go from the Gulf of Mexico, as well as a quantity of Pacific Coast domestic white wheat, 200,000 bushels of United States rye, and 100,000 bushels of Canadian barley.

Selling to realize profit caused reactions from the day's top level, and at the close Chicago wheat futures were 1⅞@2¼ cents above yesterday's finish; September 1.03½. December 1.04⅞@1.05. May 1.06⅞@1.07⅛; corn 1½@1⅞ up, September 1.03¾@1.04, December 63½@63⅝, May 64¾@65; oats ½@⅝ advanced, December 30¼@30⅜, and rye showing 1¾@1¼ bulge, December 77⅜. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 15 cents dearer.

Stocks Recover in Less Active Trading With Substantial Gains; U. S. Bonds Higher.

New York, Sept. 14.—Wall Street improved with the weather, and the gloom over business prospects, so prevalent yesterday, seemed to give way to the idea that perhaps the autumn business would be fair after all and that, come what might, our Government always would come to the rescue with a bit of inflation. On somewhat less active trading the stock market opened higher, with leaders up 1 to 3 points; held steady for a while, and gained a little more in the afternoon.

In the late trading 2 to 4-point advances were the rule among the active medium and highpriced stocks. Few stocks felt much pressure. Government bonds also strengthened, as did commodities. The French franc had another spell of weakness. December wheat closed 2 cents higher at $1.04⅞ a bushel.

Steel set a good pace in opening, with 2,000 shares at 95½, a gain of 2¼ points, and then rising 2 points more. All the steels were markedly buoyant on belated recognition of the fact that mill operations this week snapped sharply from the holiday decline of last week. Recovery in the railroad shares was fairly large, but activity was rather small. Union Pacific rode up 3 points in the early trading, after a poor opening.

Recovery was decidedly snappy in some stocks. American Can, for example, snapped back 7½ points to 100 before many shorts could cover. Case also climbed that much on a few sales. Chrysler sold above par for a gain of more than 5 points, but could not keep that high. Manville at its best could show a rally of half a dozen points. Sloss Sheffield cost unwary shorts 10 points. International Business Machines and duPont were 6-point climbers. Allied Chemical lagged a bit.

Farm Stocks Buoyant.

Today's best prices for stocks as a whole were around the opening prices of yesterday, which showed fair gains over the close of last week. The undertone was firm all day, with new offerings absorbed without difficulty. Farm stocks and certain other commodity groups, sensitive to inflationary influences, were buoyant. Pivotal industrial and farm stocks accounted for about 20 per cent of the total sales volume of around 1,750,000 shares. Some of the best-liked stocks could show recovery from the lowest prices of yesterday of as much as a dozen points.

Western Union enjoyed general buying and Coca-Cola no longer was considered in the doubtful class. General Motors and General Electric were active with gains of more than a point, which were held. Public utility stocks were not conspicuous, any more than they have been recently on the falling market. Trading took place in fits and starts so far as volume was concerned, but the periods in which the reduced stock exchange facilities for handling the business could not meet the requirements were rare.

Preparations for the income tax payments tomorrow having largely been made, no disturbance was felt in the money market. Some of the recent moves in security markets probably have been to provide cash for the quarterly contributions to the Government. At any rate money rates were unchanged. Government bonds were strong, with a considerable increase in activity. Much of the buying was reported to have come from sources other than the banks here, the Treasury's demonstration for easier money apparently having been more impressive elsewhere than in Wall street.

Taking It Back.

An interesting incident, rather expected since the announcement on desterilization of gold yesterday, was the rescinding by the Treasury of its call upon its commercial bank depositaries for $49,000,000. That sum was to have been paid in tomorrow to give the Treasury funds for meeting maturities and interest payments pending collection of income tax checks.

Wall street men familiar with Treasury operations could not recall an instance during the past 20 years at least in which such a reversal was made. It was logical for the Treasury to leave the money on deposit, now that it will have the $300,000,000 credit from the gold that had been placed in the inactive fund. Some of the banks already had paid in the amounts called for, and they were informed by the Federal Reserve bank that the money would be "promptly" refunded.

Why It Was Done.

Performance of the Treasury with respect to the call for deposits (made only at the end of last week), the announcement at the beginning of this week that gold would be desterilized, and then the sequence of a recall for deposits gives pretty good proof of the reason why the latest inflationary step was taken. It is considerably more than farfetched to say that on last Friday the Treasury had no intimation that the money market would need more credit and that $300,000,000 should be poured in; yet the need for credit and the desire to keep interest rates low was the explanation officially given on Monday for the gold operation.

It may have just happened that the full effect on businessmen's minds, and on the minds of others as well, of the bad break in the stock market last week were not really appreciated in Washington until last week was at the close. When the impact was fully felt, inflationary action was decided upon. The little reversal of the call for deposits would have meant nothing had the call been made long enough ago for the officials not to have been able to see credit stringency around the tax date. It is too much to suppose that none was seen when the call for deposits was sent out on Friday, but that much was seen on Saturday night, when the decision was taken to pour in credit. At any rate Wall Street is a unit in regarding the step as dictated solely by the action of the stock market.

Around the brokerage houses it is always possible to hear at least a dozen new stories a day dealing with the SEC. One of them has even been tall enough to reach to a prominent broker as a possible successor to Chairman Landis. Resignation of David Saperstein from the SEC apparently clears the way for the appointment of William Douglas to the chairmanship, just as the resignation of Douglas at this time would have suggested Saperstein's appointment. It is possible that an outsider may get the job, but few here think so. Meanwhile, the rumor is going round that the stock exchange may take disciplinary action against one of its members, expusion being hinted at as the proper medicine. What the SEC may do if the stock exchange doesn't act may depend somewhat on the next chairman of the SEC.

Steel Succeeds Autos as King Of Industry

Col. L. P. Ayres Says 1937 Steel Output Is Nearly Sure to Exceed 1929.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 14.—The iron and steel industry has taken a dominant position in the 1937 American business scene, relegating the automobile industry to second place, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland banker and economist, said today in his monthly review.

"It is now nearly sure that the production of steel in this country this year will be well in excess of the output of 1929," Col. Ayres reported.

Record Is Notable.

"So far this year the volume of steel production has been a third greater than it was in the corresponding months of 1936, and in view of the serious setback resulting from the strikes among the independent producers, the record is a truly a notable one."

While not on a par with steel's gains, business activity in other lines was seen as well above that for the same period in 1936. Factory employment approached the level of the prosperity year of 1929; railroad car loadings and electric power production increased about 13 per cent over 1936; and coal mining, oil, gasoline and automobile production were reported to be up 10 per cent.

"Conditions are so good among the farm proprietors that it is probable that the agricultural population as a whole is better off this year than the industrial population as a whole, or than the commercial population," Col. Ayers said.

Gold Importations Lower in August

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Commerce Department reported today that August gold imports totaled $105,013,011. July imports were $175,623,720, and in August, 1936, the total was $67,524,433.

August silver imports amounted to $4,964,161, compared with $4,475,629 the previous month and $16,637,249 in August.

Curb Recovers; Trading Less

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—A rapid rebound in curb shares today canceled a considerable part of the losses suffered in yesterday's slump. The pace of recovery lagged in the final hour, but final prices were only slightly under the highs.

Leaders of the movement included Aluminum Co. of America, which closed at 130, up 10; Gulf Oil, 51½, up 3½; International Petroleum, 32, up 2; Sherwin Williams, 111, up 2; American Cyanamid "B," 31, up 2⅛, and Newmont, 92½, up 1½.

Transactions totaled 348,000 shares, against 575,000 yesterday.

Western Union Defers Dividend

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Western Union Telegraph Co. announced today directors had voted to defer action on the dividend on its capital stock due to a recent decline in business and decrease in expenses. The company had been paying 75 cents a shore quarterly. Earlier the company's securities had shown marked weakness on the stock exchange.

The company stated that although volume of business is substantially the same as last year, "It has been affected some during the past few months by the general slowing down of trade and of the security and commodity markets."

Exports of Cotton Jump in August

By the Associated Press.

Commerce Department officials said yesterday that cotton exports during August showed a huge increase over those of the preceding month. Raw cotton exports in August totaled 220,000 bales, valued at $15,129,000, compared with 124,000 bales and $8,627,000 in July and 182,000 values, valued at $12,027,000 in August, 1936.

As compared with August, 1936, larger shipments went to Germany, Poland, Belgium, Netherlands and Sweden. Shipments to the United Kingdom, Canada and Japan were smaller, while shipments to France were about the same.

Union Bag & Paper Splits Stock 4 for 1

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Stockholders of Union Bag & Paper Corporation, at a special meeting today, approved a four-for-one split-up in the company's common stock and issuance of $7,000,000 of convertible debentures. An increase in the authorized stock to 1,500,000 shares from 300,000 shares and authorization of $10,000,000 of the debentures was voted.

The company, which manufactures bags and wrapping papers, has principal mills and factories at Hudson Falls, N. Y.; Savannah, Ga.; Chicago, Ill.; Kaukauna, Wis.; Bogalusa, La., and Vancouver, Wash.

Church Exercises Open Arlington U.

The University of Arlington, an adult educational project which will include both high school and advanced subjects, was formally opened last night at exercises in the Education building of the Clarendon Baptist Church. About 150 persons attended.

Dr. Charles T. Ball, president of the new institution, outlined its policies and announced his intention to make Arlington County a "county of schools."

Other speakers at the exercises, presided over by Dr. Charles E. Dicken, were the Rev. Isaac Steenson, pastor of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church and the Rev. George G. Oliver, pastor of the Clarendon Methodist Church. A musical program under the direction of Mrs. Eva Mann Trammell was featured with vocal solos by Mrs. Virginia Pollard Werking. Austin M. Kay was the accompanist.

Virginian Is Acquitted In Slaying of Brother

New Castle, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—A Craig County Circuit Court jury deliberated 15 minutes this afternoon before returning a verdict acquitting Roy Crawford, 25, of murder in the shooting of his brother, Preston, 40, last June.

The shooting occurred at the Crawford home near Craig Healing Springs when, the jury was told, Preston Crawford returned home under the influence of liquor and threatened members of the household. Crawford's widow was the principal defense witness.

Plan to Kill 1,000 Deer In Tick Purge Fought

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 14 (AP).—Plans for an organized deer slaying in four Florida counties as a Texas fever tick eradication measure were headed to the Supreme Court today after a public hearing. Twelve witnesses opposed the slaughter and four defended it. Hunters estimated 1,000 deer were in thearea.

The hunt was scheduled to start September 10, but was blocked by an injunction issued by Circuit Judge J. B. Johnson, of Tallahassee.

Bob Burns Says—

A lotta people are satisfied to just string along with the mob, but I wan'ta tell you, our history is made by those people who did somethin' so outstandin' that their names live on.

I remember one time Aunt Kezzy Moomaw invited a lotta people to her house and she tole 'em to pay particular attention to the wonderful soup she was serving. The soup was delicious and everybody started in on it when Aunt Kezzy rose up at the table and says, "Just a minute, friends!" She says, "The lady who gave me the recipe for this soup has passed away and I think, out of respect for her, we should drink it in silence!"

Landis Assails Stock Gambling As He Quits SEC

holding company act and was given a three-year term on the SEC under wise-cracking Joseph P. Kennedy, then SEC chairman and now Maritime Commission chairman.

Epitome of Academic Liberal.

Kennedy was supposed to be the apotheosis of Wall Street and Landis the epitome of the academic liberal. But an unusual and solidly founded friendship sprang up between the two, confounding the wise Washingtonians who had predicted faulty teamwork. So, when Kennedy left the SEC to return to Wall Street, Landis became chairman. It was then that Kennedy, leaving the chairmanship, bounded in on Landis' first press conference, grabbed his hand and said:

Kennedy streaked from the room, and the stunned Landis, collecting his thoughts, pledged himself to pursue the same type of effective administration.

Tokyo-born, of missionary parents, Landis did not come to America until he was 13. From the time he began as a student at Mercersburg Academy, paying for his schooling by waiting on table, his life typifies the tradition of American success stories.

For the man who has laid down the law to Wall Street, cracking the whip over men who control millions of dollars and many thousands of men, fainted one day years ago from undernourishment while working as a law clerk at $8 a week and striving to save $5 of this wage for his schooling.

Studied at Princeton.

He went to Princeton University, doing odd jobs in his spare time and finally progressing toward comparative independence by selling syllabi—prepared digests of courses—to well-to-do students. After an interlude with the British Y. M. C. A. in the war, he finished Princeton, entered Harvard Law, met Frankfurter, won the Fay diploma, became law clerk to Associate Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court, became professor of legislation at Harvard and thus into the New Deal.

Landis yesterday answered charges made recently by Charles R. Gay, president, New York Stock Exchange, and others, that the "thinness" of the present stock market is due to Government regulation.

Landis asked "What is thinness?" He answered by stating that if thinness in the market meant there wasn't as large a volume of speculative buying and selling as the complainers wished, "the situation may really be a very desirable one." He remarked that the SEC's figures showed that the real "cushion" in the market's plunges last week came from the thousands of buying orders from "the small men throughout the country, and not from the short-term speculators.'"

Denounces "Panicky Speculators."

He denounced the "panicky speculators" who "know that Wall Street is bounded on the East by Long Island but forget that it is bounded on the West by the United States." He condemned those "who live by inducing other people to gamble on the market," then "start to cry when the country as a whole refuses to play the market, and then dress up their outcry by talking about the thinness of the market, picturing their plight as due to Government regulation."

He remarked that the "thinness complaint" arises from "those who want to liquidate large blocks of stock swiftly. When someone wants to sell 3,000 shares of Bethlehem Steel at 85, say," he said, "that means that someone wants $255,000 in a few minutes. Why does that person want a quarter million dollars in five minutes? What is the need for it?"

Editor, Injured in a Duel With Duce in 1921, Dies

Buenos Aires, Sept. 14 (AP).—Francisco Ciccotti, 57, Italian Socialist editor who was wounded in a duel with Premier Mussolini in 1921, died today.

A Rome editor when Mussolini was rising to power, Ciccotti opposed the Fascist leader. Mussolini challenged him to a duel. They fought with swords until Ciccotti was so weak he was unable to continue.

When Mussolini became the head of the government, the journalist sought refuge in France. He came here in 1930.

Map of Route Taken by Store Vandals

Dotted line beginning at Julius Garfinckel & Co., at Fourteenth and F streets northwest, traces the route taken by a gang of vandals, believed to be racketeers or political fanatics, who sprayed a glass-corroding acid over windows of downtown Washington department stores, causing about $30,000 damage in one of the most unusual crimes in the city's history.

it as he walked, without arousing suspicion.

Acid Causes Painful Burns.

Hydrofluoric acid if dropped on the skin causes painful burns. Believing that the acid throwers might have been injured during the raid, police are checking hospitals for persons who might have asked treatment for such burns.

Detective Sergt. Frank O. Brass' report that the powder form of the acid is available in large quantities at paint stores, wholesale druggists and chemical warehouses has resulted in an investigation of such firms to determine whether sales have been made recently. Precinct Detective J. K. Baker is working with Brass.

None of the stores attacked carried insurance to cover the loss. Young and Simon, insurance agents, said yesterday protection of this type would cost 25 per cent more than the present show window policies.

Inspector Bernard W. Thompson and Capt. Ira E. Keck have taken complete charge of the investigation. The Bureau of Standards was called in to make positive identification of the acid.

Hydrofluoric acid, chemists said, is a mobile, colorless, fuming liquid having a pungent, suffocating odor. It is produced by the action of sulphuric acid on fluorite, a highly corrosive, glass-eating substance.

Ordinarily it is obtainable only in wholesale drug companies and paint supply stores.

Peculiar characteristics of hydrofluoric acid include the difficulty of storing it. It is so volatile that it must be kept in platinum containers lined with wax. As it has no erosive effect on rubber, the Bureau of Standards believes it was applied with a rubber syringe.

Theories formulated by police only to be discarded one by one was the belief that the vandalism was a child's prank, the work of labor agitators or a protest by a political fanatic.

New York gangsters smeared store windows with acid preparations on an extensive scale in the latter part of 1932 in what police described as reprisals of labor organizations against concerns employing nonunion help, the Associated Press reported.

Mysterious, concerted attack on windows of 24 chair restaurants in Brooklyn and lower Manhattan occurred December 26, 1932, a holiday, when places operated by Horn & Hardart & Bickford's, Inc., were closed.

Only in one of the stores where glass was perforated was there any evidence of cause. There police found small white pebbles behind shattered windows. Elsewhere clean holes about the size of a 32-caliber bullet were surrounded by star-shaped formations that puzzled police. No bullet holes were found in walls opposite windows and no metal or stone pellets were on floors. Both companies denied labor troubles.

There were attacks on windows in April, 1933, by vandals who hurled bricks tied to bottles of odorous acids through shop windows.

Gillispie Murder Trial Due in Nov.

Rocky Mount, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—Curtis Hale, 29, and Irvin Martin, 17, indicted here today by a special grand jury on a charge of murdering Posey Gillispie at a farmhouse in the southwestern part of Franklin County last Wednesday night, are expected to go to trial in the November term of court.

Hale made a new bond of $5,000, the same amount under which he had been free, and Irvin, who had been under $1,000 bond, was required to increase his surety to $3,000.

550 Air Reserves Selected for Duty

Selection of 550 Air Corps Reserve officers for service with the Regular Army, in accordance with a provision of this year's War Department appropriation bill, was started yesterday, Army officials announced.

Chosen on a voluntary basis for periods of active duty up to three years, the Reserve fliers are mostly civilian pilots and Air Corps training school graduates who have won commissions.

The pilots will be assigned to Regular units in both continental United States and territorial stations. War Department denied the action had connection with the disturbed conditions in Europe and the Far East.

Shirley Temple Pins Brass Badge On G-Man Hoover

Hollywood, Sept. 14 (AP).—Shirley Temple pinned a brass badge today on J. Edgar Hoover, G-Man, and made him a member of her own police force.

The curly-haired chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation staked his bodyguard of five detectives outside the Temple bungalow as he visited the 8-year-old star at Twentieth Century-Fox Studio.

The penalty for not wearing the badge, she warned Hoover, is a deposit of 5 cents in the milk bottle which finances a "set" party at the end of each of her pictures.

"To the sweetheart of the G-Men."

Father of Two Admits Attack on Choir Singer

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan announced tonight Robert Conroy, 24-year-old father of two children, had confessed the sadistic attack of Miss Anna Brasy, a choir singer, in her bedroom the night of November 21, 1936.

The attack was one of the most brutal in Chicago's long series of sex crimes. Miss Brasy, mutilated with a scissors and a coat hanger, for a time was near death.

Canandaigua, N. Y., Sept. 14 (U.P.). New York's first woman bailiff was sworn today and six women were chosen for the Federal District Court grand jury—all in the courtroom where Suffragette Susan B. Anthony was convicted 54 years ago of illegal voting.

The women jurors were New York's first under the new State law permitting women on juries, which became effective September 1.

Only 2 of the 12 women in the panel asked to be excused because of their sex, taking advantage of a provision which does not compel women to serve.

Four general lines of research will be pursued, according to the director with results which, it is hoped will go far toward solving the many mysteries of the structure and functioning of the brain and the diseases to which it is susceptible.

First, Dr. Solnitzky, Assistant Director Francis J. Warner and their associates will study the brains of vertebrate animals, from reptiles and fishes to such high forms as the great apes.

Second, the development of the human brain progressively from the earliest embryonic stages.

Third, experimentation upon upon the brain of snakes, monkeys, rodents, birds and practically every kind of animal obtainable.

Fourth, neuro-pathology, the study of diseases of the brain in man and the means of correcting them, whether by surgery or medicine.

Urgent Need For Restudy.

There is an urgent need for restudy of cerebral development, present day knowledge being based upon the studies and conclusions of Dr. Hes, the nineteenth centruy German expert, Dr Solnitzky said. The nerve fibers which carry impulses and cell structure are but two of main question marks.

The institute represents the fulfillment of a dream which began when Dr. Solnitzky obtained his doctor of medicine degree at George Washington University nearly two decades ago. Previously he had received his bachelor's degree at the University of Saskatchewan and his M. A. and Ph. D. at Catholic University.

Ever since he began teaching anatomy here, first at George Washington Medical School and then at Georgetown, he has been collecting brain specimens, human and animal, literature and everything else related to the subject. His collection of scientific papers on the brain has nearly every civilized language represented. This he has presented to the institute as the nucleus for a growing library.

Builds Up Brain Museum.

For years he has been building up a veritable museum of brains, with the co-operation of the Biological Survey, Bureau of Fisheries, Smithsonian Institution and other agencies, public and private. When Babe, the elephant, died at the zoo several weeks ago he tried to get her brain, but soon learned there was too much sentiment attached to the beast to allow such an operation.

In common with zoo directors and schoolboys, Dr. Solnitzky is a demon trader, always being willing to discuss an exchange of specimens. He already has made arrangements to deal thus with the Dutch Central Institute for Brain Research in Amsterdam, and plans to make many more similar contacts.

Good co-operation by the Bureau of Fisheries and the Biological Survery particularly has given him an abundant supply of brains of fishes and such mammals as the wolf, coyote, lynx and other predatory animals.

Dr. Warner is studying the rattlesnake brain and he and Dr. Salnitzky are preparing to make an intensive investigation of one of their most highly prized specimens, the sphenodon. This is a rare New Zealand reptile whose chief distinguishing characteristic is its three eyes, one of which is on top of the head.

"Scouts" in Animal Centers.

The institute will have "scouts" in Singapore, London and other animal-trading centers. The more common experimental beasts—cats, dogs, mice, monkeys, etc.—will be available here. The animal house is being equipped and in it students will have full opportunity for research in all branches.

New equipment includes the Horsley-Clarke brain stereotaxic instrument, by which the experimenter can chart his course with utmost precision in working on animals. Also the Vogt-Sartorius microtome, the only device which permits serial sections of the entire human brain or any other corresponding size.

Photographs or drawings will be made of all work accomplished, so that everything may be checked and the "wild theory" danger obviated.

With its vast and still growing collection of animal brains, the large library, expert staff, all-inclusive scope, modern equipment and co-operation with similar research institutions throughout the world, the institute will be unique, its director believes.

Grocery Clerk Seized In 'Numbers' Slip Raid

Frank Spigone, 65, was arrested yesterday and held on charges of operating a lottery. He will be arraigned before a United States commissioner today.

Spigone, whose home is in the 900 block of Third street northeast, was seized in a nearby grocery store where he is employed as a clerk.

Soviet Plane Reaches Alaska to Hunt Fliers

Barrow, Alaska, Sept. 14 (AP).—A Russian plane, bearing Alexsei Gratcianski, commander, and five men, arrived from Wellen, Siberia, today to base here and search for six Soviet transpolar fliers missing one month in the Arctic.

At Fairbanks, A. Vartanian, Russian flight representative, flew with Pilot Joe Crosson to search the area to the north and east for pilot Sigismund Levaneffsky and his five companions lost during a projected transpolar flight from Moscow to Oakland, Calif., August 13.

Waking After 7 Months.

Cincinnati, Sept. 14 (AP).—Physicians today said Ruth Marian Hedgecock, 18-year-old schoolgirl who fell into a coma seven months ago, was gaining strength and "should be entirely normal within six months."
